HOOVER URGES CONFIDENCE IN BUSINESS

PINCHOT DRIVE BY BROOKHART IN DIFFICULTY

Senator's 'Stop Hoover' Campaign Unaided by Progressives.

LAFOLLETTE'S HELP IS HARDLY POSSIBLE

Politicians Doubt Governor's Strength in Pennsylvania Primary Election.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Senator Smith Wildman Brokhart, progressive Republican, of Iowa, who is traveling about the country in a "stop Hoover" campaign, seems to be encountering considerable difficulty. The Iowan's candidate is Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and Pinchot seems willing. The trouble is, however, that the other Republican progressives in the Senate are by no means agreed on Pinchot.

True, Senator George Norris, of Nebraska, the dean of the progressives, is for him, but how about his smart young fellow progressive, Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin? Could La Follette, a wet, ask the Wisconsin delegates to the next Republican national convention to support a man who is even drier than President Hoover, a man who has made every one of his appointees sign a pledge not to take a drink?

Friends of Senator La Follette think not. And Wisconsin is the mainspring of the progressive machinery in this country.

Senator Nye's Position.

As a matter of fact, Senator Lafollette is convinced that President Hoover will be easily renominated for another term, and he has said so publicly on two occasions.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, also might find it difficult to support Pinchot. For that matter, he might find it difficult to support any candidate outside of President Hoover. The North Dakota farmers are strong for the Federal Farm Board, strong for the Smoot-Hawley tariff act, which gave them a heavy duty on flax, and for those reasons politicians expect to see Senator Nye again supporting President Hoover.

Senator Brookhart seems determined that the Progressives accept Gov. Pinchot. He says that the Pennsylvanian is "all right on both the power and the farm questions," and that his strength in his home State, plus his willingness to run and his ability to spend money out of his own fortune, make him an ideal candidate.

Regarding Gov. Pinchot's strength in his own State, students of Pennsylvania politics here do not believe that he would be able to line up more than a third of the delegates in the preferential primary. There are many voters, it is said, who might gladly vote for him as governor, but who would never support him for the Presidency. Moreover, Pinchot's dryness, a big asset when he was running against a wet in the gubernatorial race, would avail him nothing in a contest against a dry President.

Senator Brookhart, in a speech before a conference of Illinois progressive Republicans last week, expressed the opinion that a progressive candidate could carry not only the preferential primary in Pennsylvania, but the primaries in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Nebraska, California and the Dakotas.

Politicians who are familiar with conditions in Indiana, Ohio and Illinois admit that there is a great amount of dissatisfaction with the Hoover administration, but even so they do not think that Gov. Pinchot

Holdup Nets $25 For 'Hatless Duo'

Druggist Thought Attack Was Prank but He Changed Mind.

Two men, answering the general description of two of the "hatless trio" who have held up several drug stores in Washington in the last two weeks, pulled a "job" shortly after 11 o'clock last night at a pharmacy at 3936 Georgia avenue northwest, and escaped with $25.

A tall man entered the store and ordered a drink from the soda dispenser. The soda man, George Virts, 19, of 836 Shepherd street northwest, placed the nickel in the cash register and turned back to face a second man, who held a gun.

Dr. R. H. Beheler, of 3534 Tenth street northwest, proprietor of the store, who was standing at the end of the counter, smiled when he saw the gun, believing the man was joking. The gunman, however, impressed the two with the seriousness of the situation by words and gestures. He herded Dr. Beheler and Virts into the back, where he held them at bay with the gun, while his companion rifled the till of $25. The two gunmen escaped up Georgia avenue in a small black roadster.

Zita May Yield Title In Plan to Crown Son

Negotiates With Vatican to Drop 'Empress' in Austrian Drive.

(Copyright, 1931, by United Press.)

Vatican City, June 15 (U.P.).—Zita of Bourbon de Parme, who was forced into exile with her husband, Emperor Carl of Austria, in 1919, was negotiating with the Holy See today for renunciation of her claim to the title of Empress of Austria.

The negotiations were described in Vatican circles as part of the campaign to place the former empress' son, Archduke Otto, on the vacant throne of Hungary.

The former empress will renounce her title as empress, but will retain her title as Queen of Hungary and as Duchess of Austria. Count Colloredo, chamberlain to the empress, had a lengthy audience with the Pope this

BRUENING DEMANDS REICHSTAG RECESS

Says His Cabinet Will Quit if Elders Vote Today for Extra Session.

Berlin, June 15 (A.P.).—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening told a number of leaders of German labor unions and political parties today that his cabinet will resign if the council of elders of the Reichstag votes tomorrow for an extra session.

Bruening's day was spent in a series of conferences with labor and political leaders in an effort to block the calling of the extra session of the Reichstag, which, he said, would be "recklessly risking chaos."

The bitter medicine of the emergency decrees must be swallowed, the chancellor said, before Germany can expect relief from its reparations burden. Further steps in the direction of a revision of the Young plan, he said, would be impossible unless the nation "shows courage enough" to balance its budget, "no matter how much it hurts."

What was perhaps the chancellor's most important conference of the day was that with the leaders of the various parties which up to now have been supporters of the Bruening government. At this conference the whole cabinet was present, and also Premier Braun, of Prussia, Prussian Minister of Interior Severing, who is head of Prussia's police, and President Luther, of the German Reichsbank.

Luther explained to the party leaders that their attitudes at present are vital not only politically but also economically. It should be clear, he said, from the financial reactions of the past week, what a blow would fall upon German credit if foreign countries were to lose their faith in the stability of the government of the reich.

The council of elders meets at noon tomorrow. Further party caucuses are scheduled for earlier in the day.

The conviction tonight in political circles was that Chancellor Bruening once more had surmounted a crisis and that tomorrow would see him further justified in retaining his sobriquet of Germany's "iron man."

SHIPS, PLANES SEEK 355 MISSING BODIES

61 Victims of Excursion Boat Disaster Are Recovered Near French Port.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Nantes, France, June 15 (A.P.).—Ships and airplanes were scouring the waters off Point St. Gildas tonight searching for additional bodies of more than 400 excursionists who lost their lives yesterday afternoon when the excursion steamer St. Philibert capsized and sank near Noirmoutier Island.

As the quest for bodies went on, searchers nourished the faintest hope that some additional survivors might turn up to be added to the slender list of eight who were rescued last night. Although it was not thought probable, some of the searchers held to the bare possibility that a few others might have made their way to remote havens on the island or the shore.

Late tonight a total of 61 bodies had been recovered from the sea, 51 of them bodies of women. They were picked up by boats of various descriptions which joined the search, directed by an airplane high over the surface of the water.

As the work of retrieving bodies went on, indescribably sad scenes were enacted on the shore. One man came riding up to the water front on a bicycle crying like a child.

"I put my whole life into one ideal," he said. "My young son, 18 years old, who was on that boat."

Relatives thronged the wharves at St. Nazaire, facing the Loire River, wharves piled high with coal, waiting sadly and impatiently for each report of the finding of additional bodies. Most of them were hoping against hope.

No one knew exactly how many or who was drowned in the catastrophe. The anxious belief that Francois or Marie Louise or papa or mamma might still be alive, after all, kept officers of the steamboat company besieged with half-frantic questions about whether any more

LABOR CONTROL UPSET, RIGHTED IN SWIFT CRISIS

M'Donald Regains Power Lost by Slim Margin Over Land Tax.

EPISODE HELD THREAT TO VITAL VOTE TODAY

Conservatives Strike Sudden Blow as Foes Weigh Major Plans.

London, June 15 (A.P.).—The Labor government was defeated today in a surprise vote on a minor Conservative amendment to the land-tax bill, but quickly recovered and reestablished its control of the House of Commons by a slim majority of 14.

The defeat, administered by a vote of 232 to 208, came when many Labor and Liberal benches were empty. The government, refusing to look upon the setback as cause for resignation, speedily rallied its forces and, while screaming headlines announced the Conservative victory to throngs of home-going Londoners, the counterblow was delivered.

By a vote of 246 to 232, the government forced through closure on debate.

The temporary defeat was looked on as embarrassing if not politically serious, coming as it did on the eve of a vital vote tomorrow on a Liberal amendment to the finance bill.

Many Liberals Absent.

It was brought about by the fact that many Liberals were absent from the House at an important meeting looking toward solution of the major crisis which has featured British politics for a week and which tomorrow night may threaten the very existence of the MacDonald regime.

Compromise negotiations, aimed at holding secure the Liberal support of the Labor government, have been under way during the week-end. They continued tonight. While the general belief was that the crisis would not come to a head, there was no authoritative word to this effect from Westminster.

It was while Liberals and Laborites were busy trying to work out a compromise on the proposed Liberal amendment to Chancellor Philip Snowden's land-tax bill that the Conservatives moved for their unexpected vote on another phase of the issue and caught the government with insufficient supporters.

Acceptance Is Provisional.

Cries of "resign" rang out from Conservative ranks when the government was revealed in a minority of 24, but when Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, took the customary course and asked Prime Minister MacDonald what his plans were, the prime minister declared he would accept the Conservative amendment provisionally inasmuch as the Commons would have an opportunity to accept it again during later stages of the bill. Mr. MacDonald added that the amendment, apparently did not

POPE AND ITALY SETTLE RIFT AS CLUBS REOPEN

Catholic Action Societies Will Operate Under Bishop's Rule.

PLAN IS ACCEPTABLE TO VATICAN AND DUCE

Government Insists Bodies Must Be Strictly Religious in Character.

Rome, June 15 (A.P.).—A solution of the controversy between the Catholic Church and the Italian state is reported from reliable sources to have been found today in a plan to reopen thousands of Catholic clubs in Italy, after they had been somewhat reorganized and specifically governed.

It was said the Fascist government, after receiving a note from the Pope today, decided to allow the clubs to reopen as religious organizations, definitely under control and vouched for by the bishops. This is understood to be satisfactory to both parties.

Some of these organizations conducted by Salesians already have been authorized to resume activities.

Eight Clubs Reopen.

Eight of them were reopened in Turin yesterday, and it is understood others throughout Italy are being notified by police they may function again.

This method of adjusting the difficulty had been forecast after Pope Pius instructed his bishops to take charge of Catholic action clubs and when the government's position became known as directed against all except religious societies.

The Pope's order to the bishops was issued on the same day the clubs closed, but before the dissolution order became known July 1. It threw the church's cloak around these institutions with 500,000 members, and the bishops' responsibility thereby became a guarantee of the religious character of the clubs.

Clubs Are Reorganized.

The government insisted that the clubs would remain closed, but the Catholic members have been reorganized into confraternities, congregations and oratories.

The process of reopening is expected to be gradual, it is said, in order to avoid the appearance of victory or defeat for either side. It is known that the Vatican note insisted that there must be a restoration of conditions which existed prior to the closing.

Resignation of Quesada Causes Cabinet to Quit

San Jose, Costa Rica, June 15 (A.P.).—The cabinet resigned today as a protest against the resignation of Castro Quesada, Costa Rican Minister to Washington.

The minister's resignation was effected over the protests of the government ministers.

High Lights of Optimism In President's Address

Indianapolis, June 15 (A.P.).—The following are selected quotations from President Hoover's address tonight on the business depression:

We have come out of each previous depression into a period of prosperity greater than ever before. We shall do so this time.

As we look beyond the horizons of our own troubles and consider the events in other lands, we know that the main causes of the extreme violence and the long continuance of this depression came not from within but from outside the United States.

Fear of loss of a job or uncertainty as to the future has caused millions of our people unnecessarily to reduce their purchases of goods, thereby decreasing our production and employment.

These uncertainties lead our bankers and business men to extreme caution, and in consequence a mania for liquidation has reduced our stocks of goods and our credits far below any necessity. All these apprehensions and actions check enterprise and lessen our national activities.

The underlying forces of recovery are asserting themselves.

There is no sudden stroke of either governmental or private action which can dissolve these world difficulties; patient, constructive action in a multitude of directions is the strategy of success. This battle is upon a thousand fronts.

Leaders of industry have cooperated in an extraordinary degree to maintain employment and sustain our standards of living. There have been exceptions, but they represent a small per cent of the whole.

Labor has cooperated in prevention of conflict. * * * We have freedom from strikes, lockouts and disorder unequaled even in prosperous times. We have made permanent gains in national solidarity.

The remedy to economic depression is not waste, but the creation and distribution of wealth.

From the experience of this depression will come not only a great-

DRUGGING OF BEAUTY BEFORE DEATH FIXED

Toxicologist Adds Important Link in Faithfull Case Investigation.

Mineola, N. Y., June 15 (A.P.).—The finding of an eminent toxicologist that Starr Faithfull was drugged into sleep before entering the stormy waters of the Atlantic near Long Beach was regarded by the State tonight as the most important piece of evidence thus far uncovered in its attempt to solve the mystery of the Greenwich Village beauty's death.

Dr. Alexander O. Goettler, of Bellevue Hospital, whose work in several celebrated murder cases has aided New York authorities, reported to District Attorney Elvin Edwards of Nassau County that the dead girl's liver contained sufficient quantities of a narcotic to have put her into a sound sleep, but not enough to have killed her.

An autopsy previously had disclosed she died of drowning, and a considerable quantity of sand was found in her lungs, indicating she had been tossed to her death, the State contended, in shallow water.

Detectives expressed the belief at once that the Faithfull girl had been at Long Beach before her death and that some one she was with had flung her into the sea either after administering the narcotic to her or upon becoming frightened at its effects.

Investigators suggested the theory that the girl's companion may have thought her dead and sought to dispose of the body.

The Long Island prosecutor said the toxicologist's finding "definitely places the victim at Long Beach before her death," a point which detectives for the last week have been trying to clear.

Belief that the narcotic was administered to Miss Starr was expressed by the district attorney, although the possibility still appeared it might have been self-taken. The amount of the narcotic found, however, seemed to support the suggestion that she was carried to the shore and left to die.

The search for missing items of the girl's clothing was pressed at Long Beach all day. Many cottages were visited and inquiries made of their occupants, but no person was found who admitted having seen her nor did the searchers locate her clothes. They sought a fur-trimmed cloth coat, some underwear and a shoe.

Meanwhile inquiries were going forward in Boston, Providence, R. I.,

SANCTION IS ASKED FOR SALE OF POST

Trustees of M'Lean Estate Seek Court Approval of Lawrence Offer.

Approval of the sale of The Washington Post to David Lawrence, publisher of the United States Daily, for $3,000,000 was asked of the District Supreme Court in a petition filed yesterday by Edward B. McLean and the American Security & Trust Co., trustees of the John R. McLean estate.

The sale agreement entered into by the trustees and Mr. Lawrence provides for the payment of $800,000 in cash, the remaining $2,200,000 to be secured by a close mortgage on The Post maturing in twenty years.

The petition asking court approval of the transaction was filed after a lengthy conference between counsel representing various interests and Justice Jesse C. Adkins in his chambers.

Justice Adkins fixed noon tomorrow for taking up the matter in open court. Then or in the interim other offers for The Post may be submitted and if any other offers are made they will be considered by the court. The offer contained in the agreement of sale between Mr. Lawrence and the trustees of the McLean estate has not been exceeded by others and no other interest has definitely stated a purpose to submit a better offer.

Acceptance of Mr. Lawrence's offer was approved by Ralph K. Quinter and Lucian H. Mercier, guardians ad litem for the three minor children of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McLean. They filed a brief and general report with the court, suggesting that a change be made in the sale agreement. Though the records did not disclose what change was suggested, it was said that this had to do with phraseology and was acceptable to counsel for both Mr. Lawrence and Mr. McLean and the American Security & Trust Co., which was represented at the conference by Corcoran Thom, its president.

Those attending the conference in Justice Adkins' chambers included George Edelin and Wilton J. Lambert, counsel for Mr. McLean; James S. Flannery, counsel for the American Security & Trust Co.; Mr. Thom; Frank J. Hogan, Albert W. Fox and Nelson T. Hartson, counsel for Mrs. McLean; Mr. Mercier, Mr. Quinter, Charles A. Douglas, and Geoffrey Konta, of New York, counsel for William Randolph Hearst; Louis G. Caldwell and W. W. Spalding, counsel for Mr. Lawrence. Mr. Caldwell refused to disclose what interests he represented, but he denied that he represented the owners of the Chicago Tribune.

TELLS EDITORS NATION SHOULD ABANDON FEAR

Points to Prosperity Era 'Greater Than Before' for Country.

ECONOMIC SITUATION HELD CHIEF PROBLEM

Revision of National and Local Taxation Seen as Relief Step.

DECLARES RECOVERY WILL NOT BE SPEEDY

Condemns Doles and Assails Critics Without Faith; Wins Applause.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 15 (A.P.).—President Hoover pointed the Nation tonight to an era of prosperity "greater than ever before" and called upon the people to replace the fear and apprehension of the depression with an armor of confidence.

"The underlying forces of recovery are asserting themselves," he assured. "Our transcendent momentary need is a much larger degree of confidence among our business agencies and that they shall extend this confidence in more than words.

"If our people will go forth with the confidence and enterprise which our country justifies, many of the mists of this depression will fade away."

Business Depression Dominant.

Mr. Hoover spoke before the Indiana Republican Editorial Association in the mammoth Fair Grounds Auditorium, where dinner was served to 5,200 editors and their families. He began his address with the declaration that "the business depression is the dominent subject before the county today."

From this platform in the heart of the region where Democrats scored many of their gains in the last Congressional election he then enunciated his economic policies, his plans for the future and his efforts of the present.

He proposed a revision of the whole national and local taxation system, with a view to relieving home owners, landowners, and farmers. He advocated revision of the Federal Reserve and national banking systems to prevent diversion of money into channels of speculation and stock promotion and give greater protection against failures. He condemned the capital gains and loss tax. He urged finally a faith in American ideals and a building up on that system rather than adoption of any new philosophy of government.

Proposes 20-Year Plan.

Referring to the Russian five-year plan "through which Russia is struggling to redeem herself from the ten years of starvation and misery," Mr. Hoover proposed an "American plan" to take care of a 20,000,000 increase in population in the next twenty years.

This plan in addition to increased internal developments of every kind included a "greater diffusion of wealth, a decrease in poverty and a great reduction in crime."

Mr. Hoover was introduced by Paul R. Bausman, of Washington, Ind., president of the association. He spoke over a radio network.

Accompanied by Gov. Leslie on a parade through the city to the Fairgrounds, the president found the route lined with crowds. Occasional hand-clapping marked his travel across the city.

Mr. Hoover suggested that the men at the dinner remove their coats and they did amid cheers. It was a sultry night.

Patient Action Necessary.

Drought Grip Grows On Northwest Crops

South Getting Pretty Dry, Ohio and Mississippi Valleys, Moisture Below Normal, Face Serious Threat, Says Weather Bureau Expert.

(Associated Press.)

Burning fingers of a crop-destroying drought are tightening their hold on a small cluster of States in the Northwest.

Wheat and other crops have suffered heavy losses during May and June, the important months in the spring wheat belt. Prospects for immediate relief were said to be slight. Rain must come soon to save the situation.

The South, too, J. B. Kincer, Weather Bureau meteorologist, said yesterday, is "getting pretty dry," but he emphasized that present indications do not point to a widespread drought paralleling the 1930 disaster which was echoed in Congress with appeals for financial aid.

While the Atlantic seaboard has had an abundance of moisture, the Ohio and Central Mississippi Valleys, hardest hit last year, received slightly below normal rainfall this spring.

Enough for present needs, this rain did not restore the depleted subsoil and Kincer said three or four weeks of hot sun would create a serious situation.

Spring and winter wheat in the Northwest, the important spring wheat section of the country, has been seriously damaged. The spring wheat condition June 1 was reported the poorest on record. Dryness has extended into the wheat belt of Canada, also, where heavy losses are feared. Recent rains, however, have brought some relief to a limited area in the Red River Valley of North and South Dakota.

Appeals for additional financial aid from the Government in the form of drought loans have been made on behalf of farmers in Montana and North Dakota. It was said that unless heavy rains come by July 1 crops would be a complete failure.

Senators Walsh, of Montana, and Caraway, of Arkansas, both Democrats, yesterday said a special session of Congress was necessary to deal with the situation.

The Arkansas senator advocated making a revolving fund of the $65,000,000 appropriated last year for drought loans, to be available in similar emergencies through the next five years.

The Agriculture Department said there was no authority for extending further loans from the fund.

Continuance of the Northwest drought may reopen the relief controversy which raged in the last Congress. A $10,000,000 fund was raised by the Red Cross during the stormy debate to care for drought sufferers. The Red Cross now is repeating caring for victims in Montana.

Kincer said the "accumulated deficiency of rainfall for nine years is what is hurting the Northwest now." For the group as a whole there has been a deficiency since 1922, with the exception of 1927. Minnesota has not had rainfall above normal in ten

CARDINAL PEDRO SEGURA Y SAENZ.

Interior Minister Assailed as Being Too Lenient With Segura.

Madrid, June 15 (A.P.).—While Cardinal Pedro Segura y Saenz, primate of Spain, was believed to be en route to France tonight, after being ordered expelled from the country by the government, anticlurch demonstrations took place in the streets of Guadalajara.

The manifestants demanded the resignation of Miguel Maura, minister of the interior, charging that he had ben too lenient in dealing with the cardinal.

One of the demeastrations, composed of 300 automobile factory workers, paraded the streets, carrying banners which read "Down with the clergy! Long live the republic!" and "Sterner justice against Segura." The party visited the governor's office and demanded Maura's resignation.

Meanwhile, observers believe that the situation between Vatican City and the Madrid authorities had be-

Throng Watches Beer Raid Near Government Printery

Large Quantity of Alleged Intoxicants and Gaming Machines Seized as Nine Are Arrested in Delicatessen Shop on H Street.

Descending on an alleged speakeasy within the shadow of the Government Printing Office, member of the Police Vice Squad, headed by Sergt. N. O. Holmes, last night seized a large quantity of alleged beer and liquor, confiscated several gaming machines and arrested nine persons.

Apparently a delicatessen store, the alleged speakeasy occupied the entire second floor of a building on H street northwest near Second street. Consisting of three rooms, the place was furnished with tables and chairs, while a large mahogany bar extended the length of a separate room in the front.

Just after 8 o'clock four members of the vice squad entered the delicatessen store. When they were recognized, a warning was sent to the upper floor, but as the patrons attempted to escape through the rear, they were met by several other members of the squad.

Persons in the street, seeing the raid in progress, stopped to gaze through the store window, and soon a crowd of more than 500 persons had gathered. Traffic in the vicinity was at a standstill for nearly an hour as patrol wagons arrived to cart away the confiscated beverages.

Case after case of alleged beer was lowered from the second floor window to a small roof. It was then transferred to the sidewalk and placed in patrol wagons and taken to the Sixth Precinct Station. The task took two hours.

Asked if the raid was the result of recent complaints by Public Printer George H. Carter that speakeasies were operating in the vicinity of the Government Printing Office, Sergt. Holmes replied that "you can judge for yourself by the location."

The establishment was raided less than six weeks ago, he declared and it was thought it had ceased operations.

big share of America's continued difficulties to world conditions and warned: "There is no sudden stroke of either governmental or private action which can dissolve the world difficulties. patient constructive action in a multitude of directions is the strategy of success—this battle is upon a thousand fronts."

The President was given an ovation of cheering and applause when he was introduced that lasted for almost two minutes. He prefaced his prepared address with a word of praise to the editors and an appreciation of his reception.

When Mr. Hoover referred to Senator Watson as "the distinguished majority leader of the Senate," he was interrupted by another round of applause and cheering. He lauded the entire Indiana congressional delegation.

Asserting the position of editors to be a most serious responsibility, he said: "The editors of the country fulfill their duties in a fashion that entitles them to the gratitude of the country."

Blames "Frozen Confidence."

Mr. Hoover spoke slowly and with emphasis. He was frequently interrupted by applause.

He inserted a line in his prepared address stating: "We are suffering more from frozen confidence than from frozen securities."

His declaratiin that immigration was being "rigidly excluded until our own people are employed" was cheered. His attacks upon critics and upon those who have "lost faith and agitate for the adoption of economic patent medicines from foreign lands" also were applauded.

He was interrupted again with his condemnation of doles and of Government unemployment insurance as a dole.

Upon the completion of his address the President again received a standing cheer and continued applause.

He departed immediately for the home of Gov. Leslie to spend the night. His special train leaves early tomorrow for Marion, Ohio, where he will dedicate the memorial to Warren G. Harding.

Row Over 50 Cent Debt Ends In Man's Shooting

John Fisher, colored, 30 years old, of Rockville, Md., was critically wounded last night in an argument over a 50 cent debt. He was shot in the stomach and in the leg with a small caliber automatic by Charles Herbert, also colored, 37 years old, of Rockville, according to Rockville police.

Fisher was taken to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, where his condition was declared critical. Herbert walked into the police headquarters at Rockville and surrendered to Headquarters Detective Roy Bodmer. He told the policeman that he had just returned from a trip to Mexico and that he "didn't take no foolishness."

years. Montana is now in its fourth year of deficiency.

Winnipeg, June 15 (A.P.).—Scattered showers predicted for tomorrow will be welcomed by farmers in western Canada, where grain lands still are in need of moisture.

Showers also are predicted for some Saskatchewan districts and the rain fall zone is likely to extend into Alberta.

Reports from Lethbridge, Alta., are that southern Alberta's wheat crop has a fairly generous supply of moisture and is growing rapidly. Early sown fields stand 10 inches and the average height is 6 inches.

With normal moisture an average crop is looked for. Most of Alberta, from Calgary south to the boundary, has had from 1 to 2 inches of rain this month to date.

Northern Alberta and a small portion of the southwestern part of the province has had less rain than desired. Crops look well in southeastern Alberta, where rains have been good.

Seattle, Wash., June 15 (A.P.).—The Department of Agriculture reported today lack of moisture and hot winds would cut deeply into the spring wheat yield in Montana, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington. The winter wheat yield in the four States, however, was estimated at 15,500,000 bushels more than a year ago.

Spring wheat figures compared to the average condition at this time were: Washington, 68 and 83; Oregon, 78 and 88; Idaho, 84 and 91; Montana, 53 and 86.

The department said rain in eastern Washington the last few days came too late to aid spring wheat.

Indicative of drought, rainfall at Spokane, from January 1, was 4.59 inches compared with an average of 8.37, Walla Walla, 7.29 compared with 9.07 and Yakima, 3.08 compared with 4.05.

Atlanta, Ga., June 15 (A.P.).—Need of rainfall in portions of the South was relieved in limited areas today by showers of a local nature.

Rain fell in southwestern Tennessee, eastern Arkansas and northern Mississippi, ending a three week's period of dry weather that was causing some damage to cotton and corn crops. Weather forecasts indicated continued showers in those areas tomorrow.

Rain likewise fell in sections of the Georgia peach belt, but growers felt it was not of sufficient duration to bring far-reaching relief. Rain continued falling in the Macon, Ga., area, late tonight.

Complete Text of President Hoover's Address To the Republican Journalists at Indianapolis

The text of the President's address to the Republican editors in Indianapolis follows:

The business depression is the dominant subject before the country and the world today. Its blight stretches from all quarters of the globe to every business place and every cottage door in our land. I propose to discuss it and the policies of the Government in respect to it.

Depressions are not new experiences, though none has hitherto been so widespread. We have passed through no less than fifteen major depressions in the last century. We have learned something as the result of each of these experiences. From this one we shall gain stiffening and economic discipline, a greater knowledge upon which we must build a better safeguarded system. We have come out of each previous depression into a period of prosperity greater than ever before. We shall do so this time.

As we look beyond the horizons of our own troubles and consider the events in other lands, we know that the main causes of the extreme violence and the long continuance of this depression came not from within but from outside the United States. Had our wild speculation; our stock promotion with its infinite losses and hardship to innocent people; our loose and extravagant business methods, and our unprecedented drought, been our only disasters we would have recovered months ago.

A large part of the forces which have swept our shores from abroad are the malign inheritances in Europe of the Great War—its huge taxes, its mounting armament, its political and social instability, its disruption of economic life by the new boundaries. Without the war we would have no such depression. Upon these war origins are superimposed the overrapid expansion of production and collapse of many foreign raw materials. The demonetization of silver in certain countries and a score of more remote causes have all contributed to dislocation. Some particular calamity has happened to nearly every country in the world, and the difficulties of each have intensified the unemployment and financial difficulties of all the others. As either the cause or the effect, we have witnessed armed revolutions within the past two years in a score of nations, not to mention disturbed political life in many others. Political instability has affected three-fourths of the population of the world.

Country Independent Economically.

I do not at all minimize the economic interdependence of the world, but despite this the potential and redeeming strength of the United States in the face of this situation is that we are economically more self-contained than any other great nation. This degree of independence gives assurance that with the passing of the temporary dislocations and shocks we can and will make a large measure of recovery irrespective of the rest of the world. We did so with even worse foreign conditions in 1921.

We can roughly indicate this high degree of self-containment. Our average annual production of movable goods before the depression was about $50,000,000,000. We exported yearly about $5,000,000,000, or 10 per cent. The world disruption has temporarily reduced our exports to about $3,500,000,000. In other words, the shrinkage of foreign trade by $1,500,000,000 amounts to only 2 or 3 per cent of our total productivity. Yet as a result of all the adverse forces our production has been reduced by, roughly, $10,000,000,000 or $12,000,000,000. This sharp contrast between a national shrinkage of, say, $12,000,000,000 and a loss of $1,500,000,000 from export trade is an indication of the disarrangement of our own internal production and consumption entirely apart from that resulting from decreased sales abroad.

Some of this enlarged dislocation is also due to the foreign effects upon prices of commodities and securities. Moreover, the repeated shocks from political disturbance and revolution in foreign countries stimulate fear and hesitation among our business men. These fears and apprehensions are unnecessarily increased by that minority of people who would make political capital out of the depression through magnifying our unemployment and losses. Other small groups in the business world make their contribution to distress by raids on our markets with purpose to profit from depreciation of securities and commodities. Both groups are within the law; they are equally condemned by our public and business opinion; they are by no means helpful to the Nation.

Fear and apprehension, whether their origins are domestic or foreign, are very real, tangible, economic forces. Fear of loss of a job or uncertainty as to the future has caused millions of our people unnecessarily to reduce their purchases of goods, thereby decreasing our production and employment. These uncertainties lead our bankers and business men to extreme caution, and in consequence a mania for liquidation has reduced our stocks of goods and our credits far below any necessity. All these apprehensions and actions check enterprise and lessen our national activities.

With no desire to minimize the realities of suffering or the stern task of recovery, we must appraise the other side of this picture. If we proceed with sanity, we must not look only at the empty hole in the middle of the doughnut.

Nation's Resources Marvelous.

We must bear in mind at all times our marvelous resources in land, mines, mills, man power, brain power, and courage. Over 95 per cent of our families have either an income or a breadwinner employed. Our people are working harder and are resolutely engaged, individually and collectively, in overhauling and improving their methods and services. That is the fundamental method of repair to the wreckage from our boom of two years ago; it is the remedy to the impacts from abroad. It takes time, but it is going on. Although fear has resulted in unnecessary reduction in spending, yet these very reductions are piling up savings in our savings banks until today they are the largest in our history. Surplus money does not remain idle for long. Ultimately it is the most insistent promoter of enterprise and of optimism. Consumption of retail goods in many lines is proceeding at a higher rate than last year. The harvest prospects indicate recovery from the drought and increased employment in handling the crop. Revolutions in many countries have spent themselves, and stability is on the ascendancy. The underlying forces of recovery are asserting themselves.

For the first time in history the Federal Government has taken an extensive and positive part in mitigating the effects of depression and expediting recovery. I have conceived that if we would preserve our democracy the leadership must take the part not of attempted dictatorship but of organizing cooperation in the constructive forces of the community and of stimulating every element of initiative and self-reliance in the country. There is no sudden stroke of either governmental or private action which can dissolve these world difficulties; patient, constructive action in a multitude of directions is the strategy of success. This battle is upon a thousand fronts.

I shall not detain you by long exposition of these very extensive activities of our Government, for they are already well known. We have assured the country from panic and its hurricane of bankruptcy by coordinated action between the Treasury and the Federal Reserve system, the banks, the Farm Loan and Farm Board system. We have steadily urged the maintenance of wages and salaries, preserving American standards of living, not alone for its contribution to consumption of goods, but with the far greater purpose of maintaining social good-will through avoiding industrial conflict with its suffering and social disorder.

Available Work Distributed.

We are maintaining organized cooperation with industry systematically to distribute the available work so as to give income to as many families as possible.

We have reversed the traditional policy in depressions of reducing expenditures upon construction work. We are maintaining a steady expansion of ultimately needed construction work in cooperation with the States, municipalities and industries. Over two billions of dollars is being expended, and today a million men are being given direct and indirect employment through these enlarged activities. We have sustained the people in 21 States who faced dire disaster from the drought. We are giving aid and support to the farmers in marketing their crops, by which they have realized hundreds of millions more in prices than the farmers of any other country. Through the tariff we are saving our farmers and workmen from being overwhelmed with goods from foreign countries where, even since our tariff was revised, wages and prices have been reduced to much lower levels than before.

We are holding down taxation by exclusion of every possible governmental expenditure not absolutely esechtial or needed in increase of employment or assistance to the farmers. We are rigidly excluding immigration until our own people are employed. The departures and deportations today actually exceed arrivals. We are maintaining and will maintain systematic voluntary organization in the community in aid of employment and care for distress. There are a score of other directions in which cooperation is organized and stimulation given. We propose to go forward with these major activities and policies. We will not be diverted from them.

By these and other measures which we shall develop as the occasion shall require, we shall keep this ship steady in the storm. We will prevent any unnecessary distress in the United States, and by the activities and courage of the American people we will recover from the depression.

Leaders Are Praised.

I would be remiss if I did not pay tribute to the business, industrial, labor and agricultural leaders for their remarkable spirit of cooperation. Their action is magnificent proof of the fundamental progress of American institutions, of our growth in social and economic understanding, of our sense of responsibility, and of human brotherhood.

Leaders of industry have cooperated in an extraordinary degree to maintain employment and sustain our standards of living. There have been exceptions, but they represent a small per cent of the whole. Labor has cooperated in prevention of conflict in giving greater effort and consequently in reducing unit costs. We have had freedom from strikes, lockouts and disorder unequaled even in prosperous times. We have made permanent gains in national solidarity.

Our people can take justifiable pride that their united efforts have greatly reduced unemployment which would have otherwise been our fate; it is heavy, but proportionally it is less than one-half that of other industrial countries. Great as have been our difficulties, no man can contrast them with our experiences in previous great depressions or with the condition of other important industrial countries without a glow of pride in our American system and a confidence in its future.

While we are fostering the slow but positive processes of the healing of our economic wounds, our citizens are necessarily filled with anxiety, and in their anxiety there is the natural demand for more and more drastic action by the Federal Government. Many of their suggestions are sound and helpful. Every suggestion which comes within the proper authority and province of the Executive is given most earnest consideration. We are, of course, confronted with scores of theoretical panaceas which, however well intended, would inevitably delay recovery. Some timid people, black with despair, have lost faith in our American system They demand abrupt and positive change. Others have seized upon the opportunities of discontent to agitate for the adoption of economic patent medicines from foreign lands Others have indomitable confidence that by some legerdemain we can legislate ourselves out of a world-wide depression. Such views are as accurate as the belief we can exorcise a Caribbean hurricane by statutory law.

Against Robbing Capital.

For instance, nothing can be gained in recovery of employment by detouring capital away from industry and commerce into the Treasury of the United States, either by taxes or loans, on the assumption that the Government can create more employment by use of these funds than can industry and commerce itself. While I am a strong advocate of expansion of useful public works in hard times, and we have trebled our Federal expenditure in aid to unemployment, yet there are limitations upon the application of this principle Not only must we refrain from robbing industry and commerce of its capital, and thereby increasing unemployment, but such works require long engineering and legal interludes before they produce actual employment. Above all, schemes of public works which have no reproductive value would result in sheer waste. The remedy to economic depression is not waste, but the creation and distribution of wealth.

It has been urged that the Federal Government should abandon its system of employment agencies and should appropriate large sums to subsidize their establishment in other hands. I have refused to accept such schemes, as they would in many places endow political organizations with the gigantic patronage of workmen's jobs. That would bring about the most vicious tyranny ever set up in the United States. We have instead expanded our Federal Government agencies which are on nonpolitical basis. They are of far greater service to labor.

We have had one proposal after another which amounts to a dole from the Federal Treasury. The largest is that of unemployment insurance. I have long advocated such insurance as an additional measure of safety against rainy days, but only through private enterprise or through cooperation of industry and labor itself. The moment the Government enters into this field it invariably degenerates into the dole. For nothing can withstand the political pressures which carry governments over this dangerous border. The net results of governmental doles are to lower wages toward the bare subsistence level and to endow the slacker. It imposes the injustice of huge burdens upon farmers and other callings which receive no benefits. I am proud that so representative an organization as the American Federation of Labor has refused to approve such schemes.

There have been some complaints from foreign countries over the revision of our tariff and it is proposed that we can expedite recovery by another revision. Nothing would more prolong the depression than a session of Congress devoted to this purpose. There are no doubt inequities and inequalities in some of our tariff rates; that is inherent in any congressional revision. But we have for the first time effective machinery in motion through a Tariff Commission with authority for any necessary rectification. And that machinery is functioning.

About Farm Tariff.

An analysis indicates that the large majority of these foreign complaints are directed against added protection we have given to agriculture. I believe that some of these countries do not realize the profound hardship which they themselves—with no malevolent purpose—have imposed on the American farmer. Improved machinery, the development of refrigeration and cheapening of sea transportation have created for them great resources from their virgin lands and cheaper labor. As a result they have taken profitable export markets from the American farmer. There have been complaints from older nations who import a portion of their food products and export another portion.

Yet these nations look upon their own agriculture as a way of life and as vital to their national security, and have long since adopted protective tariffs against the special farm products of the United States. We do not reproach them, for we, too, look upon a healthy agriculture as indispensable to the Nation. The growth of our industrial population will ultimately absorb the production of our farmers, but our agriculture was attuned to the export business and is of necessity passing a prolonged crisis in its shift to a domestic basis. Our tariff had proved so low that our farmers were being crowded even from the domestic market in many products which by use as diversification they can substitute to take up the slack in export business. From that condition we have given him protection, and we stand upon it.

In this connection I noted with interest that the International Chamber of Commerce in its recent meeting in Washington in effect recommended to the world the adoption of this method of the American tariff, although it was not referred to by name. Our visitors found the American tariff act unique in the field of tariff legislation, as it defines the principle of our tariff by law. That is the difference in cost of production at home and abroad. They found in our new Tariff Commission the creation of a tribunal open to every interested party empowered and ready to deal with any variations from this principle. They found a tariff without discriminations among nations. They recommended universal adoption of similar principles. Indeed, such a course would greatly modify tariffs in general. It would promote the commerce of the world by removing discriminations, preferences and uncertainties.

Domestic Prosperity First.

But it is not my purpose upon this occasion to discuss the relations of our many economic problems to the problems of other nations. I am not unmindful of our responsibilities or our vital interest in their welfare. The very first service to them must be to place our own house in order; to restore our own domestic prosperity. It is from increases in our reservoir of economic strength that has and must come our contribution to the development and recovery of the world. From our prosperity comes our demand for their goods and raw materials. A prosperous United States is the beginning of a prosperous world.

With industry as well as agriculture we are concerned not merely in the immediate problems of the depression. From the experience of this depression will come not only a greatly sobered and more efficient economic system than we possessed two years ago but a greater knowledge of its weaknesses as well as a greater intelligence in correcting them. When the time comes that we can look at this depression objectively it will be our duty searchingly to examine every phase of it.

We can already observe some directions to which endeavor must be pointed. For instance, it is obvious that the Federal reserve system was inadequate to prevent a large diversion of capital and bank deposits from commercial and industrial business into wasteful speculation and stock promotion. It is obvious our banking system must be organized to give greater protection to depositors against failures. It is equally obvious that we must determine whether the facilities of our security and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions. It is obvious that our taxes upon capital gains viciously promote the booms and just as viciously intensify depressions. In order to avoid taxes, real estate and stocks are withheld from the market in times of rising prices, and for the same reason large quantities are dumped on the market in times of depression.

Offers 20-Year Plan.

The experiences of this depression indeed demand that the Nation carefully and deliberately reconsider the whole national and local problem of the incidence of taxation. The undue proportion of taxes which falls upon farmers, home owners and all real-property holders as compared to other forms of wealth and income demands real relief. There are far wider questions of our social and economic life which this experience will illuminate. We shall know much more of the method of still further advance toward stability, security and wider diffusion of the benefits of our economic system.

We have many citizens insisting that we produce an advance "plan" for the future development of the United States. They demand that we produce it right now. I presume the "plan" idea is an infection from the slogan of the "5-year plan" through which Russia is struggling to redeem herself from the ten years of starvation and misery. I am able to propose an American plan to you. We plan to take care of 20,000,000 increase in population in the next twenty years. We plan to build for them 4,000,000 new and better homes, thousands of new and still more beautiful city buildings, thousands of factories; to increase the capacity of our railways; to add thousands of miles of highways and waterways; to install 25,000,000 electrical horsepower; to grow 20 per cent more farm products. We plan to provide new parks, schools, colleges and churches for this 20,000,000 people. We plan more leisure for men and women and better opportunities for its enjoyment. We not only plan to provide for all the new generation, but we shall, by scientific research and invention, lift the standard of living and security of life to the whole people.

We plan to secure a greater diffusion of wealth, a decrease in poverty and a great reduction in crime. And this plan will be carried out if we just keep on giving the American people a chance. Its impulsive force is in the character and spirit of our people. They have already done a better job for 120,000,000 people than any other nation in all history.

Some groups believe this plan can only be carried out by a fundamental, a revolutionary change of method. Other groups believe that any system must be the outgrowth of the character of our race, a natural outgrowth of our traditions; that we have established certain ideals over 150 years upon which we must build rather than destroy.

If we analyze the ideas which have been put forward for handling our great national plan, they fall into two groups. The first is whether we shall go on with our American system which holds that the major purpose of a State is to protect the people and to give them equality of opportunity, that the basis of all happiness is in development of the individual, that the sum of progress can only be gauged by the progress of the individual, that we should steadily build up cooperation among the people themselves to these ends. The other idea is that we shall directly or indirectly regiment the population into a bureaucracy to serve the state, that we should use force instead of cooperation in plans and thereby direct every man as to what he may or may not do.

Practical Questions Stated.

These ideas present themselves in practical questions which we have to meet. Shall we abandon the philosophy and creed of our people for 150 years by turning to a creed foreign to our people? Shall we establish a dole from the Federal Treasury? Shall we undertake Federal ownership and operation of public utilities instead of the rigorous regulation of them to prevent imposition? Shall we protect our people from the lower standards of living of foreign countries? Shall the Government, except in temporary national emergencies, enter upon business processes in competition with its citizens? Shall we regiment our people by an extension of the arm of bureaucracy into a multitude of affairs?

The future welfare of our country, so dear to you and to me for ourselves and our children, depends upon the answer given.

Our immediate and paramount task as a people is to rout the forces of economic disruption and pessimism that have swept upon us. The exacting duty of government in these times is by use of its agencies and its influence to strengthen our economic institutions; by inspiring cooperation in the community to sustain good will and to keep our country free of disorder and conflict; by cooperation with the people to assure that the deserving shall not suffer, and by the conduct of government to strengthen the foundations of a better and stronger national life. These have been the objectives of my administration in dealing with this, the greatest crisis the world has ever known. I shall adhere to them.

If, as many believe, we have passed the worst of this storm, future months will not be difficult. If we shall be called upon to endure more of this period, we must gird ourselves to steadfast effort, to fail at no point where humanity calls or American ideals are in jeopardy.

Our transcendent monetary need is a much larger degree of confidence among our business agencies and that they shall extend this confidence in more than words. If our people will go forth with the confidence and enterprise which our country justifies, many of the mists of this depression will fade away.

In conclusion, whatever the immediate difficulties may be, we know they are transitory in our lives and in the life of the Nation. We should have full faith and confidence in those mighty resources, those intellectual and spiritual forces, which have impelled this Nation to a success never before known in the history of the world. Far from being impaired, these forces were never stronger than at this moment. Under the guidance of Divine Providence they will return to us a greater and more wholesome prosperity than we have ever known.

Driver of Murder Car Tried Swiftly

Man Accused in Finding of Nude Body, Later Brought Here, in Court.

Elizabeth, N. J., June 15 (A.P.).—The State in three hours today completed the case by which it hopes to send William Hoore Frazer to the electric chair for the murder of Mrs. Phoebe Quick Staber, Rahway matron, whose body he carried in an automobile to Virginia.

The prosecution contented itself with placing on the stand witnesses to corroborate a written statement assertedly made by Frazer at the time of his arrest four months ago, in which he said he accidentally shot the woman. No attempt was made to prove premeditation or motive, the prosecution pointing out it was unnecessary to do so for capital crime in New Jersey.

A motion by defense counsel for dismissal was denied.

Frazer carried Mrs. Stader's body through Washington, the State charges. It was found nude in a field near the Washington-Richmond highway. William McGrath, 16, of Allenhurst, N. J., had declared that Frazer gave him a ride near Petersburg, Va., and burned some blood-stained garments when they built a fire to cook food. Frazer later was brought through the Capital on his way to stand trial.

Paraguayan Incursion In Chaco Area Rumored

La Paz, Bolivia, June 15 (A.P.).—Reports were received here today that an incursion has been made by Paraguayans into the disputed Chaco territory. No details were available and the chief of staff said he had received no official confirmation.

Advices from Montevideo, Uruguay, last Wednesday said that unrest existed in the Chaco region and that both the Bolivian and Paraguayan governments had sent notes to the five powers who settled the conflict between the two countries by arbitration in Washington in 1930.

could make much headway in the preferential primaries in those States.

Borah Grows Regular.

Friends of Senator Norris are expected to put him forward in the Nebraska presidential primary, and friends of Senator Hiram Johnson are expected to try and line up a delegation for him in California.

The one man on whom all the Republican insurgents might agree is Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, but that capricious statesman has no thought of lending himself to a presidential boom at this time.

"Borah," said one well-posted politician yesterday, "already has begun to get regular, and he will grow more regular as the campaign draws near."

The workers in the Republican national committee are no longer concerned about the preconvention campaign. They are proceeding on the theory that President Hoover will be renominated on the first ballot. Consequently they are looking beyond the convention, looking to the election campaign itself.

A Gentle Hint to A College Dean

This is the season when honorary degrees are bestowed on prominent leaders in finance and business in recognition of their services to mankind. Will Rogers, the humorist, recently declined to accept any honorary degree except "A. D.," which he defined as "Doctor of Applesauce," but if some genial institution of learning wishes to confer an honorary degree upon American Ice, we would modestly suggest the degree "T. Q. D.," or "Doctor of Thirst Quenching." For American Ice has been performing this healthful and kindly service for hundreds of thousands of men and women, in every walk of life, for many years.

FRIENDSHIP 'ENVOYS' TO SAIL TOMORROW

Col. Moss Defends Project From Charge It Smacks of Pacificism.

A pleasure jaunt to Fort McHenry yesterday marked the Baltimore stopover of the ten boys and girls who will sail from New York tomorrow as "Envoys of Friendship" to Europe.

The party in the afternoon left Baltimore for Philadelphia, accompanied by Col. James A. Moss, president general of the United States Flag Association. In the group were Miss Dorothy Skirm and Thomas J. Hayes 3d, of Washington, selected by the association with the cooperation of The Post.

One girl, Catherine DuBois, of Washington, was not able to be with the party yesterday, but will join her companions in New York in time to sail on the liner France.

Reception in Baltimore.

Among those equipped with cameras, who got in a good morning's work at Fort McHenry, was 14-year-old Charles C. Holbrook, of College Park, who represents the boys' division of the Young Men's Christian Association. He said he doesn't plan to miss anything with his camera while abroad either.

The party arrived at the Pennsylvania Station in Baltimore at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. They jumped into a waiting bus and were whisked away to Fort McHenry, with traffic cleared for them by a two-man motorcycle escort supplied by Police Commissioner Charles D. Gaither.

Col. Moss took occasion in Baltimore to answer some of the charges that have been made against himself and the good will project.

Moss Defends Project.

"One of the charges leveled at me was that I am a pacifist and that this trip is an effort to spread pacifism," he said. "However, I am about as much of a pacifist as was Gen. Foch. I believe sincerely that pacifism is a pernicious influence. I believe that any immediate rise or spread of pacifism would be pernicious.

"But I do feel that eventual peace is a thing to be desired. And I am working toward that eventual peace. It may take two or three generations, but I believe that we will some day be able to instill into our youth a spirit of friendship and cooperation, so that when international arguments arise those in power will seek not the battlefield, but the conference table."

The group will reach Plymouth, England, June 23 and two days later will be received by the Lord Mayor of London.

FLAG ENVOYS VISIT HISTORIC FORT McHENRY

SLOW SPEED MADE IN TOWING NAUTILUS

Battleship Wyoming Draws Submarine Toward Ireland; Tug May Go to Aid.

(Associated Press.)

With the polar submarine Nautilus in tow, the battleship Wyoming made slow way toward Queenstown, Ireland, last night, while Navy Department officials sought to have a tug sent out to relieve her.

Rear Admiral Claude C. Bloch radioed the chief of naval operations here that in his opinion the Nautilus, in which Sir Hubert Wilkins plans an undersea dash to the North Pole, would have to be towed all the way. On Bloch's recommendation, Admiral William V. Pratt, wired W. Herbert Adams, New York manager of the Wilkins expedition, strongly urging him to have a tug sent from Queenstown immediately.

Meanwhile the battleship Arkansas left the Wyoming and Nautilus behind and steamed on for Copenhagen. The battleships, bound for Europe with 975 midshipmen on their summer cruise, had been delayed nearly two days in going to the assistance of the submarine.

Heavy seas made it impossible to get a line to the Nautilus until early yesterday morning after the battleships had stood by all night and most of Sunday.

When the Nautilus finally was made fast to a steel cable 6 inches in diameter and the Wyoming started with its tow for Queenstown, it was found a rate of speed of no more than 5 knots could be maintained. At this rate the Wyoming faced the prospect of a week of steady sailing before reaching the Irish port. The engines of the submarine were still disabled and her batteries were dead.

Navy officers expressed the belief yesterday that the breakdown would lead to greater precaution and less hazard of a mishap in the trip beneath the ice to the pole.

They voiced a hunch that the encraft will have spart parts aboard gines and batteries of the Nautilus would be given a thorough overhauling, with a long test run before the craft starts its polar journey. The when it starts for the pole.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, June 15 (U.P.).—Capt. Ernst Lehmann, second in command to Dr. Hugo Eckner of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, said tonight he was unaware of any change in the plans for the Graf Zeppelin to meet the submarine Nautilus in the Arctic.

"If any change were intended, I would be the first to know it," Lehman said.

Tell Fraud Case Jury Only Contract Price on Homes Was Exacted.

A procession of witnesses went before a jury yesterday in the trial of Jacob B. Shapiro on charges of using the mails to defraud. Most of the witnesses were purchasers of property from Shapiro.

Letters alleged to have been written and sent through the mails to purchasers were introduced in evidence. These letters purported to set forth the encumberances on the property for which the purchasers were at that time negotiating.

United States Attorney John Flhelly brought out from the witnesses that in some cases there were trusts on their property about which they knew nothing for several months after they had contracted to buy their homes. The letters were used to show that the real estate company did not disclose all of the trusts on the property.

In each instance, however, Defense Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer established that the trusts which had not been disclosed to the home buyers were later paid off by Shapiro. Mr. Newmyer asked each witness if the additional trust has cost him any money and if the contract price for the property was not all that he had been called upon to pay. In every instance, the answers to these questions were that Shapiro had paid off the trusts, and that the agreed price for their property was all that they had to pay.

The Shapiro case will probably take another week.

Central High Class of 1885 Will Frolic Saturday Night

Central High School's class of 1885 is going back to school.

Classroom will be at Wardman Park Hotel, and a vigorous effort is being made by Mrs. M. M. McNamee, of Rosslyn, Va., to round up enough of the '85 graduates to have a full class when the teacher calls the roll Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

There were 150 members of the class, many of whom still live in Washington and adjacent communities. However, Mrs. McNamee is having a difficult time locating many of them, and has asked The Post to aid her so that they may be urged to attend the reunion.

Mrs. McNamee, who was Miss Bertha Armstrong until shortly after the '85 commencement exercises, may be reached by calling Clarendon 1338.

JAPANESE REDUCE NEW SKYSCRAPER

Ancient Law Forbids Anyone to Look Down Upon the Emperor.

Tokyo, June 15 (A.P.).—Tradition lopped off the top of Japan's tallest building because it overlooked the domicile of Emperor Hirohito.

In Japan no one may look down upon the emperor. The restriction dates back 2,591 years to the reign of Jimmu, founder of the empire.

Workmen had nearly completed a tower on the new $1,500,000 police administration building before it was realized that the new structure overtopped the imperial palace by several hundred feet. The two edifices are only a stone's throw apart.

When the discovery was made, high officials held a hurried conference and the next day the tower began to recede. The blunder was blamed on an architect.

When the emperor in his motor car passes through the streets, all window blinds above the first stories are drawn and police caution the residents not to peek. The regulation applies equally to foreigners.

big share of America's continued difficulties to world conditions and warned: "There is no sudden stroke of either governmental or private action which can dissolve the world difficulties; patient constructive action in a multitude of directions is the strategy of success—this battle is upon a thousand fronts."

The President was given an ovation of cheering and applause when he was introduced that lasted for almost two minutes. He prefaced his prepared address with a word of praise to the editors and an appreciation of his reception.

When Mr. Hoover referred to Senator Watson as "the distinguished majority leader of the Senate," he was interrupted by another round of applause and cheering. He lauded the entire Indiana congressional delegation.

Asserting the position of editors to be a most serious responsibility, he said: "The editors of the country fulfill their duties in a fashion that entitles them to the gratitude of the country."

Blames "Frozen Confidence."

Mr. Hoover spoke slowly and with emphasis. He was frequently interrupted by applause.

He inserted a line in his prepared address stating: "We are suffering more from frozen confidence than from frozen securities."

His declaratiin that immigration was being "rigidly excluded until our own people are employed" was cheered. His attacks upon critics and upon those who have "lost faith and agitate for the adoption of economic patent medicines from foreign lands" also were applauded.

He was interrupted again with his condemnation of doles and of Government unemployment insurance as a dole.

Upon the completion of his address the President again received a standing cheer and continued applause.

He departed immediately for the home of Gov. Leslie to spend the night. His special train leaves early tomorrow for Marion, Ohio, where he will dedicate the memorial to Warren G. Harding.

Row Over 50 Cent Debt Ends In Man's Shooting

John Fisher, colored, 30 years old, of Rockville, Md., was critically wounded last night in an argument over a 50 cent debt. He was shot in the stomach and in the leg with a small caliber automatic by Charles Herbert, also colored, 37 years old, of Rockville, according to Rockville police.

Fisher was taken to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, where his condition was declared critical. Herbert walked into the police headquarters at Rockville and surrendered to Headquarters Detective Roy Bodmer. He told the policeman that he had just returned from a trip to Mexico and that he "didn't take no foolishness."

years. Montana is now in its fourth year of deficiency.

Winnipeg, June 15 (A.P.).—Scattered showers predicted for tomorrow will be welcomed by farmers in western Canada, where grain lands still are in need of moisture.

Showers also are predicted for some Saskatchewan districts and the rain fall zone is likely to extend into Alberta.

Reports from Lethbridge, Alta., are that southern Alberta's wheat crop has a fairly generous supply of moisture and is growing rapidly. Early sown fields stand 10 inches and the average height is 6 inches.

With normal moisture an average crop is looked for. Most of Alberta, from Calgary south to the boundary, has had from 1 to 2 inches of rain this month to date.

Northern Alberta and a small portion of the southwestern part of the province has had less rain than desired. Crops look well in southeastern Alberta, where rains have been good.

Seattle, Wash., June 15 (A.P.).—The Department of Agriculture reported today lack of moisture and hot winds would cut deeply into the spring wheat yield in Montana, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington. The winter wheat yield in the four States, however, was estimated at 15,500,000 bushels more than a year ago.

Spring wheat figures compared to the average condition at this time were: Washington, 68 and 83; Oregon, 78 and 88; Idaho, 84 and 91; Montana, 53 and 86.

The department said rain in eastern Washington the last few days came too late to aid spring wheat.

Indicative of drought, rainfall at Spokane from January 1, was 4.59 inches compared with an average of 8.37, Walla Walla, 7.29 compared with 9.07 and Yakima, 3.08 compared with 4.05.

Atlanta, Ga., June 15 (A.P.).—Need of rainfall in portions of the South was relieved in limited areas today by showers of a local nature.

Rain fell in southwestern Tennessee, eastern Arkansas and northern Mississippi, ending a three week's period of dry weather that was causing some damage to cotton and corn crops. Weather forecasts indicated continued showers in those areas tomorrow.

Rain likewise fell in sections of the Georgia peach belt, but growers felt it was not of sufficient duration to bring far-reaching relief. Rain continued falling in the Macon, Ga., area, late tonight.

ly sobered and more efficient economic system * * * but a greater knowledge of its weaknesses as well as a greater intelligence in correcting them.

Our immediate and paramount task as a people is to rout the forces of economic disruption and pessimism that have swept upon us.

Our trenscendent monetary need is a much larger degree of confidence among our business agencies, and that they shall extend their confidence in more than words.

She was treated for cuts and bruises at Emergency Hospital, where she was taken by James R. Curtis, 22, of 2209 Thirteenth street northwest, driver of the truck.

Complete Text of President Hoover's Address To the Republican Journalists at Indianapolis

The text of the President's address to the Republican editors in Indianapolis follows:

The business depression is the dominant subject before the country and the world today. Its blight stretches from all quarters of the globe to every business place and every cottage door in our land. I propose to discuss it and the policies of the Government in respect to it.

Depressions are not new experiences, though none has hitherto been so widespread. We have passed through no less than fifteen major depressions in the last century. We have learned something as the result of each of these experiences. From this one we shall gain stiffening and economic discipline, a greater knowledge upon which we must build a better safeguarded system. We have come out of each previous depression into a period of prosperity greater than ever before. We shall do so this time.

As we look beyond the horizons of our own troubles and consider the events in other lands, we know that the main causes of the extreme violence and the long continuance of this depression came not from within but from outside the United States. Had our wild speculation; our stock promotion with its infinite losses and hardship to innocent people; our loose and extravagant business methods, and our unprecedented drought, been our only disasters we would have recovered months ago.

A large part of the forces which have swept our shores from abroad are the malign inheritances in Europe of the Great War—its huge taxes, its mounting armament, its political and social instability, its disruption of economic life by the new boundaries. Without the war we would have no such depression. Upon these war origins are superimposed the overrapid expansion of production and collapse of many foreign raw materials. The demonetization of silver in certain countries and a score of more remote causes have all contributed to dislocation. Some particular calamity has happened to nearly every country in the world, and the difficulties of each have intensified the unemployment and financial difficulties of all the others. As either the cause or the effect, we have witnessed armed revolutions within the past two years in a score of nations, not to mention disturbed political life in many others. Political instability has affected three-fourths of the population of the world.

Country Independent Economically.

I do not at all minimize the economic interdependence of the world, but despite this the potential and redeeming strength of the United States in the face of this situation is that we are economically more self-contained than any other great nation. This degree of independence gives assurance that with the passing of the temporary dislocations and shocks we can and will make a large measure of recovery irrespective of the rest of the world. We did so with even worse foreign conditions in 1921.

We can roughly indicate this high degree of self-containment. Our average annual production of movable goods before the depression was about $50,000,000,000. We exported yearly about $5,000,000,000, or 10 per cent. The world disruption has temporarily reduced our exports to about $3,500,000,000. In other words, the shrinkage of foreign trade by $1,500,000,000 amounts to only 2 or 3 per cent of our total productivity. Yet as a result of all the adverse forces our production has been reduced by, roughly, $10,000,000,000 or $12,000,000,000. This sharp contrast between a national shrinkage of, say, $12,000,000,000 and a loss of $1,500,000,000 from export trade is an indication of the disarrangement of our own internal production and consumption entirely apart from that resulting from decreased sales abroad.

Some of this enlarged dislocation is also due to the foreign effects upon prices of commodities and securities. Moreover, the repeated shocks from political disturbance and revolution in foreign countries stimulate fear and hesitation among our business men. These fears and apprehensions are unnecessarily increased by that minority of people who would make political capital out of the depression through magnifying our unemployment and losses. Other small groups in the business world make their contribution to distress by raids on our markets with purpose to profit from depreciation of securities and commodities. Both groups are within the law; they are equally condemned by our public and business opinion; they are by no means helpful to the Nation.

Fear and apprehension, whether their origins are domestic or foreign, are very real, tangible, economic forces. Fear of loss of a job or uncertainty as to the future has caused millions of our people unnecessarily to reduce their purchases of goods, thereby decreasing our production and employment. These uncertainties lead our bankers and business men to extreme caution, and in consequence a mania for liquidation has reduced our stocks of goods and our credits far below any necessity. All these apprehensions and actions check enterprise and lessen our national activities.

With no desire to minimize the realities of suffering or the stern task of recovery, we must appraise the other side of this picture. If we proceed with sanity, we must not look only at the empty hole in the middle of the doughnut.

Nation's Resources Marvelous.

We must bear in mind at all times our marvelous resources in land, mines, mills, man power, brain power, and courage. Over 95 per cent of our families have either an income or a breadwinner employed. Our people are working harder and are resolutely engaged, individually and collectively, in overhauling and improving their methods and services. That is the fundamental method of repair to the wreckage from our boom of two years ago; it is the remedy to the impacts from abroad. It takes time, but it is going on. Although fear has resulted in unnecessary reduction in spending, yet these very reductions are piling up savings in our savings banks until today they are the largest in our history. Surplus money does not remain idle for long. Ultimately it is the most insistent promoter of enterprise and of optimism. Consumption of retail goods in many lines is proceeding at a higher rate than last year. The harvest prospects indicate recovery from the drought and increased employment in handling the crop. Revolutions in many countries have spent themselves, and stability is on the ascendancy. The underlying forces of recovery are asserting themselves.

For the first time in history the Federal Government has taken an extensive and positive part in mitigating the effects of depression and expediting recovery. I have conceived that if we would preserve our democracy the leadership must take the part not of attempted dictatorship but of organizing cooperation in the constructive forces of the community and of stimulating every element of initiative and self-reliance in the country. There is no sudden stroke of either governmental or private action which can dissolve these world difficulties; patient, constructive action in a multitude of directions is the strategy of success. This battle is upon a thousand fronts.

I shall not detain you by long exposition of these very extensive activities of our Government, for they are already well known. We have assured the country from panic and its hurricane of bankruptcy by coordinated action between the Treasury and the Federal Reserve system, the banks, the Farm Loan and Farm Board system. We have steadily urged the maintenance of wages and salaries, preserving American standards of living, not alone for its contribution to consumption of goods, but with the far greater purpose of maintaining social good-will through avoiding industrial conflict with its suffering and social disorder.

Available Work Distributed.

We are maintaining organized cooperation with industry systematically to distribute the available work so as to give income to as many families as possible.

We have reversed the traditional policy in depressions of reducing expenditures upon construction work. We are maintaining a steady expansion of ultimately needed construction work in cooperation with the States, municipalities and industries. Over two billions of dollars is being expended, and today a million men are being given direct and indirect employment through these enlarged activities. We have sustained the people in 21 States who faced dire disaster from the drought. We are giving aid and support to the farmers in marketing their crops, by which they have realized hundreds of millions more in prices than the farmers of any other country. Through the tariff we are saving our farmers and workmen from being overwhelmed with goods from foreign countries where, even since our tariff was revised, wages and prices have been reduced to much lower levels than before.

We are holding down taxation by exclusion of every possible governmental expenditure not absolutely essential or needed in increase of employment or assistance to the farmers. We are rigidly excluding immigration until our own people are employed. The departures and deportations today actually exceed arrivals. We are maintaining and will maintain systematic voluntary organization in the community in aid of employment and care for distress. There are a score of other directions in which cooperation is organized and stimulation given. We propose to go forward with these major activities and policies. We will not be diverted from them.

By these and other measures which we shall develop as the occasion shall require, we shall keep this ship steady in the storm. We will prevent any unnecessary distress in the United States, and by the activities and courage of the American people we will recover from the depression.

Leaders Are Praised.

I would be remiss if I did not pay tribute to the business, industrial, labor and agricultural leaders for their remarkable spirit of cooperation. Their action is magnificent proof of the fundamental progress of American institutions, of our growth in social and economic understanding, of our sense of responsibility, and of human brotherhood.

Leaders of industry have cooperated in an extraordinary degree to maintain employment and sustain our standards of living. There have been exceptions, but they represent a small per cent of the whole. Labor has cooperated in prevention of conflict in giving greater effort and consequently in reducing unit costs. We have had freedom from strikes, lockouts and disorder unequaled even in prosperous times. We have made permanent gains in national solidarity.

Our people can take justifiable pride that their united efforts have greatly reduced unemployment which would have otherwise been our fate; it is heavy, but proportionally it is less than one-half that of other industrial countries. Great as have been our difficulties, no man can contrast them with our experiences in previous great depressions or with the condition of other important industrial countries without a glow of pride in our American system and a confidence in its future.

While we are fostering the slow but positive processes of the healing of our economic wounds, our citizens are necessarily filled with anxiety, and in their anxiety there is the natural demand for more and more drastic action by the Federal Government. Many of their suggestions are sound and helpful. Every suggestion which comes within the proper authority and province of the Executive is given most earnest consideration. We are, of course, confronted with scores of theoretical panaceas which, however well intended, would inevitably delay recovery. Some timid people, black with despair, have lost faith in our American system They demand abrupt and positive change. Others have seized upon the opportunities of discontent to agitate for the adoption of economic patent medicines from foreign lands Others have indomitable confidence that by some legerdemain we can legislate ourselves out of a world-wide depression. Such views are as accurate as the belief we can exorcise a Caribbean hurricane by statutory law.

Against Robbing Capital.

For instance, nothing can be gained in recovery of employment by detouring capital away from industry and commerce into the Treasury of the United States, either by taxes or loans, on the assumption that the Government can create more employment by use of these funds than can industry and commerce itself. While I am a strong advocate of expansion of useful public works in hard times, and we have trebled our Federal expenditure in aid to unemployment, yet there are limitations upon the application of this principle Not only must we refrain from robbing industry and commerce of its capital, and thereby increasing unemployment, but such works require long engineering and legal interludes before they produce actual employment. Above all, schemes of public works which have no reproductive value would result in sheer waste. The remedy to economic depression is not waste, but the creation and distribution of wealth.

It has been urged that the Federal Government should abandon its system of employment agencies and should appropriate large sums to subsidize their establishment in other hands. I have refused to accept such schemes, as they would in many places endow political organizations with the gigantic patronage of workmen's jobs. That would bring about the most vicious tyranny ever set up in the United States. We have instead expanded our Federal Government agencies which are on nonpolitical basis. They are of far greater service to labor.

We have had one proposal after another which amounts to a dole from the Federal Treasury. The largest is that of unemployment insurance. I have long advocated such insurance as an additional measure of safety against rainy days, but only through private enterprise or through cooperation of industry and labor itself. The moment the Government enters into this field it invariably degenerates into the dole. For nothing can withstand the political pressures which carry governments over this dangerous border. The net results of governmental doles are to lower wages toward the bare subsistence level and to endow the slacker. It imposes the injustice of huge burdens upon farmers and other callings which receive no benefits. I am proud that so representative an organization as the American Federation of Labor has refused to approve such schemes.

There have been some complaints from foreign countries over the revision of our tariff and it is proposed that we can expedite recovery by another revision. Nothing would more prolong the depression than a session of Congress devoted to this purpose. There are no doubt inequities and inequalities in some of our tariff rates; that is inherent in any congressional revision. But we have for the first time effective machinery in motion through a Tariff Commission with authority for any necessary rectification. And that machinery is functioning.

About Farm Tariff.

An analysis indicates that the large majority of these foreign complaints are directed against added protection we have given to agriculture. I believe that some of these countries do not realize the profound hardship which they themselves—with no malevolent purpose—have imposed on the American farmer. Improved machinery, the development of refrigeration and cheapening of sea transportation have created for them great resources from their virgin lands and cheaper labor. As a result they have taken profitable export markets from the American farmer. There have been complaints from older nations who import a portion of their food products and export another portion.

Yet these nations look upon their own agriculture as a way of life and as vital to their national security, and have long since adopted protective tariffs against the special farm products of the United States. We do not reproach them, for we, too, look upon a healthy agriculture as indispensable to the Nation. The growth of our industrial population will ultimately absorb the production of our farmers, but our agriculture was attuned to the export business and is of necessity passing a prolonged crisis in its shift to a domestic basis. Our tariff had proved so low that our farmers were being crowded even from the domestic market in many products which by use as diversification they can substitute to take up the slack in export business. From that condition we have given him protection, and we stand upon it.

In this connection I noted with interest that the International Chamber of Commerce in its recent meeting in Washington in effect recommended to the world the adoption of this method of the American tariff, although it was not referred to by name. Our visitors found the American tariff act unique in the field of tariff legislation, as it defines the principle of our tariff by law. That is the difference in cost of production at home and abroad. They found in our new Tariff Commission the creation of a tribunal open to every interested party empowered and ready to deal with any variations from this principle. They found a tariff without discriminations among nations. They recommended universal adoption of similar principles. Indeed, such a course would greatly modify tariffs in general. It would promote the commerce of the world by removing discriminations, preferences and uncertainties.

Domestic Prosperity First.

But it is not my purpose upon this occasion to discuss the relations of our many economic problems to the problems of other nations. I am not unmindful of our responsibilities or our vital interest in their welfare. The very first service to them must be to place our own house in order; to restore our own domestic prosperity. It is from increases in our reservoir of economic strength that has and must come our contribution to the development and recovery of the world. From our prosperity comes our demand for their goods and raw materials. A prosperous United States is the beginning of a prosperous world.

With industry as well as agriculture we are concerned not merely in the immediate problems of the depression. From the experience of this depression will come not only a greatly sobered and more efficient economic system than we possessed two years ago but a greater knowledge of its weaknesses as well as a greater intelligence in correcting them. When the time comes that we can look at this depression objectively it will be our duty searchingly to examine every phase of it.

We can already observe some directions to which endeavor must be pointed. For instance, it is obvious that the Federal reserve system was inadequate to prevent a large diversion of capital and bank deposits from commercial and industrial business into wasteful speculation and stock promotion. It is obvious our banking system must be organized to give greater protection to depositors against failures. It is equally obvious that we must determine whether the facilities of our security and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions. It is obvious that our taxes upon capital gains viciously promote the booms and just as viciously intensify depressions. In order to avoid taxes, real estate and stocks are withheld from the market in times of rising prices, and for the same reason large quantities are dumped on the market in times of depression.

Offers 20-Year Plan.

The experiences of this depression indeed demand that the Nation carefully and deliberately reconsider the whole national and local problem of the incidence of taxation. The undue proportion of taxes which falls upon farmers, home owners and all real-property holders as compared to other forms of wealth and income demands real relief. There are far wider questions of our social and economic life which this experience will illuminate. We shall know much more of the method of still further advance toward stability, security and wider diffusion of the benefits of our economic system.

We have many citizens insisting that we produce an advance "plan" for the future development of the United States. They demand that we produce it right now. I presume the "plan" idea is an infection from the slogan of the "5-year plan" through which Russia is struggling to redeem herself from the ten years of starvation and misery. I am able to propose an American plan to you. We plan to take care of 20,000,000 increase in population in the next twenty years. We plan to build for them 4,000,000 new and better homes, thousands of new and still more beautiful city buildings, thousands of factories; to increase the capacity of our railways; to add thousands of miles of highways and waterways; to install 25,000,000 electrical horsepower; to grow 20 per cent more farm products. We plan to provide new parks, schools, colleges and churches for this 30,000,000 people. We plan more leisure for men and women and better opportunities for its enjoyment. We not only plan to provide for all the new generation, but we shall, by scientific research and invention, lift the standard of living and security of life to the whole people.

We plan to secure a greater diffusion of wealth, a decrease in poverty and a great reduction in crime. And this plan will be carried out if we just keep on giving the American people a chance. Its impulsive force is in the character and spirit of our people. They have already done a better job for 120,000,000 people than any other nation in all history.

Some groups believe this plan can only be carried out by a fundamental, a revolutionary change of method. Other groups believe that any system must be the outgrowth of the character of our race, a natural outgrowth of our traditions; that we have established certain ideals over 150 years upon which we must build rather than destroy.

If we analyze the ideas which have been put forward for handling our great national plan, they fall into two groups. The first is whether we shall go on with our American system which holds that the major purpose of a State is to protect the people and to give them equality of opportunity, that the basis of all happiness is in development of the individual, that the sum of progress can only be gauged by the progress of the individual, that we should steadily build up cooperation among the people themselves to these ends. The other idea is that we shall directly or indirectly regiment the population into a bureaucracy to serve the state, that we should use force instead of cooperation in plans and thereby direct every man as to what he may or may not do.

Practical Questions Stated.

These ideas present themselves in practical questions which we have to meet. Shall we abandon the philosophy and creed of our people for 150 years by turning to a creed foreign to our people? Shall we establish a dole from the Federal Treasury? Shall we undertake Federal ownership and operation of public utilities instead of the rigorous regulation of them to prevent imposition? Shall we protect our people from the lower standards of living of foreign countries? Shall the Government, except in temporary national emergencies, enter upon business processes in competition with its citizens? Shall we regiment our people by an extension of the arm of bureaucracy into a multitude of affairs?

The future welfare of our country, so dear to you and to me for ourselves and our children, depends upon the answer given.

Our immediate and paramount task as a people is to rout the forces of economic disruption and pessimism that have swept upon us. The exacting duty of government in these times is by use of its agencies and its influence to strengthen our economic institutions; by inspiring cooperation in the community to sustain good will and to keep our country free of disorder and conflict; by cooperation with the people to assure that the deserving shall not suffer, and by the conduct of government to strengthen the foundations of a better and stronger national life. These have been the objectives of my administration in dealing with this, the greatest crisis the world has ever known. I shall adhere to them.

If, as many believe, we have passed the worst of this storm, future months will not be difficult. If we shall be called upon to endure more of this period, we must gird ourselves to steadfast effort, to fail at no point where humanity calls or American ideals are in jeopardy.

Our transcendent monetary need is a much larger degree of confidence among our business agencies and that they shall extend this confidence in more than words. If our people will go forth with the confidence and enterprise which our country justifies, many of the mists of this depression will fade away.

In conclusion, whatever the immediate difficulties may be, we know they are transitory in our lives and in the life of the Nation. We should have full faith and confidence in those mighty resources, those intellectual and spiritual forces, which have impelled this Nation to a success never before known in the history of the world. Far from being impaired, these forces were never stronger than at this moment. Under the guidance of Divine Providence they will return to us a greater and more wholesome prosperity than we have ever known.

Driver of Murder Car Tried Swiftly

Man Accused in Finding of Nude Body, Later Brought Here, in Court.

Elizabeth, N. J., June 15 (A.P.).—The State in three hours today completed the case by which it hopes to send William Hoore Frazer to the electric chair for the murder of Mrs. Phoebe Quick Stader, Rahway matron, whose body he carried in an automobile to Virginia.

The prosecution contented itself with placing on the stand witnesses to corroborate a written statement assertedly made by Frazer at the time of his arrest four months ago, in which he said he accidentally shot the woman. No attempt was made to prove premeditation or motive, the prosecution pointing out it was unnecessary to do so for capital crime in New Jersey.

A motion by defense counsel for dismissal was denied.

Frazer carried Mrs. Stader's body through Washington, the State charges. It was found nude in a field near the Washington-Richmond highway. William McGrath, 16, of Allenhurst, N. J., had declared that Frazer gave him a ride near Petersburg, Va., and burned some blood-stained garments when they built a fire to cook food. Frazer later was brought through the Capital on his way to stand trial.

Paraguayan Incursion In Chaco Area Rumored

La Paz, Bolivia, June 15 (A.P.).—Reports were received here today that an incursion has been made by Paraguayans into the disputed Chaco territory. No details were available and the chief of staff said he had received no official confirmation.

Advices from Montevideo, Uruguay, last Wednesday said that unrest existed in the Chaco region and that both the Bolivian and Paraguayan governments had sent notes to the five powers who settled the conflict between the two countries by arbitration in Washington in 1930.

could make much headway in the preferential primaries in those States.

Borah Grows Regular.

Friends of Senator Norris are expected to put him forward in the Nebraska presidential primary, and friends of Senator Hiram Johnson are expected to try and line up a delegation for him in California.

The one man on whom all the Republican insurgents might agree is Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, but that capricious statesman has no thought of lending himself to a presidential boom at this time.

"Borah," said one well-posted politician yesterday, "already has begun to get regular, and he will grow more regular as the campaign draws near."

The workers in the Republican national committee are no longer concerned about the preconvention campaign. They are proceeding on the theory that President Hoover will be renominated on the first ballot. Consequently they are looking beyond the convention, looking to the election campaign itself.

A Gentle Hint to A College Dean

This is the season when honorary degrees are bestowed on prominent leaders in finance and business in recognition of their services to mankind. Will Rogers, the humorist, recently declined to accept any honorary degree except "A. D.," which he defined as "Doctor of Applesauce," but if some genial institution of learning wishes to confer an honorary degree upon American Ice, we would modestly suggest the degree "T. Q. D.," or "Doctor of Thirst Quenching." For American Ice has been performing this healthful and kindly service for hundreds of thousands of men and women, in every walk of life, for many years.

FRIENDSHIP 'ENVOYS' TO SAIL TOMORROW

Col. Moss Defends Project From Charge It Smacks of Pacificism.

A pleasure jaunt to Fort McHenry yesterday marked the Baltimore stop-over of the ten boys and girls who will sail from New York tomorrow as "Envoys of Friendship" to Europe.

The party in the afternoon left Baltimore for Philadelphia, accompanied by Col. James A. Moss, president general of the United States Flag Association. In the group were Miss Dorothy Skirm and Thomas J. Hayes 3d, of Washington, selected by the association with the cooperation of The Post.

One girl, Catherine DuBois, of Washington, was not able to be with the party yesterday, but will join her companions in New York in time to sail on the liner France.

Reception in Baltimore.

Among those equipped with cameras, who got in a good morning's work at Fort McHenry, was 14-year-old Charles C. Holbrook, of College Park, who represents the boys' division of the Young Men's Christian Association. He said he doesn't plan to miss anything with his camera while abroad either.

The party arrived at the Pennsylvania Station in Baltimore at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. They jumped into a waiting bus and were whisked away to Fort McHenry, with traffic cleared for them by a two-man motorcycle escort supplied by Police Commissioner Charles D. Gaither.

Col. Moss took occasion in Baltimore to answer some of the charges that have been made against himself and the good will project.

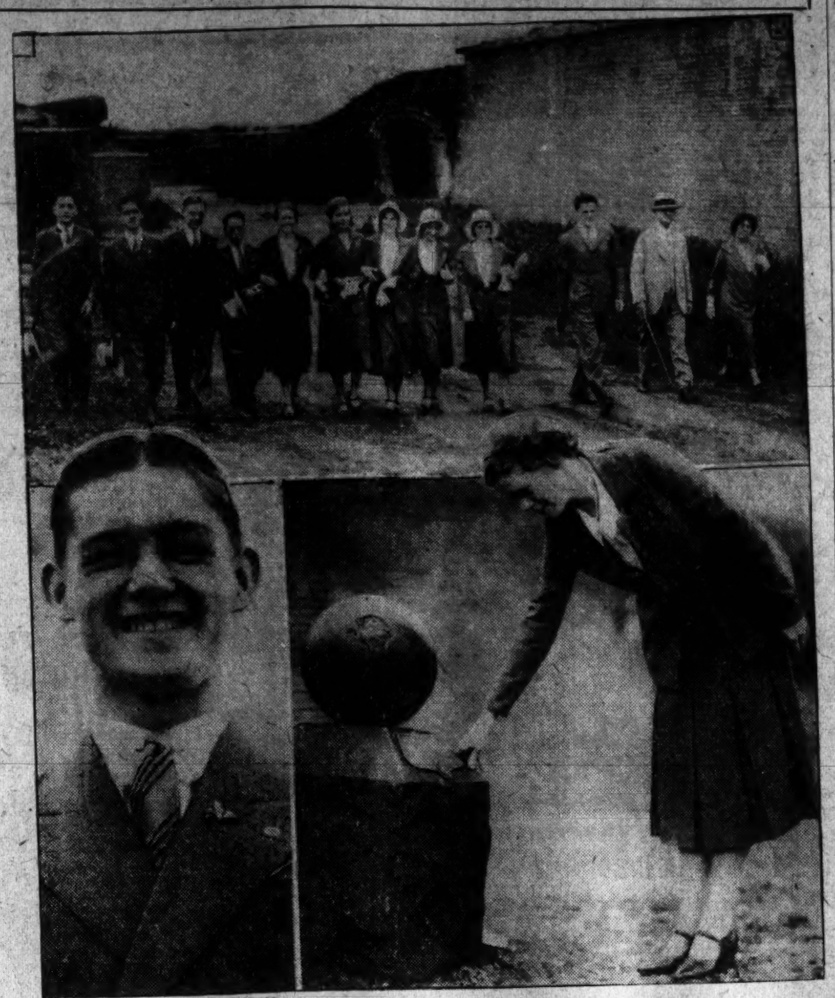
Moss Defends Project.

"One of the charges leveled at me was that I am a pacifist and that this trip is an effort to spread pacifism," he said. "However, I am about as much of a pacifist as was Gen. Foch. I believe sincerely that pacifism is a pernicious influence. I believe that any immediate rise or spread of pacifism would be pernicious.

"But I do feel that eventual peace is a thing to be desired. And I am working toward that eventual peace. It may take two or three generations, but I believe that we will some day be able to instill into our youth a spirit of friendship and cooperation, so that when international arguments arise those in power will seek not the battlefield, but the conference table."

The group will reach Plymouth, England, June 23 and two days later will be received by the Lord Mayor of London.

FLAG ENVOYS VISIT HISTORIC FORT McHENRY



The good-will envoys of the United States Flag Association paid a visit to historic Fort McHenry yesterday. The upper picture shows them walking through the grounds. The man with the cane is Col. James A. Moss, U. S. A., retired, president-general of the association. Charles C. Holbrook, the young man at the left, is from College, Park, Md., and the young woman is Miss Dorothy Skirm, of Washington. They will leave with the group from New York tomorrow for London and Paris.

SLOW SPEED MADE IN TOWING NAUTILUS

Battleship Wyoming Draws Submarine Toward Ireland; Tug May Go to Aid.

(Associated Press.)

With the polar submarine Nautilus in tow, the battleship Wyoming made slow way toward Queenstown, Ireland, last night, while Navy Department officials sought to have a tug sent out to relieve her.

Rear Admiral Claude C. Bloch radioed the chief of naval operations here that in his opinion the Nautilus, in which Sir Hubert Wilkins plans an undersea dash to the North Pole, would have to be towed all the way. On Bloch's recommendation, Admiral William V. Pratt, wired W. Herbert Adams, New York manager of the Wilkins expedition, strongly urging him to have a tug sent from Queenstown immediately.

Meanwhile the battleship Arkansas left the Wyoming and Nautilus behind and steamed on for Copenhagen. The battleships, bound for Europe with 975 midshipmen on their summer cruise, had been delayed nearly two days in going to the assistance of the submarine.

Heavy seas made it impossible to get a line to the Nautilus until early yesterday morning after the battleships had stood by all night and most of Sunday.

When the Nautilus finally was made fast to a steel cable 6 inches in diameter and the Wyoming started with its tow for Queenstown, it was found a rate of speed of no more than 5 knots could be maintained. At this rate the Wyoming faced the prospect of a week of steady sailing before reaching the Irish port. The engines of the submarine were still disabled and her batteries were dead.

Navy officers expressed the belief yesterday that the breakdown would lead to greater precaution and less hazard of a mishap in the trip beneath the ice to the pole.

They voiced a hunch that the encraft will have spart parts aboard gines and batteries of the Nautilus would be given a thorough overhauling, with a long test run before the craft starts its polar journey. The when it starts for the pole.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, June 15 (U.P.).—Capt. Ernst Lehmann, second in command to Dr. Hugo Eckner of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, said tonight he was unaware of any change in the plans for the Graf Zeppelin to meet the submarine Nautilus in the Arctic.

"If any change were intended, I would be the first to know it," Lehman said.

SHAPIRO WITNESSES CONFIRM HIS CLAIM

Tell Fraud Case Jury Only Contract Price on Homes Was Exacted.

A procession of witnesses went before a jury yesterday in the trial of Jacob B. Shapiro on charges of using the mails to defraud. Most of the witnesses were purchasers of property from Shapiro.

Letters alleged to have been written and sent through the mails to purchasers were introduced in evidence. These letters purported to set forth the encumberances on the property for which the purchasers were at that time negotiating.

United States Attorney John Flielly brought out from the witnesses that in some cases there were trusts on their property about which they knew nothing for several months after they had contracted to buy their homes. The letters were used to show that the real estate company did not disclose all of the trusts on the property.

In each instance, however, Defense Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer established that the trusts which had not been disclosed to the home buyers were later paid off by Shapiro. Mr. Newmyer asked each witness if the additional trust has cost him any money and if the contract price for the property was not all that he had been called upon to pay. In every instance, the answers to these questions were that Shapiro had paid off the trusts, and that the agreed price for their property was all that they had to pay.

The Shapiro case will probably take another week.

Central High Class of 1885 Will Frolic Saturday Night

Central High School's class of 1885 is going back to school.

Classroom will be at Wardman Park Hotel, and a vigorous effort is being made by Mrs. M. M. McNamee, of Rosslyn, Va., to round up enough of the '85 graduates to have a full class when the teacher calls the roll Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

There were 150 members of the class, many of whom still live in Washington and adjacent communities. However, Mrs. McNamee is having a difficult time locating many of them, and has asked The Post to aid her so that they may be urged to attend the reunion.

Mrs. McNamee, who was Miss Bertha Armstrong until shortly after the '85 commencement exercises, may be reached by calling Clarendon 1338.

JAPANESE REDUCE NEW SKYSCRAPER

Ancient Law Forbids Anyone to Look Down Upon the Emperor.

Tokyo, June 15 (A.P.).—Tradition lopped off the top of Japan's tallest building because it overlooked the domicile of Emperor Hirohito.

In Japan no one may look down upon the emperor. The restriction dates back 2,591 years to the reign of Jimmu, founder of the empire.

Workmen had nearly completed a tower on the new $1,500,000 police administration building before it was realized that the new structure overtopped the imperial palace by several hundred feet. The two edifices are only a stone's throw apart.

When the discovery was made, high officials held a hurried conference and the next day the tower began to recede. The blunder was blamed on an architect.

When the emperor in his motor car passes through the streets, all window blinds above the first stories are drawn and police caution the residents not to peek. The regulation applies equally to foreigners.

OHIO COUNTY MOVES FOR ORDER IN STRIKE

Places All Resources Behind Sheriff in Coal Mine Dispute.

St. Clairsville, Ohio, June 15 (A.P.).—The Belmont County Board of Commissioners today informed Sheriff Howard Duff they would place the entire resources of the county at his disposal if necessary to maintain order in the coal strike led by the National Miners Union. At the same time, the board borrowed and appropriated an additional $10,000 to finance the employment of special deputies by Duff. This brought to $35,000 the total amount appropriated since last week's disorders.

While several operators reopened their mines or announced their intention to do so, the strike spread to the big five mine where 160 men walked out when pickets congregated.

Robert Ireland, vice president of the Hanna Coal Co., said he intended to operate the Hanna mines regardless of the present strike movement, adding that 90 per cent of the workers desired to return to work but had been intimidated by threats of bombs.

Holds Field's Future in Peril.

Ireland said the fate of the Southeastern coal industry hung in the balance in the strike, declaring that continued labor trouble would cause purchasers to "return to West Virginia and Kentucky fields and we will be forced to abandon" the Ohio mines.

Officials of several companies said they were hiring new men to replace strikers and declared eviction suits would face miners who fail to return to work. Monroe Mechling, superintendent of the Provident mine, said he would operate the pits as long as his men wanted to work and announced 200 of the 340 now on strike would return tomorrow.

Deputy sheriffs today investigated a fire at the Big Run mine of the Rail and River Coal Co., at Bellaire, which destroyed the wash house and threw 550 men temporarily out of employment.

The eastern Ohio coal mining fields have been in the throes of labor disputes and strikes periodically for the past 30 years, but in the present situation authorities are dealing with a new factor—the National Miners Union.

Opposing Claims Summarized.

In previous disputes coal operators and officials have been dealing with the United Mine Workers of America, which lost out in this section during the 1927 difficulties when National Guardsmen were sent here to feed the school children.

The National Miners Union was organized by a protesting element of the United Mine Workers, at Springfield, Ill., several years ago. Its direction of the present dispute has resulted in 3,000 miners in Belmont, Jefferson and Harrison counties leaving their jobs.

The strike came suddenly. Three days after the first mine closed more than half a dozen in two counties had suspended with 1,500 men idle.

Eight reasons have been ascribed by organizers of the National Miners Union for the strike. They were: Miner employed checkman; abolition of "fake" safety measures in the Hanna mines; full pay for all "dead work;" recognition of the National Miners Union; abolition of the company doctor; the right to have a pit committee; abolition of speed-up methods, and return of the eight-hour day.

Mine operators, on the other hand, claimed the men were required to work only eight hours a day; that the company doctor cost each miner but $3 a month and that he and his family received full medical attention for that sum; that "dead work" has been a part of the miner's duty since time began; that safety measures have reduced accidents 82 per cent in eastern Ohio fields, and that the National Miners Union has no standing among organized labor or the American Federation of Labor.

Ship Line's Finances Juggled, Witness Says

London, June 15 (A.P.).—The method by which $1,000,000 received from the sale of securities appeared as profit in financial statements of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., was explained today by A. T. Cason, chief accountant for the company at the preliminary hearing of Lord Kylsant, charged with issuing financial statements he knew to be false.

The prosecution took Cason through a maze of technicalities of accountancy and his figures purported to show that the Royal Mail failed to make a profit in 1926 and 1927, but made no mention of losses in its financial statements.

Strike of Longshoremen At New Orleans Ended

New Orleans, La., June 15 (A.P.).—The strike of Union Longshoremen here, called nearly four months ago in protest over working conditions and a 15 cents an hour wage reduction to a basis of 65 cents by four steamship companies, was terminated today, union officials announced. Assurance had been given that practices complained of by the unions would be discontinued.

When the strike was called in February, T. J. Darcy, president of the White Longshoremen Union, said 16,000 men left their jobs.

New Miners' Union Held 'Red' Affiliate

Its Constitution Quoted in Mine Owners' Suit for Injunction.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 15 (A.P.).—While county officials moved to deport "any "alien strike agitators" found to be illegally in this country, testimony was given in an injunction suit here today that the National Miners Union, which claims leadership of the western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio coal strike, is affiliated with the "Red International of labor unions."

The testimony was in the suit of the Butler Consolidated Coal Co. for an injunction restraining the National Miners Union from interfering with employes at the company's mine. Over objections of attorneys for the union, the preamble of the N. M. U. constitution was read as follows:

The constitution declared that interests of employes and those of workers have nothing in common, but are diametrically opposed to one another. * * * "Our organization shall ever remain truly class conscious. This organization shall affiliate itself * * * with the class-conscious labor movement of the world and declares adherence to the program, principles and statutes of the Red International of labor unions."

Decision on the request for an injunction was reserved.

CHIANG REELECTION DEFIES CANTONESE

Conqueror Again Is Chosen as Chief; Troops Sent to Subdue Rebels.

Nanking, China, June 15 (A.P.).—The Nationalist government today reelected Chiang Kai-Shek in defiance of the demand of the Canton insurgents that he resign, or fight the secessionist government of Kwangtung and Kwangsi Provinces.

Chiang, generalissimo, who led Cantonese armies northward in 1926 and 1927 to form the Nationalist government at Nanking, was reappointed by the central executive committee of the Kuomintang, the political party controlling the government. T. V. Soong, his brother-in-law, was installed as vice president, and several other officials took office.

Reelection of Chiang was in repudiation of the challenge of the Canton rebels, who had accused him of being a dictator desirous of establishing a new dynasty.

Troops Enter Provinces.

Coincident with Chiang's reelection, the government hurried additional troops into Kiangsi and Hunan Provinces, ostensibly to reinforce armies fighting large bodies of roving bandits and reds. Gen. Chiang announced he would go to Nanchang Wednesday to direct these operations.

Gen. Chen Ming-Shu, ousted Nationalist governor of Kwangtung, also was in Kiangsi Province. He asserted his purpose was to fight reds, contradicting his announcement of yesterday he would battle the insurgents.

Cantonese leaders asserted all these government troop movements were aimed, not against outlaws, but against the insurgent government in the adjacent provinces of Kwangtung and Kwangsi.

Silent on Overtures.

They decline to discuss reports of peace overtures, but it was reported most of them favored a compromise, with China to be split into four federal states, with leaders of various factions as governors.

Manchuria continued to hold a key position, some observers believing support of its governor, Chang Hsueh-Liang, would go to the Nationalist government.

Three brigades of troops, moving down from Mukden, poured through the great wall. The movement was described by officials as routine replacement of troops and not reinforcements for the Nationalists.

Definite word of his position was anxiously awaited from Chang, who for more than two weeks has been a typhoid fever patient at the Rockefeller Hospital in Peiping.

Papal Delegate Protests Proposed Mexican Law

Mexico City, June 15 (A.P.).—Archbishop Ruiz y Flores, apostolic delegate, has sent a letter to President Ortiz Rubio asking federal intervention against a proposed religious law in the State of Vera Cruz which would limit the number of Catholic priests to one for every 100,000 persons and would leave only eight priests and three bishops in the whole state.

The letter, it is understood, made the request on the ground that the law would wreck harmony between the church and state and work great hardship on the church.

New Bids Asked on Site Of U. S. Trade Building

New bids were asked yesterday by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, to solve the tangle that has developed over the renting of the site of the burned Federal Trade Commission building for parking space. The bids will be opened at 10 o'clock next Monday morning.

A contract was recently let to A. G. Dezendorf, of 722 Tenth street northwest, who was to have paid $350 a month for the tract and to charge Federal employes $1.50 a month for parking space. The enterprise was boycotted, however, and charges were made that a higher rate was being asked. Consequently the business was abandoned.

come more tense as the result of the expulsion of the church leader, over which high ecclesiastics and the Catholic press are reported to be indignant. There is some speculation as to whether the government's action might lead to a breach in Vatican City-Spanish relations.

The cardinal was detained last night and left Guadalajara with guards today, apparently for the French border. Segura recently returned from Vatican City, where he had reported to the authorities on the burning of church property by mobs in Spain. This attack on the religious institutions started a short time after the cardinal had issued a pastoral letter to Catholic Spaniards.

A final decree of absolute divorce from Mrs. Emily Hawkins, of Chevy Chase, Md., was awarded Samuel Hawkins, of Jones Mill road, Chevy Chase, yesterday by Judge Robert B. Peter in circuit court at Rockville. The husband alleged desertion in his petition. The couple was married in 1907 at the home of Mr. Hawkins' father, on Jones Mill road, and has one child, more than 21 years old. Through Attorney Thomas M. The general committee on school matters for the Takoma-Silver Spring area will hold a meeting June 23 at the Silver Spring County Building to consider data compiled by the special fact-finding committee regarding possible sites for the proposed Takoma-Silver Spring Senior High School.

The meeting has been called by Ralph Lee, chairman of the general committee, which is composed of representatives of civic and business organizations in the affected area. Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome, County Commissioner Lacy Shaw and Maj. E. Brooke Lee, leader of the county administration group, are expected to be present at the meeting.

The fact-finding committee has had a map prepared by the county engineer, Harry Shaw, which shows the location of centers of population and probable trend of population as well as location of all children of school and preschool age in the section.

The present center of school population, based on the residence of elementary school children, is approximately at the intersection of Silver Spring avenue and Grove street. The largest percentage of students is at Takoma Park, with Woodside a fairly close second and East Silver Spring third. Future population spread is limited to a northerly direction as the Takoma Park-Blair-Silver Spring triangle is fairly well filled. The area eventually is to be served with a high school designed to accommodate 2,400 students with a first unit to accommodate 800.

Residents of Travilah have petitioned the Public Service Commission at Baltimore for a hearing on the rates and service given them by the Travilah Telephone Co. of Montgomery County, owned and operated by Preston Snyder.

The petition was drawn up by Stedman Prescott, Rockville attorney, who is counsel for the petitioners, and relates that the service is unsatisfactory inasmuch as there are twenty people on one line, which necessitates much waiting for numbers, and also that the phones are extremely noisy, so that it is impossible to carry on an ordinary conversation with subscribers. The rate charged is $2.50 a month, whereas the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. charges $1.75 a month for the same class of service, the petition states.

The petition is signed by George R. Rice, Louis J. Federline, Ida M. Henderson, J. Leo Clagett, W. H. Fawsett, Charles M. Thrift, B. G. Harris, C. C. Harris, J. B. Nicol, William H. Ward, C. T. Stearn, jr., Carson S. Mills, Ernest C. Briggs, S. Lee, Wallace Brown and Clara L. Plumer.

Democratic Group Hears Gates Talk

Party Publicity Program Discussed at District Council Picnic.

One hundred members of the District Women's Democratic Educational Council attended a picnic dinner in Rock Creek Park yesterday when Col. Robert N. Gates, member of the publicity committee of the Democratic national party, discussed "The Difference Between the Democrat and Republican Parties."

In his address Col. Gates denied that Democratic press releases criticizing the Hoover administration were motivated by desires to "smear" the President, but said that "the administration in power has so conducted itself as to invite exposure and attack from every angle."

Plans were made for a pilgrimage to Monticello, July 4, when a special car will carry members of the council to Charlottesville, Va., for a visit to the home of Thomas Jefferson. Miss Erma Garey and Miss Mary Lazenby gave brief sketches of leaders of Democracy. The president of the organization, Mrs. Clara Wright Smith, presided.

JURY IN ARLINGTON INDICTS 28 PERSONS

Gridiron Dinner of Organized Women Voters Proves Merry Occasion.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Twenty-nine indictments naming 28 persons, were returned yesterday by the grand jury at the opening of the June term of the circuit court of Arlington County with Judge Walter McCarthy on the bench.

Those indicted for violation of the prohibition law were: Walter Weaver, Benjamin Fletcher, Raymond Jackson, Paul Friend, Russell B. Jackson, Thurman Eutler, Floyd Stanley, James Young, Sarah Turley, John Smith, George Hannah, Jack Reed, alias Charles M. Reed; Joe McGuire, Paul Rust, Philip Terrell, Ellsworth Tucker, Thelma Jackson, Walter Fairfax, Robert E. Farrell, E. J. Schofield.

Those indicted on charges of felony: William Dockery, alias William Fox; Henry Williams, Walter Weaver, Goldie Henry John E. Green, Lewis Finks, Carl McIntosh, Harvey Daniels and Tapp Williams.

Walter Weaver pleaded guilty to the felony indictment charging him with having stolen an automobile. The judge, after hearing the evidence, permitted the defendant to change his plea to not guilty, whereupon the court found him not guilty. On the indictment charging Weaver with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor he was fined $140.75 and given a six-months jail sentence.

Benjamin Fletcher, indicted on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was fined $140.75 and given a jail sentence of 30 days.

Pleading guilty to a charge of violation of the prohibition laws, Raymond Jackson was fined $90.40, in addition to a jail sentence of month. The jail sentence was suspended.

Russell B. Jackson, pleading guilty to a charge of violation of the prohibition laws, was fined $140.75, in addition to a jail sentence of two months.

Thurman Butler and Sarah Turley, each pleading guilty to a charge of violation of the prohibition laws, were each fined $90.75, with a one month's jail sentence in each case. The jail sentences were suspended.

Judge McCarthy set Thursday, July 2, as the date for a hearing on the demurrer to the motion for judgment sought by the Arlington Investment Corporation against seven women members of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County.

Attorney Bernard Miller, of Culpeper, appeared as counsel for the defendants.

The Organized Women Voters of Arlington County staged their first annual gridiron dinner last night at the Army-Navy Country Club, in Arlington County, with the president, Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, presiding, and it was conceded by all a huge success.

For more than two hours the committee headed by the president amused the 225 attending, filling the banquet hall to its capacity, with the many stunts staged.

With merriment at a high pitch, the feature of the program was the entrance, headed by a member of Sheriff Howard B. Fields' police force, James Scott, of the seven women members of the organization who are named as the defendants in the $60,000 motion for judgment asked by the Arlington Investment Corporation. They were in "prison stripes." Following close on this event was the announcement of Mrs. Pauline A. Smith, deputy sheriff, who wore a huge silver star, that a wagon was approaching with one "Frankie L. Ball and one Willie C. Gloth" riding upon it. They were welcomed and urged to "stick to it." To "Willie Gloth" was presented a huge bottle of milk and to "Ball" a white ribbon, amid wild applause.

The members of thhe county board of supervisors came in for a number of suggestions, the principal of which was when Mrs. J. R. Walton and Mrs. Pearl Sharp appeared on crutches, each asking the other, "Have you been to see the board about fixing the holes in the roads in front of your home?" This brought wild applause.

Miss Jessie Dell, Civil Service Commissioner, one of the guests of honor, addressed the meeting. Miss Dell congratulated the organization on having such a well-organized group and expressed confidence its work in the county is bound to result in much good.

A numbre of popular songs were sung, led by Mrs. L. C. McNemar, in which the names of Sheriff Fields, Edward Duncan, Hugh Reid, E. C. Turnburke, Harry K. Green, Mrs. Pauline A. Smith, Billy Gloth, C. L. Kinnier, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, Fletcher Kemp, E. Wade Ball and Frank L. Ball appeared.

The program continued with dancing and card playing until a late hour.

The County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved the application made by the Arlington Dairy Co. for the rezoning of a strip of land on Rucker avenue adjoining its property from residential A to general business. The company has plans and specifications prepared for an addition to their present buildings which will be erected on this site.

The board authorized the advertising for bids for the rebuilding of the Georgetown-Alexandria pike in Rosslyn, passing the oil tanks and extending to the Arlington National Cemetery wall and from hte southeast corner of the cemetery wall to Mount Vernon avenue.

Bids will be received and opened by the board at its meeting June 30.

The Rosslyn Business Men's Association will hold a special meeting tomorrow night in the offices of Fred N. Windridge, Rosslyn.

The Woman's Club, of Lyon Village, will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Fielding M. Lewis, 145 Virginia avenue.

The church school of St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its annual picnic at Glen Echo Park today. Buses will leave from the Parish Hall this morning at 10 o'clock, returning from the park in the afternoon at 3 and 6:30 o'clock.

The annual carnival of the Ballston Fire Department, which closed on Saturday night after a run of two weeks, was one of the most successful affairs held by the department in many years, the committee has announced. The earnings, which the committee have not yet totaled, will be applied to the maintenance fund.

With hundreds of colored electric lights, the Clarendon Fire Department opened its annual carnival last night in the park opposite the firehouse. The affair will continue throughout the week.

Dancing will be a feature each evening. The committee has arranged a number of attractive booths filled with useful articles about the grounds.

The commencement exercises at the Washington-Lee High School will be held in the school auditorium tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Dr. William R. Smithy, professor of education of the University of Virginia, and Maj. E. W. Cushing, member of the county school board, are announced as the principal speakers.

The diplomas to the graduating class, numbering 94, will be presented by County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp.

The valedictory address will be given by Miss Betsy Canon and the salutatory by Rial Ross, both honor students.

S. P. Vanderslice, principal, will preside. Admission to the exercises will be by card only.

The Men's Club of the Ballston Presbyterian Church will meet at the church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

BODY OF DROWNED MAN IS RECOVERED

Stephen Kendrick Is Taken From Potomac Where He Dived Sunday.

The body of Stephen Kendrick, 23 years old, of 638 I street northeast, was recovered yesterday morning at 11 o'clock by one of the fishermen who had been dragging the Potomac River near Cobb Island since the man was drowned Sunday.

The fisherman brought the body up in a fish net, approximately 100 feet from the spot where Mr. Kendrick disappeared after a dive.

The Charles County coroner was called, and after an inquest, a verdict of accidental drowning was returned. The body was removed to the home of Mr. Kendrick's father, William Kendrick, at Marbury, Md.

Besides his parents, Mr. Kendrick is survived by a wife and two sons, Earl and Stephen, jr. Funeral services will be held from his father's home tomorrow at an hour to be announced later.

Mr. Kendrick was in swimming in company with Mrs. J. E. Gothner and Mrs. Lathan Pumphrey and some children when he lost his life. He dove under the boat, and reappeared for an instant on the other side, shouting for help. Mrs. Gothner tried to aid him, but he pulled her under. She broke his hold, and the man disappeared.

AMERICA FIRST.

President Hoover's address at Indianapolis is an effective answer to the criticism that has been leveled at him because of the depression. The President maintains an abiding faith in the elemental soundness of America's economic structure. He places no confidence in panaceas. In the people themselves he sees the power of regeneration. No sudden stroke by either the Government or private organizations, he says, can dissolve the world difficulties. But there can be no doubt that the people themselves will assert their energy and rise to a higher degree of prosperity than they have yet known.

It may be anticipated that critics will take issue with the common sense of the President. Hot-headed insurgents would plunge the country into a bottomless morass of socialism in their frantic efforts to cure the depression. Deluded economists would open American markets to cheap foreign goods in a desperate effort to revive business. But President Hoover has not been swerved from his firm purpose to protect American industry, labor and agriculture. Nor is he ready to scrap the existing economic machinery because abuse has made repairs and adjustments necessary.

In the midst of demands for "plans" leading to a new economic order, Mr. Hoover introduced a plan of progress in the same channels in which American industry has been successfully running. He leaves the execution of the plan to the people, secure in the belief that if they are given a chance they will make the most of it. The Government can assist chiefly by protecting the people and equalizing opportunity among them. The President left no doubt of his stand on the proposed regimentation of citizens under an industrial bureaucracy.

President Hoover gives no heed to the pleas that this country sacrifice its own interests in an effort to restore world-wide prosperity. The first service that the United States can render in this respect is to put its own house in order. A prosperous United States, he says, will be the beginning of a prosperous world. Each country must solve its own problems, in spite of economic interdependence. No nation can build up world prosperity by impoverishing its own people.

An effort to reduce the tariff at this time would be a calamity. President Hoover recognizes that there are inequalities in the Smoot-Hawley act, but no legislation is perfect. The Tariff Commission is at work ironing out the rough spots in the act, but the protective system itself must remain intact. This is no time to fritter away the great domestic market for the right of selling abroad to bankrupt peoples. The shrinkage of foreign trade amounts to only 2 to 3 per cent of America's total production. How insignificant in comparison with domestic commerce. President Hoover's declaration that the redeeming strength of the United States lies within itself is sound and convincing.

Under President Hoover's direction the Government has done all that it can to mitigate the effects of the depression without injecting politics into business. An enormous building program is under way. Other expenditures have been trimmed and every effort is being made to avoid an increase in taxes. Immigration has been almost cut off that Americans might have all available jobs. American producers have been protected from unfair foreign competition. Unquestionably these policies have exercised a stabilizing influence. Beyond that the Government may not venture without departing from the traditional American policy. The President will not be stampeded into rash ventures. His insistence upon the continued application of sound economics and his unwavering confidence in the future should have a stimulating effect upon the Nation.

THE ST. PHILBERT TRAGEDY.

The latest tragedy of the sea that brought sorrow to hundreds of French homes calls forth world-wide sympathy. That such sudden and overwhelming calamity should doom merry-makers returning from a Sunday picnic makes their loss seem all the more shocking. Striking coincidences of a sudden squall encountered by the heavily loaded and frail excursion boat at a fateful point in its course resulted in a sudden stampede of the deck passengers, causing it to capsize. Reports yesterday brought word that searchers for the bodies of the many victims encountered a scene of beauty and a calm sea that mocked with irony the tempestuous fury of the day before.

The St. Philbert was a flimsy river steamer only 100 feet long that carried members of the workers' unions from Nantes and St. Nazaire on a holiday excursion to the Island of Noirmoutier. It was upon the return trip along the coast of the Bay of Biscay, but a few miles from the mouth of the River Loire, that the accident happened.

The danger of overloaded decks on excursion steamers, even in more peaceful waters than the open sea, has been demonstrated repeatedly in this country. A listing of the vessel brings panic and disaster. In this case a sudden wind-blown rain sent passengers crowding to the leeward side for shelter and their weight, added to the force of the wind, overturned the boat. The few excursionists who remained behind on the return trip, through fear of the sea or illness, will consider themselves forewarned of a fateful end, or perhaps they were more discerning than the officers of the boat who set out in the face of the storm. The frailty of human judgment is again irremediable and to France can only be offered the world's sympathy.

MR. FORD LOOKS BACKWARD.

By studying the past, Henry Ford believes, humanity is made to advance more than by continually guessing at the future. In a new book, "Ford, Men and Methods," by Edwin P. Norwood, the value of history is discussed in the preface. Mr. Ford states that so long as the past has been faithfully recorded it is of inestimable value. He says:

> I am not in accord with the teaching which admonishes us to at all times keep our eyes set steadfastly ahead. On the contrary, I believe the further one may look into the past, the further he will be able to look into the future.

This sounds very different from the statement Mr. Ford is quoted as having made a few years ago when asked for his opinion on history. At this time he replied, "History is bunk." It is gratifying to find that he has fallen in line with the majority of thinkers. He may have reached this conclusion after applying to it the rigid tests that he uses before making any radical changes in his factory.

The system of trial and error dictates policies in the Ford plant. It is used all along the line, Mr. Ford tells us, and has proved to be the best way to guide development of methods and technique in all of the many branches. A complete record is kept of the findings of experiments, and these are studied in connection with the records of other concerns in an effort to improve on current methods. A knowledge of these accomplished facts, Mr. Ford says, enables the present to be translated all the more quickly into the past, and through such translation it is that progress is made.

Whether Mr. Ford has been convinced that his former views on history were wrong, due to his own discoveries, or to persuasion, he does not mention, but obviously his mind has changed. Society has won him over to the view it holds on the value of history, but it can hardly afford to boast, for Mr. Ford has made history and taught society things that have revolutionized its life.

INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY.

No more ambitious or comprehensive plan for relieving the depression has been suggested than that sponsored by the National Civic Federation. Many different organizations have interested themselves in economic fact finding and have urged closer coordination of industry with a view of eliminating waste and restoring a balance between production and consumption. But the federation looks beyond such palliatives to the creation of a great "democratic industrial structure comparable to our democratic political structure."

At the present stage of economic development the hope of setting up machinery that would regulate production, distribution and consumption with clocklike precision is extremely utopian. If the federation's plan were put into practice it might result in the greatest revolution of industry that this country has ever experienced. The existing industrial structure is built up on the theory of competition among producers. Each industrialist looks out for himself. If he produces too much of any commodity he is penalized by lowering its value. If he produces too little others may step in and share the profits and thus a balance is restored. The inexorable law of supply and demand is supreme.

Under the plan outlined by Matthew Woll for the Civic Federation the laws of supply and demand would give way to artificial regulation. An attempt would be made to determine the national requirements over a given period of time. These requirements would include the necessities of life for the entire population. Then the task of distributing this work among the industrial establishments and distribution agencies would be undertaken. Presumably hours of labor for all workmen would be based on the time that would be required to produce the necessities of life for every one, with all willing hands employed. The directing force of this industrial superstructure would also undertake to determine the character and design of industrial equipment needed and the distribution of credit.

Identification of this scheme with the five-year plan of Soviet Russia seems unavoidable. The Soviet is trying to achieve industrial stabilization by establishing a gigantic monopoly directed from Moscow. While the Soviet economic machine is under control of a militant dictatorship, the plan which is offered to the United States would be operated under democratic control. Just how representation would be worked out and how the superstructure could be operated without jeopardizing human rights is not made plain. But the practicability of any such plan that would not involve a surrender of rights may be questioned. Centralized control and serfdom usually go hand in hand.

It does not seem probable that the Civic Federation's project will meet with general approval. Nevertheless, it stimulates thought on the subject of industrial stability and re-emphasized the need for leadership in the present crisis. Too many business leaders are merely waiting for something to turn up. The situation demands action, not a radical overturning of the industrial system that has been built up in modern times, but adjustment of the factors that were thrown out of balance by the rapid changes during the last decade.

The future will, no doubt, bring greater coordination of industry, but it will be a gradual development. The industrial structure can not be remodeled within a day without risking the destruction of all that has been gained in centuries.

Some enterprising politician might find Al Capone in just the right mood to finance a campaign against the Government prying into business.

Ohio is all excited about the falling of a meteor, but the public will doubtless become accustomed to such phenomena in 1932.

It's odd that no Democrat has thought of attributing the civil war in China to the Smoot-Hawley bill.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 15.—One of the most interesting and encouraging developments of the past fifteen years has been the citizens' military training camps. At the outset they were not considered any too favorably by the Government. Now they have become an institution.

While a considerable value attaches to them as centers of military instruction their scope is much broader. They are really schools of good citizenship. The chief weakness of military life is that it tends to become purely professional and detached. The remedy is the citizen soldier. When he appears the misunderstanding and suspicion between civil and military authority diminishes. Instead of being something to be distrusted and feared the soldier becomes a neighbor and friend. The uniform is considered a badge of protection.

Although but 37,500 can be taken into camp this year over 76,000 already have applied for admission. The great significance of this is that our people are not looking to mercenaries for protection but are determined to protect themselves. In disciplining the body and mind, in teaching practical patriotism, the camps fill an important place. They demonstrate the power of the people, with or without the approbation of government, to act in emergency and manage their own affairs.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

From the Boston Transcript.

Discoveries on the site of the ancient City of Beth-Shemesh, in Palestine, by the Haverford College and archeological expedition, confirm the scientific supposition that this gray mound on the border between Dan and Judah was once a part of Egypt's domain, once Philistine, once Hebrew, once Roman, once Byzantine; but it would have been more interesting if the American archeologists had found something like a visiting card of the giant Samson, or a bit of jewelry with the monogram of a lady named Delilah, in the ruins. For it is supposed that it was here, at Beth-Shemesh, that the famous betrayal of Samson—the shearing of the luxuriant locks, which resulted in the loss of his Herculean powers—took place. Modern criticism is inclined to make rather light of the feats of Samson, as recorded in the Scriptures. Similar tales of a gigantic hero—even of his temptation and fall—are found in Oriental literatures that go before the Hebrews'.

Nevertheless, the story of Samson is a very interesting one, and it has its moral. It does not culminate with Delilah's scissors, but with the tremendously thrilling relation of the way in which, exclaiming, "Let me die with the Philistines," Samson pulled down the pillars of the temple of the neighboring City of Gaza, precipitating him and also his tyrannous captors, who had brought him there to mock him, to their death. We read that nothing and nobody could withstand Samson until the wily Delilah wormed from him the secret of his strength, sheared his seven braided locks and reduced him to impotence. But the Philistines were a simple-minded lot, after all. It does not seem to have occurred to them that Samson's hair would grow again. They blinded him, and kept him alive to grind corn and for the fun of mocking him. The locks did grow again. He prayed for a renewal of his strength in order to be avenged on the Philistines "for one of the two eyes" that they had robbed him of! Resting for a moment between the pillars of the temple, Samson put his mighty arms about them, pulled them down and the falling roof killed him with his enemies.

Gaza, where Samson performed this feat, is still standing. It has ancient ruins; it may be that the very pillars that Samson pulled down are hiding somewhere in the ground about the place. It would be of interest if our Zionist friends should find them and set them up as a token of their return to the scene of past triumphs. Palestine is a great place in which to dig, as the archeologists are abundantly proving.

Reputations for statesmanship are going to suffer if the two British irreconcilables, Snowden and Lloyd George, can't compromise a minor point of taxation and avoid a political smash.

A grand stand accident at a Mexican bull fight was reported as happening "while the picadors prodded their ancient nags and the matadors slew the three bulls in the ring." Or vice versa, as the bull fight reporter would chronicle the baseball game: "The pitchers pitched to the three batters as the man put out at first was called safe on third."

In Secretary Stimson's detailed report on the American Army and Navy our weakness is the strength of the argument.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE TROUT FISHERMAN.

Some say it is too much like toil
To wade a running brook,
And stand where rushing waters coil
To cast a feathered hook.
And some with cards prefer to play
With sheltering walls about
Than work and wear their strength away
To catch a mess of trout.

To some the woods are dark and grim
And lonesome haunts and drear;
The song birds on the leafy limb
They never seem to hear.
They'd walk a stream and never see
The new hatch bursting out.
And so for them 'twould labor be
To angle long for trout.

But those who love the brooks they wade,
And know each turn and bend
Find pleasure for them newly made
Until the long day's end.
There is so much for them to see,
That they can do without
A chatterbox for company
Who go to fish for trout.

Like men who go alone to prayer
Alone they walk the stream
To see God's wonders everywhere
And of them think and dream.
They find in flower and bird and tree
A cure for every doubt,
Which may perhaps the reason be
They like to fish for trout.

You Can't Change a Climate Fatal to Children, But You Can Keep the Children Out of It.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"THE poor man hasn't got a chance," complains the laborer. "I got along fairly well when there was nobody to care for except my wife and myself; but it takes more than I can earn to feed and clothe four kids, and every year brings another one to make matters worse. It's enough to make anybody turn Bolshevik. There's no justice for a poor man."

Well and truly spoken! But whose fault is it?

Conditions have changed but little since this man's children were born. He knew, before they were born, that he would be unable to provide abundance for them.

Were they wished on him by an unkind Providence, or forced upon him by some hateful law?

He fared well without children. Whose is the fault if he is overburdened now?

In a few years he will begin to compare his children with the children of more prosperous men. He will observe that his own feel inferior and resentful because the others are better clothed. He will be filled with bitterness because his children need medical and surgical attention he cannot afford. He will hate the world because he cannot give them the educational advantages enjoyed by others.

His children will be handicapped, and he will be powerless to mend matters.

But he could have prevented the unfairness he now resents. No law compelled him to bring children into the world.

The more children born to the poor, the fewer jobs there are for poor men. Every child born to poverty adds to the number of workers and thus reduces wages.

Eleven States now recognize the truth that people of unsound mind have no right to bring their kind into the world.

If it is wrong to give life to the unfit, is it right to give life to those who must suffer for want of training and decent opportunity?

No man, having become a father, would willfully doom his child to ignorance, poverty and suffering. By what right, then, does he bring a child into the world, knowing how great its handicap must be?

Enlightened men can no longer plead the irresponsibility of savages or cattle.

If a man can't prevent the hardships children suffer, he can at least prevent the children.

Chances for More Work.

Detroit News.

The adminstration at Washington is perfectly right in opposing a huge bond issue for unspecified public works for the immediate relief of unemployment. Such a scheme would only mean pork-barrel legislation by Congress and a huge waste of the people's money. On the other hand, the administration is not using its imagination or forsight overtime if it can see no means of increasing public works plans beyond those now on the books.

There is, for example, the vast problem of flood control on the Mississippi River system, which has by no means been solved by the Government plan of levees and run-off channels. The scheme on which the Government is now working is admittedly the cheapest emergency solution; but it fails to offer complete protection for the full length of the Mississippi system—which includes the Missouri, the Ohio, and other vast rivers—against such an inundation as that of 1927, and it does not take into consideration the related problems of navigation and power generation.

Prof. Hunt's "Eugenic Democracy."

Detroit News.

The "eugenic democracy" described by Prof. Harrison R. Hunt, of Michigan State College—a democracy in which the right to vote and to hold office would be limited to "persons of good mental capacity, public spirit, humanitarian enthusiasm and interest in governmental affairs"—presents the singular feature of not being a democracy at all, but an oligarchy.

Prof. Hunt describes such an electorfate and such an office-holding hierarchy as an ideal not to be achieved at once. Rather, it is not to be achieved at all by such a nation as ours; and it is not so certain that it is an ideal. So long as we are wedded to the democratic theory, we shall have to stick to a wide suffrage and a frequently unwise choice of public officers while at the same time, by compulsory education, by gradual improvement of our schools, and by lengthening the educational period, we try to raise the general intellectual level.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

An Ardent Wet Finds Much to Complain of, Even Though Plenty of Liquor Is Available.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial "International Wets" of June 12, after referring to the alleged oversupply of liquor in this country, you ask "If everybody, even children, is getting all the good liquor he craves, why the wets worry?"

The Post is read by the best informed and most intelligent people in the Capital of the United States. If a poll were to be taken among its readers there is little doubt that 75 or 90 per cent of them would prove to be opposed to prohibition. That is assuming that they are as intelligent as we think they are.

While there is a vast amount of hard liquor in this country, it is not available to all at such times and places as to be most convenient and to do the most good. The price of whisky and especially gin is far lower than before prohibition and it is becoming steadily cheaper, but there is no guarantee as to their quality. People fear the danger of drinking bad liquor and they detest the degrading manner in which prohibition compels them to drink it. No one enjoys a drink, nor even a meal, in a place that may be raided any moment or where there is a constant fear that some prohibition agent may poke a gun in his face. Moreover good beer and good wine are rarely available in such places and in such surroundings as are most likely to promote good cheer and sociability, such for instance as in the restaurants and music halls of Europe and indeed all other civilized countries, except our own. The idea of sneaking off to some secluded place to drink a glass of beer or wine is intolerable to any one with a proper sense of personal dignity, or right and of decency.

There are 50 or 60 millions of people in the country who have always used liquor in some form and always will, no matter what laws prevail. As soon as prohibitionists realize this fact and devote their energies to control of the quality of our liquor and the manner of consuming it, the whole dreadful farce will be ended and everybody will be happy.

These are a few of the things the wets have to worry about in spite of the large supply of liquor in the country.

Universal Fingerprinting Is Advocated As a Means of Positive Identification in Many Fields.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I desire to bring to your attention the subject of universal fingerprinting.

When fingerprinting is brought to the attention of the majority of people and they are advised to have their fingerprints taken and placed on file as means of positive identification in the event of serious accident or amnesia, they are opposed to the idea because they think that the science of fingerprinting is connected only with the police in the detection of crime.

This is a mistaken idea. Hospitals and authorities on hospitals all over the country are advocating the finger printing of every one. They claim that this would eliminate the uncertainty of identity in cases of serious accident and positively identify those who are now buried by the thousands as unidentified dead.

Fingerprinting would also be invaluable to the general public as a means of identification in the issuing of letters of credit, and other banking transactions, issuing of automobile licenses, permits for carrying fire arms, the registration of voters and many other instances where a positive identification is necessary.

Thinking people all over the country are realizing the great benefits that are to be derived from universal fingerprinting. In Michigan, a new law requires that all aliens in that State be fingerprinted. There has also been introduced in the State legislature of Michigan a bill which, if passed, will require the fingerprinting of every person in the State over 16 years of age. In the Wayne County Hospital, of Eloise, Mich., the fingerprinting of all inmates was recently inaugurated.

In our neighboring country, Mexico, a new law requires all Government officials, from the president down, to have their fingerprints and other personal records placed on file. And so it goes—universal fingerprinting is bound to come and the sooner it comes the better it will be for all of us.

Writer Calls for Facts About Evils of Liquor Before Prohibition Was Adopted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of June 9 is a letter from Jl O. Knott recalling the horrors of the days when there was much drinking, and in your issue of June 11 from C. B. of a similar import. These are timely letters and the writer wishes more of our men and women who know the facts would write and tell us. Such testimony is priceless.

There are doubtless many men and women who lived in saloon days who did not pay attention to such things. Now, when zealous, hysterical persons call their attention to the unfortunate conditions and attribute it all to the coming of prohibition, they are easily misled. We need the testimoney of reliable witnesses to the real facts.

Many writers and speakers seem to have been born since the war and the coming of prohibition and they attribute all the evils in sight either to the war on prohibition or to both in combination. It is a bad habit, for it is not true.

Can't you get more of your reliable readers who lived before the war and prohibition to tell us about the real conditions that prevailed?

FARM BOARD SEEKS WHEAT SALE ABROAD

Stone Denies Promise That Surplus Will Be Held Another Year.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Stone said yesterday the Farm Board's stabilization wheat will be sold abroad so long as it does not disturb the world market.

If a good foreign demand continues, he said, wheat will be offered in keeping with the board's policy of disposing of its huge surplus stocks in a manner that will impose the minimum burden on competitors.

The board last February set 35,000,000 bushels for sale abroad to clear terminals at seaboard ports. At least 25,000,000 bushels have been sold.

Stone said as much more as can be disposed of in foreign countries without affecting their markets will be offered.

Careful Handling Promised.

As for sales on the domestic market, he said the policy of careful handling was still in effect, and denied that he had promised Kansas grain men a statement on whether the board would withhold the more than 200,000,000 bushels of stabilization wheat from American markets for a year.

He said he had agreed to submit proposals that the surplus be held off the terminals for a year to the full board for consideration, and if a change in policy were decided upon then a statement would be forthcoming.

He intimated, however, there was little likelihood the policy would be altered.

Foreign Demand Fairly Good.

The board had hoped the 35,000,000 bushels of wheat would be sold by July 1. A fairly good foreign demand has been reported by the Agriculture Department. Wheat stocks in some European countries have been reported unusually low. Russia, however, has surpassed its sowings of 1930, when it became the world's largest grower.

Stone said the effect on the market can be told only after the sale.

He took cognizance of the drought in the Northwest and in Canada and said reports coming to him described a serious situation.

With considerable destruction already reported, the chairman said he believed the effect on wheat prices would be bullish.

Samuel R. McKelvie, grain member of the board, retired yesterday, after two years of service. He will remain in Washington several days before returning to his home, in Lincoln, Nebr.

Two Places Now Vacant.

His retirement creates the second vacancy on the board. C. C. Teague, vice chairman, resigned June 1. Their successors have not been chosen by President Hoover.

McKelvie submitted a report yesterday on the recent London International Wheat Conference in which he saw a reduction of world production as one of the possible results.

He also said few, if any, of the delegates to the conference had authority to commit their governments on an export quota plan and that in some cases it was plainly a case of "political face-saving."

He also denied that what Russian delegates described as the failure of the conference could be charged to the United States.

Beauty Who Slew Husband Returns

Mrs. C.N. Nixon-Nirdlinger Asserts She Grieves Over Tragedy.

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—With "practically no plans at all" for her future, Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon-Nirdlinger, former St. Louis beauty contestant, who slew her husband in France last March, returned to America today. She said all she wanted was to forget the past and be happy with her children.

The queen of the 1923 Atlantic City beauty pageant, who fired four shots into the body of Fred G. Nirdlinger, of Philadelphia, in their villa at Nice, France, commented on the tragedy.

"I am very sad about the whole thing. It was terrible."

A French jury acquitted her in nine minutes at her trial.

"I was afraid all the time that I would not be vindicated," she remarked.

WAY SOUGHT TO END COASTAL RATE WAR

Ship Operators Are Warned Federal Intervention May Be Alternative.

(Associated Press.)

Warned of impending governmental regulation unless they end their rate-cutting war, intercoastal ship operators, meeting yesterday with the Shipping Board, took steps to reach an agreement.

A committee comprising representatives of all types of intercoastal lines, as well as of the Shipping Board, was named and immediately began a series of meetings.

Delegates from some of the proprietary lines and industrial operators declined to promise they would accept any conference agreement, although most of them agreed to "sit in" on the preliminary discussions.

Both Edgar F. Luckenbach, president of the Luckenbach Line, and P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine, said no conference could stabilize rates without the active cooperation of the industrial carriers.

A statement by H. W. Warley, of the Calmar Line, owned by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, that "on the advice of counsel" his line had never joined the conference, although observing conference rates, drew Luckenbach's criticism.

"If it is illegal for them to join, why isn't it illegal for me?" he inquired, suggesting that Warley produce the legal opinion on which his position was taken

The Ford Motor Co. declined to make any promises about joining in the conference plan. The Isthmian, Calmar, Arrow, Shepard, Union Sulphur, Panama Mail and Nelson Lines, all of which are proprietary or industrial carriers, agreed to enter into the discussions without pledging themselves to join.

Franklin declared the only real solution of the rate-cutting problem "is to have the Shipping Board get authority from Congress under which it can definitely fix the minimum rates and conditions and have full power to force everybody to maintain it."

Chairman T. V. O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, in opening the meeting predicted that "unless you put your own affairs in order, regulation of a more drastic nature is sure to come."

EXILED EMPRESS ZITA TO DROP TITLE IN PLAN TO CROWN SON

afternoon with Zita's proposal for the renunciation of the title as the basis of the conversation and negotiations which will be continued.

Many Hungarian legitimists recently have renewed the campaign to place Otto on the throne, which he and his followers have claimed since the young archduke reached his sixteenth birthday.

A group of Austrian monarchists visited Zita at her villa at Delle Pianore, near Lucca, and insisted that she should not renounce all hereditary rights over Austria.

The title of empress, however, has been considered inappropriate in the present Austrian internal situation, the advisors of Zita believed, and it also conflicts with various international agreements. It was decided, therefore, to arrange for renunciation of the title, to permit Zita to resume the oldest of the Hapsburg titles—Duchess of Austria, which dates from the thirteenth century.

Carl had assumed the title of Emperor of Austria, a Catholic dynasty in a nation which is 94 per cent Catholic, and apostolic king of Hungary, the 1,000-year-old kingdom of Magyars. The Hapsburg line derived its power from the Holy Roman Empire, reached the summit of power in the sixteenth century under Charles V. Since then they have been, with hardly an exception, advocates of the monarchial tradition and vigorous supporters of the Catholic idea, assuming the title of apostolic majesty in Hungary in recognition of the authority of the church.

The movement for placing Otto, fair-haired 18-year-old pretender, on the throne, has not been opposed by Italy, but has met with the vigorous opposition of Roumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. The Hungarian monarchists have claimed that the movement was popular in their country and that it was not opposed by the government of Premier Bethlen.

Recently the presence of Zita in Italy has been reported in connection with plans for the marriage of Otto and Princess Maria, youngest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

AMERICA FIRST.

President Hoover's address at Indianapolis is an effective answer to the criticism that has been leveled at him because of the depression. The President maintains an abiding faith in the elemental soundness of America's economic structure. He places no confidence in panaceas. In the people themselves he sees the power of regeneration. No sudden stroke by either the Government or private organizations, he says, can dissolve the world difficulties. But there can be no doubt that the people themselves will assert their energy and rise to a higher degree of prosperity than they have yet known.

It may be anticipated that critics will take issue with the common sense of the President. Hot-headed insurgents would plunge the country into a bottomless morass of socialism in their frantic efforts to cure the depression. Deluded economists would open American markets to cheap foreign goods in a desperate effort to revive business. But President Hoover has not been swerved from his firm purpose to protect American industry, labor and agriculture. Nor is he ready to scrap the existing economic machinery because abuse has made repairs and adjustments necessary.

In the midst of demands for "plans" leading to a new economic order, Mr. Hoover introduced a plan of progress in the same channels in which American industry has been successfully running. He leaves the execution of the plan to the people, secure in the belief that if they are given a chance they will make the most of it. The Government can assist chiefly by protecting the people and equalizing opportunity among them. The President left no doubt of his stand on the proposed regimentation of citizens under an industrial bureaucracy.

President Hoover gives no heed to the pleas that this country sacrifice its own interests in an effort to restore world-wide prosperity. The first service that the United States can render in this respect is to put its own house in order. A prosperous United States, he says, will be the beginning of a prosperous world. Each country must solve its own problems, in spite of economic interdependence. No nation can build up world prosperity by impoverishing its own people.

An effort to reduce the tariff at this time would be a calamity. President Hoover recognizes that there are inequalities in the Smoot-Hawley act, but no legislation is perfect. The Tariff Commission is at work ironing out the rough spots in the act, but the protective system itself must remain intact. This is no time to fritter away the great domestic market for the right of selling abroad to bankrupt peoples. The shrinkage of foreign trade amounts to only 2 to 3 per cent of America's total production. How insignificant in comparison with domestic commerce. President Hoover's declaration that the redeeming strength of the United States lies within itself is sound and convincing.

Under President Hoover's direction the Government has done all that it can to mitigate the effects of the depression without injecting politics into business. An enormous building program is under way. Other expenditures have been trimmed and every effort is being made to avoid an increase in taxes. Immigration has been almost cut off that Americans might have all available jobs. American producers have been protected from unfair foreign competition. Unquestionably these policies have exercised a stabilizing influence. Beyond that the Government may not venture without departing from the traditional American policy. The President will not be stampeded into rash ventures. His insistence upon the continued application of sound economics and his unwavering confidence in the future should have a stimulating effect upon the Nation.

THE ST. PHILBERT TRAGEDY.

The latest tragedy of the sea that brought sorrow to hundreds of French homes calls forth world-wide sympathy. That such sudden and overwhelming calamity should doom merrymakers returning from a Sunday picnic makes their loss seem all the more shocking. Striking coincidences of a sudden squall encountered by the heavily loaded and frail excursion boat at a fateful point in its course resulted in a sudden stampede of the deck passengers, causing it to capsize. Reports yesterday brought word that searchers for the bodies of the many victims encountered a scene of beauty and a calm sea that mocked with irony the tempestuous fury of the day before.

The St. Philbert was a flimsy river steamer only 100 feet long that carried members of the workers' unions from Nantes and St. Nazaire on a holiday excursion to the Island of Noirmoutier. It was upon the return trip along the coast of the Bay of Biscay, but a few miles from the mouth of the River Loire, that the accident happened.

The danger of overloaded decks on excursion steamers, even in more peaceful waters than the open sea, has been demonstrated repeatedly in this country. A listing of the vessel brings panic and disaster. In this case a sudden wind-blown rain sent passengers crowding to the leeward side for shelter and their weight, added to the force of the wind, overturned the boat. The few excursionists who remained behind on the return trip, through fear of the sea or illness, will consider themselves forewarned of a fateful end, or perhaps they were more discerning than the officers of the boat who set out in the face of the storm. The frailty of human judgment is again irremediable and to France can only be offered the world's sympathy.

MR. FORD LOOKS BACKWARD.

By studying the past, Henry Ford believes, humanity is made to advance more than by continually guessing at the future. In a new book, "Ford, Men and Methods," by Edwin P. Norwood, the value of history is discussed in the preface. Mr. Ford states that so long as the past has been faithfully recorded it is of inestimable value. He says:

> I am not in accord with the teaching which admonishes us to at all times keep our eyes set steadfastly ahead. On the contrary, I believe the further one may look into the past, the further he will be able to look into the future.

This sounds very different from the statement Mr. Ford is quoted as having made a few years ago when asked for his opinion on history. At this time he replied, "History is bunk." It is gratifying to find that he has fallen in line with the majority of thinkers. He may have reached this conclusion after applying to it the rigid tests that he uses before making any radical changes in his factory.

The system of trial and error dictates policies in the Ford plant. It is used all along the line, Mr. Ford tells us, and has proved to be the best way to guide development of methods and technique in all of the many branches. A complete record is kept of the findings of experiments, and these are studied in connection with the records of other concerns in an effort to improve on current methods. A knowledge of these accomplished facts, Mr. Ford says, enables the present to be translated all the more quickly into the past, and through such translation it is that progress is made.

Whether Mr. Ford has been convinced that his former views on history were wrong, due to his own discoveries, or to persuasion, he does not mention, but obviously his mind has changed. Society has won him over to the view it holds on the value of history, but it can hardly afford to boast, for Mr. Ford has made history and taught society things that have revolutionized its life.

INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY.

No more ambitious or comprehensive plan for relieving the depression has been suggested than that sponsored by the National Civic Federation. Many different organizations have interested themselves in economic fact finding and have urged closer coordination of industry with a view of eliminating waste and restoring a balance between production and consumption. But the federation looks beyond such palliatives to the creation of a great "democratic industrial structure comparable to our democratic political structure."

At the present stage of economic development the hope of setting up machinery that would regulate production, distribution and consumption with clocklike precision is extremely utopian. If the federation's plan were put into practice it might result in the greatest revolution of industry that this country has ever experienced. The existing industrial structure is built up on the theory of competition among producers. Each industrialist looks out for himself. If he produces too much of any commodity he is penalized by lowering its value. If he produces too little others may step in and share the profits and thus a balance is restored. The inexorable law of supply and demand is supreme.

Under the plan outlined by Matthew Woll for the Civic Federation the laws of supply and demand would give way to artificial regulation. An attempt would be made to determine the national requirements over a given period of time. These requirements would include the necessities of life for the entire population. Then the task of distributing this work among the industrial establishments and distribution agencies would be undertaken. Presumably hours of labor for all workmen would be based on the time that would be required to produce the necessities of life for every one, with all willing hands employed. The directing force of this industrial superstructure would also undertake to determine the character and design of industrial equipment needed and the distribution of credit.

Identification of this scheme with the five-year plan of Soviet Russia seems unavoidable. The Soviet is trying to achieve industrial stabilization by establishing a gigantic monopoly directed from Moscow. While the Soviet economic machine is under control of a militant dictatorship, the plan which is offered to the United States would be operated under democratic control. Just how representation would be worked out and how the superstructure could be operated without jeopardizing human rights is not made plain. But the practicability of any such plan that would not involve a surrender of rights may be questioned. Centralized control and serfdom usually go hand in hand.

It does not seem probable that the Civic Federation's project will meet with general approval. Nevertheless, it stimulates thought on the subject of industrial stability and re-emphasized the need for leadership in the present crisis. Too many business leaders are merely waiting for something to turn up. The situation demands action, not a radical overturning of the industrial system that has been built up in modern times, but adjustment of the factors that were thrown out of balance by the rapid changes during the last decade.

The future will, no doubt, bring greater coordination of industry, but it will be a gradual development. The industrial structure can not be remodeled within a day without risking the destruction of all that has been gained in centuries.

Some enterprising politician might find Al Capone in just the right mood to finance a campaign against the Government prying into business.

Ohio is all excited about the falling of a meteor, but the public will doubtless become accustomed to such phenomena in 1932.

It's odd that no Democrat has thought of attributing the civil war in China to the Smoot-Hawley bill.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 15.—One of the most interesting and encouraging developments of the past fifteen years has been the citizens' military training camps. At the outset they were not considered any too favorably by the Government. Now they have become an institution.

While a considerable value attaches to them as centers of military instruction their scope is much broader. They are really schools of good citizenship. The chief weakness of military life is that it tends to become purely professional and detached. The remedy is the citizen soldier. When he appears the misunderstanding and suspicion between civil and military authority diminishes. Instead of being something to be distrusted and feared the soldier becomes a neighbor and friend. The uniform is considered a badge of protection.

Although but 37,500 can be taken into camp this year over 76,000 already have applied for admission. The great significance of this is that our people are not looking to mercenaries for protection but are determined to protect themselves. In disciplining the body and mind, in teaching practical patriotism, the camps fill an important place. They demonstrate the power of the people, with or without the approbation of government, to act in emergency and manage their own affairs.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

From the Boston Transcript.

Discoveries on the site of the ancient City of Beth-Shemesh, in Palestine, by the Haverford College and archeological expedition, confirm the scientific supposition that this gray mound on the border between Dan and Judah was once a part of Egypt's domain, once Philistine, once Hebrew, once Roman, once Byzantine; but it would have been more interesting if the American archeologists had found something like a visiting card of the giant Samson, or a bit of jewelry with the monogram of a lady named Delilah, in the ruins. For it is supposed that it was here, at Beth-Shemesh, that the famous betrayal of Samson—the shearing of the luxuriant locks, which resulted in the loss of his Herculean powers—took place. Modern criticism is inclined to make rather light of the feats of Samson, as recorded in the Scriptures. Similar tales of a gigantic hero—even of his temptation and fall—are found in Oriental literatures that go before the Hebrews'.

Nevertheless, the story of Samson is a very interesting one, and it has its moral. It does not culminate with Delilah's scissors, but with the tremendously thrilling relation of the way in which, exclaiming, "Let me die with the Philistines," Samson pulled down the pillars of the temple of the neighboring City of Gaza, precipitating him and also his tyrannous captors, who had brought him there to mock him, to their death. We read that nothing and nobody could withstand Samson until the wily Delilah wormed from him the secret of his strength, sheared his seven braided locks and reduced him to impotence. But the Philistines were a simple-minded lot, after all. It does not seem to have occurred to them that Samson's hair would grow again. They blinded him, and kept him alive to grind corn and for the fun of mocking him. The locks did grow again. He prayed for a renewal of his strength in order to be avenged on the Philistines "for one of the two eyes" that they had robbed him of! Resting for a moment between the pillars of the temple, Samson put his mighty arms about them, pulled them down and the falling roof killed him with his enemies.

Gaza, where Samson performed this feat, is still standing. It has ancient ruins; it may be that the very pillars that Samson pulled down are hiding somewhere in the ground about the place. It would be of interest if our Zionist friends should find them and set them up as a token of their return to the scene of past triumphs. Palestine is a great place in which to dig, as the archeologists are abundantly proving.

Uncle Sam Takes a Hand.

POST HASTE.

Speaking of war debts, has one word of thanks ever been heard for the big reductions made by the United States when the funding agreements were signed?

Gen. Gomez did not make the mistake of Porfirio Diaz. When he took a rest from the presidency he remained at the head of the Venezuelan army.

International decrees against permitting silver to tarnish would probably be about as effective as efforts to remove it from the commodity class.

The bumptious Capone now knows he can't dicker with Uncle Sam as he has with ward politicians.

Extreme pacifists among the fanatical drys will doubtless raise objections to the preparedness campaign of Col. Woodcock's dry army.

If Minister Wu's resignation is to set a precedent and permit sentiment for the old home town to supersede national obligation, there will have to be some exceptions added to the diplomatic oath.

The Sidney Smiths were robbed of $50,000 in an automobile holdup in Chicago. Sidney doubtless secured ideas worth more than that for Gumps cartoons.

Brazil will burn 50,000 bags of poor grade coffee. Why not send it to England? The English wouldn't notice.

Reputations for statesmanship are going to suffer if the two British irreconcilables, Snowden and Lloyd George, can't compromise a minor point of taxation and avoid a political smash.

A grand stand accident at a Mexican bull fight was reported as happening "while the picadors prodded their ancient nags and the matadors slew the three bulls in the ring." Or vice versa, as the bull fight reporter would chronicle the baseball game: "The pitchers pitched to the three batters as the man put out at first was called safe on third."

In Secretary Stimson's detailed report on the American Army and Navy our weakness is the strength of the argument.

JUST FOLKS

THE TROUT FISHERMAN.

Some say it is too much like toil
To wade a running brook,
And stand where rushing waters coil
To cast a feathered hook.
And some with cards prefer to play
With sheltering walls about
Than work and wear their strength away
To catch a mess of trout.

To some the woods are dark and grim
And lonesome haunts and drear;
The song birds on the leafy limb
They never seem to hear.
They'd walk a stream and never see
The new hatch bursting out,
And so for them 'twould labor be
To angle long for trout.

But those who love the brooks they wade,
And know each turn and bend
Find pleasure for them newly made
Until the long day's end.
There is so much for them to see,
That they can do without
A chatterbox for company
Who go to fish for trout.

Like men who go alone to prayer
Alone they walk the stream
To see God's wonders everywhere
And of them think and dream.
They find in flower and bird and tree
A cure for every doubt,
Which may perhaps the reason be
They like to fish for trout.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"THE poor man hasn't got a chance," complains the laborer. "I got along fairly well when there was nobody to care for except my wife and myself; but it takes more than I can earn to feed and clothe four kids, and every year brings another one to make matters worse. It's enough to make anybody turn Bolshevik. There's no justice for a poor man."

Well and truly spoken! But whose fault is it?

Conditions have changed but little since this man's children were born. He knew, before they were born, that he would be unable to provide abundance for them.

Were they wished on him by an unkind Providence, or forced upon him by some hateful law?

He fared well without children. Whose is the fault if he is overburdened now?

In a few years he will begin to compare his children with the children of more prosperous men. He will observe that his own feel inferior and resentful because the others are better clothed. He will be filled with bitterness because his children need medical and surgical attention he cannot afford. He will hate the world because he cannot give them the educational advantages enjoyed by others.

His children will be handicapped, and he will be powerless to mend matters.

But he could have prevented the unfairness he now resents. No law compelled him to bring children into the world.

The more children born to the poor, the fewer jobs there are for poor men. Every child born to poverty adds to the number of workers and thus reduces wages.

Eleven States now recognize the truth that people of unsound mind have no right to bring their kind into the world.

If it is wrong to give life to the unfit, is it right to give life to those who must suffer for want of training and decent opportunity?

No man, having become a father, would willfully doom his child to ignorance, poverty and suffering. By what right, then, does he bring a child into the world, knowing how great its handicap must be?

Enlightened men can no longer plead the irresponsibility of savages or cattle.

If a man can't prevent the hardships children suffer, he can at least prevent the children.

Chances for More Work.

Detroit News.

The adminstration at Washington is perfectly right in opposing a huge bond issue for unspecified public works for the immediate relief of unemployment. Such a scheme would only mean pork-barrel legislation by Congress and a huge waste of the people's money. On the other hand, the administration is not using its imagination or forsight overtime if it can see no means of increasing public works plans beyond those now on the books.

There is, for example, the vast problem of flood control on the Mississippi River system, which has by no means been solved by the Government plan of levees and run-off channels. The scheme on which the Government is now working is admittedly the cheapest emergency solution; but it fails to offer complete protection for the full length of the Mississippi system—which includes the Missouri, the Ohio, and other vast rivers—against such an inundation as that of 1927, and it does not take into consideration the related problems of navigation and power generation.

Prof. Hunt's "Eugenic Democracy."

Detroit News.

The "eugenic democracy" described by Prof. Harrison R. Hunt, of Michigan State College—a democracy in which the right to vote and to hold office would be limited to "persons of good mental capacity, public spirit, humanitarian enthusiasm and interest in governmental affairs"—presents the singular feature of not being a democracy at all, but an oligarchy.

Prof. Hunt describes such an electorfate and such an office-holding hierarchy as an ideal not to be achieved at once. Rather, it is not to be achieved at all by such a nation as ours; and it is not so certain that it is an ideal. So long as we are wedded to the democratic theory, we shall have to stick to a wide suffrage and a frequently unwise choice of public officers while at the same time, by compulsory education, by gradual improvement of our schools, and by lengthening the educational period, we try to raise the general intellectual level.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

An Ardent Wet Finds Much to Complain of, Even Though Plenty of Liquor Is Available.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial "International Wets" of June 12, after referring to the alleged oversupply of liquor in this country, you ask "If everybody, even children, is getting all the good liquor he craves, why the wets worry?"

The Post is read by the best informed and most intelligent people in the Capital of the United States. If a poll were to be taken among its readers there is little doubt that 75 or 80 per cent of them would prove to be opposed to prohibition. That is assuming that they are as intelligent as we think they are.

While there is a vast amount of hard liquor in this country, it is not available to all at such times and places as to be most convenient and to do the most good. The price of whisky and especially gin is far lower than before prohibition and it is becoming steadily cheaper, but there is no guarantee as to their quality. People fear the danger of drinking bad liquor and they detest the degrading manner in which prohibition compels them to drink it. No one enjoys a drink, nor even a meal, in a place that may be raided any moment or where there is a constant fear that some prohibition agent may poke a gun in his face. Moreover good beer and good wine are rarely available in such places and in such surroundings as are most likely to promote good cheer and sociability, such for instance as in the restaurants and music halls of Europe and indeed all other civilized countries, except our own. The idea of sneaking off to some secluded place to drink a glass of beer or wine is intolerable to any one with a proper sense of personal dignity, or right and of decency.

There are 50 or 60 millions of people in the country who have always used liquor in some form and always will, no matter what laws prevail. As soon as prohibitionists realize this fact and devote their energies to control of the quality of our liquor and the manner of consuming it, the whole dreadful farce will be ended and everybody will be happy.

These are a few of the things the wets have to worry about in spite of the large supply of liquor in the country.

Universal Fingerprinting Is Advocated As a Means of Positive Identification in Many Fields.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I desire to bring to your attention the subject of universal fingerprinting.

When fingerprinting is brought to the attention of the majority of people and they are advised to have their fingerprints taken and placed on file as means of positive identification in the event of serious accident or amnesia, they are opposed to the idea because they think that the science of fingerprinting is connected only with the police in the detection of crime.

This is a mistaken idea. Hospitals and authorities on hospitals all over the country are advocating the finger printing of every one. They claim that this would eliminate the uncertainty of identity in cases of serious accident and positively identify those who are now buried by the thousands as unidentified dead.

Fingerprinting would also be invaluable to the general public as a means of identification in the issuing of letters of credit, and other banking transactions, issuing of automobile licenses, permits for carrying fire arms, the registration of voters and many other instances where a positive identification is necessary.

Thinking people all over the country are realizing the great benefits that are to be derived from universal fingerprinting. In Michigan, a new law requires that all aliens in that State be fingerprinted. There has also been introduced in the State legislature of Michigan a bill which, if passed, will require the fingerprinting of every person in the State over 16 years of age. In the Wayne County Hospital, of Eloise, Mich., the fingerprinting of all inmates was recently inaugurated.

In our neighboring country, Mexico, a new law requires all Government officials, from the president down, to have their fingerprints and other personal records placed on file. And so it goes—universal fingerprinting is bound to come and the sooner it comes the better it will be for all of us.

WILLIAM F. GROSSKURTH.

Writer Calls for Facts About Evils of Liquor Before Prohibition Was Adopted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of June 9 is a letter from Jt O. Knott recalling the horrors of the days when there was much drinking, and in your issue of June 11 from C. B. of a similar import. These are timely letters and the writer wishes more of our men and women who know the facts would write and tell us. Such testimony is priceless.

There are doubtless many men and women who lived in saloon days who did not pay attention to such things. Now, when zealous, hysterical persons call their attention to the unfortunate conditions and attribute it all to the coming of prohibition, they are easily misled. We need the testimony of reliable witnesses to the real facts.

Many writers and speakers seem to have been born since the war and the coming of prohibition and they attribute all the evils in sight either to the war on prohibition or to both in combination. It is a bad habit, for it is not true.

Can't you get more of your reliable readers who lived before the war and prohibition to tell us about the real conditions that prevailed?

FARM BOARD SEEKS WHEAT SALE ABROAD

Stone Denies Promise That Surplus Will Be Held Another Year.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Stone said yesterday the Farm Board's stabilization wheat will be sold abroad so long as it does not disturb the world market.

If a good foreign demand continues, he said, wheat will be offered in keeping with the board's policy of disposing of its huge surplus stocks in a manner that will impose the minimum burden on competitors.

The board last February set 35,000,000 bushels for sale abroad to clear terminals at seaboard ports. At least 25,000,000 bushels have been sold.

Stone said as much more as can be disposed of in foreign countries without affecting their markets will be offered.

Careful Handling Promised.

As for sales on the domestic market, he said the policy of careful handling was still in effect, and denied that he had promised Kansas grain men a statement on whether the board would withhold the more than 200,000,000 bushels of stabilization wheat from American markets for a year.

He said he had agreed to submit proposals that the surplus be held off the terminals for a year to the full board for consideration, and if a change in policy were decided upon then a statement would be forthcoming.

He intimated, however, there was little likelihood the policy would be altered.

Foreign Demand Fairly Good.

The board had hoped the 35,000,000 bushels of wheat would be sold by July 1. A fairly good foreign demand has been reported by the Agriculture Department. Wheat stocks in some European countries have been reported unusually low. Russia, however, has surpassed its sowings of 1930, when it became the world's largest grower.

Stone said the effect on the market can be told only after the sale.

He took cognizance of the drought in the Northwest and in Canada and said reports coming to him described a serious situation.

With considerable destruction already reported, the chairman said he believed the effect on wheat prices would be bullish.

Samuel R. McKelvie, grain member of the board, retired yesterday, after two years of service. He will remain in Washington several days before returning to his home, in Lincoln, Nebr.

Two Places Now Vacant.

His retirement creates the second vacancy on the board. C. C. Teague, vice chairman, resigned June 1. Their successors have not been chosen by President Hoover.

McKelvie submitted a report yesterday on the recent London International Wheat Conference in which he saw a reduction of world production as one of the possible results.

He also said few, if any, of the delegates to the conference had authority to commit their governments on an export quota plan and that in some cases it was plainly a case of "political face-saving."

He also denied that what Russian delegates described as the failure of the conference could be charged to the United States.

Beauty Who Slew Husband Returns

Mrs. C.N. Nixon-Nirdlinger Asserts She Grieves Over Tragedy.

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—With "practically no plans at all" for her future, Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon-Nirdlinger, former St. Louis beauty contestant, who slew her husband in France last March, returned to America today. She said all she wanted was to forget the past and be happy with her children.

The queen of the 1923 Atlantic City beauty pageant, who fired four shots into the body of Fred G. Nirdlinger, of Philadelphia, in their villa at Nice, France, commented on the tragedy.

"I am very sad about the whole thing. It was terrible."

A French jury acquitted her in nine minutes at her trial.

"I was afraid all the time that I would not be vindicated," she remarked.

WAY SOUGHT TO END COASTAL RATE WAR

Ship Operators Are Warned Federal Intervention May Be Alternative.

(Associated Press.)

Warned of impending governmental regulation unless they end their rate-cutting war, intercoastal ship operators, meeting yesterday with the Shipping Board, took steps to reach an agreement.

A committee comprising representatives of all types of intercoastal lines, as well as of the Shipping Board, was named and immediately began a series of meetings.

Delegates from some of the proprietary lines and industrial operators declined to promise they would accept any conference agreement, although most of them agreed to "sit in" on the preliminary discussions.

Both Edgar F. Luckenbach, president of the Luckenbach Line, and P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine, said no conference could stabilize rates without the active cooperation of the industrial carriers.

A statement by H. W. Warley, of the Calmar Line, owned by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, that "on the advice of counsel" his line had never joined the conference, although observing conference rates, drew Luckenbach's criticism.

"If it is illegal for them to join, why isn't it illegal for me?" he inquired, suggesting that Warley produce the legal opinion on which his position was taken

The Ford Motor Co. declined to make any promises about joining in the conference plan. The Isthmian, Calmar, Arrow, Shepard, Union Sulphur, Panama Mail and Nelson Lines, all of which are proprietary or industrial carriers, agreed to enter into the discussions without pledging themselves to join.

Franklin declared the only real solution of the rate-cutting problem "is to have the Shipping Board get authority from Congress under which it can definitely fix the minimum rates and conditions and have full power to force everybody to maintain it."

Chairman T. V. O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, in opening the meeting predicted that "unless you put your own affairs in order, regulation of a more drastic nature is sure to come."

EXILED EMPRESS ZITA TO DROP TITLE IN PLAN TO CROWN SON

afternoon with Zita's proposal for the renunciation of the title as the basis of the conversation and negotiations which will be continued.

Many Hungarian legitimists recently have renewed the campaign to place Otto on the throne, which he and his followers have claimed since the young archduke reached his sixteenth birthday.

A group of Austrian monarchists visited Zita at her villa at Delle Pianore, near Lucca, and insisted that she should not renounce all hereditary rights over Austria.

The title of empress, however, has been considered inappropriate in the present Austrian internal situation, the advisors of Zita believed, and it also conflicts with various international agreements. It was decided, therefore, to arrange for renunciation of the title, to permit Zita to resume the oldest of the Hapsburg titles—Duchess of Austria, which dates from the thirteenth century.

Carl had assumed the title of Emperor of Austria, a Catholic dynasty in a nation which is 94 per cent Catholic, and apostolic king of Hungary, the 1,000-year-old kingdom of Magyars. The Hapsburg line derived its power from the Holy Roman Empire, reached the summit of power in the sixteenth century under Charles V. Since then they have been, with hardly an exception, advocates of the monarchial tradition and vigorous supporters of the Catholic idea, assuming the title of apostolic majesty in Hungary in recognition of the authority of the church.

The movement for placing Otto, fair-haired 18-year-old pretender, on the throne, has not been opposed by Italy, but has met with the vigorous opposition of Roumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. The Hungarian monarchists have claimed that the movement was popular in their country and that it was not opposed by the government of Premier Bethlen.

Recently the presence of Zita in Italy has been reported in connection with plans for the marriage of Otto and Princess Maria, youngest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

Honors Worn At Colleges by Capital Youths

Gen. Pershing's Son Seen as Most Promising Senior at Yale.

COMMENCEMENT exercises having been held at most of the universities and colleges throughout the country, Washington boys and girls have come in for a good share of the honors which have been awarded at the various institutions.

Heading the list is Francis Warren Pershing, son of Gen. John J. Pershing, who, although not really "of Washington," needs no introduction to the Capital City. He has been chosen as the member of the senior class of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University most likely to succeed, having received more votes for the different preferences than any other member of the class. He was third in the vote on the wittiest, the best dressed, and the best looking member, and fourth in the vote on the most brilliant. It would appear that the son of the famous World War general is altogether a model young man.

Only recently did Miss Caroline Huston Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huston Thompson, of Washington, step into the limelight as the winner of the Bryn Mawr scholarship to the International Students Institute at Geneva. Mr. Sumner Sigsbee Kittelle has returned to Washington to join his parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Sumner E. Kittele, after receiving a B. S. degree from the school of civil engineering at Purdue University, where he was graduated cum laude and was one of the two boys chosen from the institution for service with the Pennsylvania Railroad. Admiral and Mrs. Kittelle are planning a summer in the North and will leave the first part of July for Shandaken, N. Y., in the Catskills, where they have built a cottage.

Receiving the degree of bachelor of fine arts from Yale University is Miss Frances Roberta Boswell, of Washington, who will be awarded her diploma this afternoon in New Haven. Besides her studies at Yale, Miss Boswell has worked at the Corcoran Art School, George Washington University, Pennsylvania Academy and Fontainebleau, France.

Miss Thompson, but 20 years of age, was graduated from Bryn Mawr, magna cum laude, with the highest honors in archeology and international relations. After completing the two months' course at the institute in Geneva, she will linger there for further study. And upon the completion of her education, she will devote herself to lecturing on international politics. Miss Thompson is politically minded, like her father, who ranks high in Democratic party councils.

Minister of Switzerland Staying in New York.

The Minister of Ecuador and Senora de Viteri will entertain at a reception this afternoon and tomorrow will entertain again for Prof. Mario Eagela Atorre, of the University of Maryland, and Senor E. A. Timeo Auescum, who was graduated this year from George Washington University.

The Minister and Senora de Viteri, with their children will leave the middle of next month for the mountains of Pennsylvania, where they will spend the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. Sydney Cloman has as her guest in her home on Kalorama road, her grand niece, Miss Natalie Keeney, who arrived yesterday from Europe, where she has been at Princess Merstcherkey's school in Paris for the last two years. Miss Keeney is a niece of Mrs. Wilson Prichett. Mrs. Cloman's niece, who has passed the winter with her aunt from her home in Philadelphia. Mrs. Cloman with Mrs. Prichett and Miss Keeney will leave later in the summer for California.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter has gone to Lake Forest, Ill., where she has taken a house for the early summer season in order that she may be near her son, Mr. Thomas Leiter, in business in Chicago.

With her are her daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter, and her niece, Miss Audrey Campbell. Miss Campbell's brother, Mr. Colin Campbell, is also established in Chicago, and the group of young people are looking forward to a gay summer.

The Minister of Denmark and Mme. Wadsted entertained at dinner last night at the Shoreham, when their guests were the members of the legation staff.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer left Washington yesterday for New York.

Mrs. Delano Takes Cottage In Newport

Will Follow Husband in His Cruises During Coming Year.

Capt. and Mrs. Harvey Delano and their son, Victor, will leave Washington today for Newport, R. I., where Capt. Delano will assume command of the U. S. S. Vestal. Mrs. Delano has taken a house in Newport for the summer, and in the fall, when the Vestal leaves for a cruise, they will send their son to Wichita, Kans., to pass the winter with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Murdock, and to attend school there. Mrs. Delano will follow the ship, which will cruise in southern waters.

Capt. and Mrs. Delano have been stationed in Washington for several years and have made many friends during their several periods of duty here. Mrs. Delano, who was formerly Miss Marcia Murdock, has spent a great part of her life in Washington, her father having been a member of Congress for many years, and since her marriage, between foreign duties, Capt. Delano has returned to the Capital.

Mrs. Archibald Hopkins has gone to Suffern, N. Y., where she will be the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Patterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Williams will return to their apartment at the Shoreham on Friday from a motor trip to New England.

Mrs. A. M. Rust and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Rust, of Saginaw, Mich., are passing a day or two at the Mayflower and will return to New York for another short visit before going West.

M. Bousquet Returning. From Visit in France.

M. Raymond Bousquet, Second Secretary of the French Embassy, arrived in New York yesterday on the S. S. France, and will come to Washington to resume his duties after a month's absence in France. Mme. Bousquet, who preceded the secretary to France, will remain abroad for same time before returning in the fall.

The marriage of Miss Berthe Marie Anne Poirier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Poirier, of New Bedford, Mass., and Mr. Denis Bertrand, of Washington, took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Anthony's Church in New Bedford. Following the ceremony there was a reception. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand are originally from Louisiana.

The couple will make their home in Washington.

Miss Martha Scott will sail from New York on Thursday on the President Adams, of the Dollar line, for Los Angeles, via the Panama Canal. She will visit in California for several months, returning then to Washington.

Mrs. Walter Garritt Smith and her mother, Mrs. Kenneth McLennan, of Evanston, Ill., are guests at the Mayflower with the former's daughter, Miss Gertrude Smith, who will enter Miss Madeira's School in the autumn of 1932. Before coming to Washington they went to Greenwich, Conn., for the graduation of Mrs. Smith's other daughter, Miss Roslyn Paine, from Rosemary Hall.

Lieut. George Herrington Lyttle, U. S. N., and Mrs. Lyttle are the guests of Mrs. Lyttle's mother, Mrs. Gillette Saunders. Lieut. and Mrs. Lyttle, who spent the week-end in Annapolis, will return here today for a longer visit, after which they will go to New York, where Lieut. Lyttle will be stationed.

Mary Orme Is Married at "Valley View"

At Valley View, the home of Mr. and Mrs. James William Orme, on Georgia avenue, the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mary Eleanor Orme, and Mr. Nathaniel Taylor Kenney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Smith Kenney, of Pasadena, Md., took place last evening at 7:30 o'clock, the Rev. The bride was given away by her father. She wore a gown of ivory satin made on the prevailing lines. With it she wore a veil of tulle and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Marguerite E. Orme, and the bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Walsh Orme, were dressed alike in frocks of green mousseline de soie and carried yellow pernet roses.

The best man was Mr. John Daingerfield Lewis.

Immediately after the wedding a reception was held, when Mr. and Mrs. Orme and Mr. and Mrs. Kenney received with the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Orme's gown was of blue lace and Mrs. Kenney had chosen a gown of beige lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenney left for a wedding trip and later will be at home at 220 Longwood road, Baltimore. Mrs. Kenney's going away costume was a black and white ensemble.

Among the guests from out of town were Capt. and Mrs. John N. Popham, Mrs. Stuart Symington, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Black, Mr. and Mrs. William Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Black and Mr. and Mrs. Arlington Clark.

Several smart parties were given in honor of the bride, Miss Theodora Emerson having entertained at luncheon and other luncheons were given by Miss Mary Eleanor Hayden, Miss Catherine Roberts, Miss Mary McCarthy Power, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Orme and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Orme.

Miss Dent left Washington several days ago to make the cross-country trip.

Mrs. John Cassatt Tomlinson, of Kansas City, mother of the bridegroom, accompanied Miss Dent to Los Angeles to be present at the wedding ceremony.

Due to the recent illness of Mrs. Dent, the bride's mother, the journey to the Coast was deemed inadvisable for the bride's parents.

The bride chose an ensemble of beige crepe romaine in which to be married, with accessories to match.

Following a wedding trip, Lieut. and Mrs. Tomlinson will live in Coronado Beach for the duration of his duty on the West Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray P. Hoover, of Evanston, Ill., are making a week's visit in Washington at the Mayflower having come here to see Mrs. Arthur Williams, of Kensington, Md.

H. C. Villard To Come Here From Persia

Has Been Serving as Vice Consul in U. S. Service.

Detailed for duty in the Near Eastern Division of the State Department Mr. Henry Cerrano Villard, one of the notable New York Villards, will come to Washington about August 1, after several years spent in Teheran, Persia. Nephew of Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of Nation, the young diplomat is now on leave in New York having left Teheran recently, where he has been serving since the summer of 1928 as vice consul. The Persian post was his first assignment in the diplomatic service.

Armed with a formidable background of academic work Mr. Villard's university record is as interesting as his war duty. After finishing at Browning School he was graduated from Harvard, going on to Oxford where he gained a degree from Magdalene College, putting his knowledge to work after the World War by accepting a professorship at Thatcher College. During the war Mr. Villard served with the Italian Army.

Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, has returned to Washington from Boston, for a few days' stay, and will be at Wardman Park Hotel.

Scientists Explain Gambols Of Electrons in Solid Matter

American Association for Advancement of Science Hears Reports of Research Into Nature of Strange Manifestation of Life in Crystal Formations.

Pasadena, Calif., June 15 (A.P.).—The strange and little understood life that exists in what is assumed to be solid matter, such as metals, was one of the symposium topics today of the opening session of the American Association for Advancement of Science here.

This is not life in the sense generally known, but is the cavorting of electrons in the atomic structures of crystal formations. Nine-tenths of the use of matter in daily life applies to matter in solid state, and only one-tenth to liquid and gases, the physicists say. Although this is the most important as far as technical applications go, this solid state is one which modern physics know least of all.

Four of the foremost leaders in the country contributed to the symposium. They are Fritz Zwicky, of Pasadena; P. W. Bridgeman, of Harvard; C. J. Davisson, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, New York, and Alexander Goetz, of Pasadena.

The crystals which they study are imbedded in solid matter and are of sizes beginning at one ten-thousandth of an inch in diameter. The study is concentrated in the matter existing between crystals and this is about one ten-thousandth of an inch thick, and is known as the secondary structure, said Zwicky.

Bridgeman explained the elastic and electrical properties of crystals and Davisson explained the electron wave functions. Goetz told of microscopic experiments by electrolysis causing the atoms to rearrange themselves into new forms by which new substances of solids are formed for commercial uses.

Solids are formed by crystals arranged in various forms, as the bricklayer arranges brick into a wall. The secondary structure between the crystals is called sensitive structure. By changing this, said Goetz, properties of the crystals and the solid substance are changed.

For instance, he said, by adding two atoms of tin to approximately one million atoms of bismuth and putting them in a certain position with regard to the crystal, the magnetic properties of the crystal are considerably changed.

The knowledge gleaned by experimental physics, chemistry, metalography, and crystalography are combined in this new branch of physics. Thus is learned, said Goetz, the strange phenomena by which is determined the physical properties of matter in solid state.

Culbertson on Contract

By Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A Suicidal Double.
II.

THE sweet-tasting word "d-d-double" turns into bitter acid when the Doubler discovers that the only way opponents made their doubled contract was through some vital information obligingly revealed through the double.

Theodore Lightner, one of the five or six greatest players in the world, passed a sleepless night after opponents courteously pointed out to him that had he abstained from doubling their grand slam in hearts they never could have made it by defying mathematics in favor of inferences. His avid double helped the opponents to place a key card in his hand so they broke the rule and incidentally Teddy also.

Theodore Lightner was sitting South and as he picked up his hand he inaudibly groaned. A solitary heart Queen, Jack, Nine, stood out prominently in the desert of deuces, treys and other rags. Presently Lightner was to ascend the heights of pleasurable anticipation only to be hurled downward more violently.

The stage was set for the tragedy. Contract deal. No score all vulnerable.

	♠ J 9 7 6 ♥ — ♦ 6 5 4 3 ♣ 10 8 7 6 4
♠ Q ♥ A K 10 6 4 2 ♦ K Q J 8 ♣ A 5	W E N S	♠ A K 4 3 2 ♥ 8 7 5 3 ♦ A ♣ K Q 3
	♠ 10 8 5 ♥ Q J 9 ♦ 10 9 7 2 ♣ J 9 2

Mr. Lightner.

The bidding was scientifically involved but inexorable:

South	West	North	East
Dealer	1 H.	Pass	2 S.
Pass	3 H.	Pass	3 S.
Pass	4 D.	Pass	6 H.
Pass	7 H.	Pass	Pass
Double	All Pass

East's "two spades" is a jump bid in a new suit and constitutes a forcing signal after which both partners are conventionally obligated not to pass until some game bid is reached. This explains why West and East, though holding powerful hands, took their time until the end of the third round when East jumped directly to "six hearts."

Although, as a rule, Grand Slam bids should be made only when the bidding clearly indicates a practical certainty, West is quite logical in assuming that he holds a much stronger hand than East had the right to infer from previous bidding. Both players bid correctly and had they failed in making the Grand Slam the gods of distribution surely were to blame.

At this stage of the bidding Mr. Lightner, who had made four agonizing passes, suddenly cheered up and doubled the Grand Slam. He had Queen, Jack, Nine in trumps, a trick. It was soon apparent that the fatal word double carried its own germs of destruction. North after glancing at the Dummy quickly accounted for every Ace, King, or Queen in the pack and clamped the lid of elimination down tightly. There was no escape for Mr. Lightner. The only possible holding to justify even a bad double was Queen, Jack, Nine in Hearts. West therefore proceeded to make a double finesse capturing all three of South's trumps. Had Mr. Lightner not doubled West's best play was indicated by probabilities; with ten trumps the play was the King in the expectation that the outstanding three trumps would break 2-1 rather than 3-0. In which case Lightner would have made his precious trump trick. But, alas, the cat was out of the bag.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Mary Nowitzky's original pajamas are very slenderizing with the appliqued bands of many colors on heavy blue cotton.

New York, June 15.

USUALLY that haut couture isn't concerned about creating costumes that transform themselves into quite another type of thing with the addition or subtraction of a spare part, or costumes that possess gadgets that can be worn in several different ways with each way changing the aspect of said costume. But occasionally they get a transformation idea that is too brilliant to be ignored even if it does smack of the kind of economizing that couturiers aren't generally interested in.

For instance, Phillippe et Gaston have a stunning black satin dinner gown with a fairly low back decolletage and long sleeves. When the mannequin first appeared she seemed to be wearing a black satin wrap having a deep flared peplum lavishly bordered with black lynx. But lo and behold! the peplum was all there was to the "jacket" and she removed it and slipped it over her shoulders as a lovely little cape.

And Martial et Armand have a green satin evening gown very formal and elegant, that the addition of an ochre lace overskirt turns into a smart and demure garden party frock. And Lanvin shows a white georgette evening gown with fairly deep cap sleeves and a green girdle. A pair of tight green sleeves can be slipped on reaching to beneath the cap sleeves and voila! you're wearing an informal dinner dress.

At Agnes-Driscoll the mannequin swept into the room in a pale pink evening gown with a trailing split train in back attached at the waist. And a second later she gathered the train around her shoulders and she was wearing a gown sans train but with a modest cape-scarf instead. (You might not like the idea of having a train that has trailed on the ground worn as a scarf—but then you don't have to wear it, do you?)

• • • • •

Oh, these pajamas! No wonder they fascinate us with their difference from any preconceived notion we may have had of their possibilities! For instance, we don't get particularly thrilled with beach pajamas any more—but how about the original beach pajama like the one from Mary Nowitzky that I sketch for you today? That's a different story again, now isn't it—this pajama to wear to the pavilion for refreshments? This one is of heavy blue cotton, buttoning up the side to fit the figure snugly, and trimmed with crossed bands of cotton, appliqued right to the pajama, of white, brown, yellow and red.

• • • •

Now that you're assembling your beach things for summer days, don't forget to have a cotton beach pajama. They are a smart new note, and you'll be the envy of your friends in an original one of this type!

'N it would be a tragedy not to have smart things for your feet with a smart pajama—so why not have some like the cork sandals sketched above, with blue and white cotton straps, or like the cute, upturned toe sabots, with straps of checked cotton bordered with white leather?

• • • •

Don't you think that little organdie hats are adorable for the summer, with their quaint shady brims? 'N aren't the little stitched crepe dechine hats the most useful things the way they fold up when you want them to, and clean easily? But isn't it hard to resist some of the straw hats you see with their summery lines? Wouldn't you like one or more or each? We-l-l-l, why don't you make them? If you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, for this week's illustrated leaflet, you'll find out that from one basic pattern, with interchangeable brims and crowns, you can have all the smart and becoming hats you could want—and for the price of about two, and cheap ones at that!

• • • •

Trained costumes are mighty important just now. And you can learn much about the proper ones in the weekly Dare fashion letter in next Sunday's Washington Post.

Au Revoir!

What Today Means to You

"GEMINI."

IF June 16 is your birthday, the hours for you on this day are from 8 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from 1:10 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 9:10 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

June 16 will, according to the astrological indications, be a day marked by inspiring and helpful influences. The results may not be immediate, but they will materialize in the long run to your benefit. No impulsive decision should be made, calmness maintained and changes avoided.

Children born on this June 16 will develop into trustworthy, energetic and determined aduits. They will possess considerable sentiment, and their aims and ideals will be high. They will, even in childhood, be sympathetic, considerate and unselfish. They will always have a large circle of friends.

Born on June 16, your horoscope is difficult to read, as your character is complex and hard to understand. You can be frank and candid; still at other times, deceptive and disloyal. You can be urbane and courteous; at other times rude and overbearing. You can be unselfish and kind; yet at other times self-centered and unfeeling. You can be charming and appealing; and on the other hand, unattractive and unsympathetic. You can be intelligent and cultured; at other times dull and uninteresting. All your virtues—and you have many—are counterbalanced by disagreeable weaknesses.

The main thing lacking in your "make-up" is consistency and determination. You are not—although you can be dependable. What you need to do is to map out a course and follow it—regardless of cross-currents. A course of self-analysis would do you a world of good, and, instead of criticizing others you could, with advantage, criticize yourself.

You are capable of a great and an enduring love, but your changeable moods make it almost impossible for you to find any one—man or woman—willing to put up with such a kaleidoscopic attachment as your nature would demand. Before happiness comes your way, you must learn to accommodate your moods to others rather than expect them to accommodate themselves all the time to yours.

Successful people born June 16:

Thomas Melville, subject of "The Last Leaf," by Holmes.

Harry Crosswell, journalist and clergyman.

Alvin Adams, merchant and expressman.

Cushman K. Davis, statesman.

Wesley Merritt, soldier.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

She Regrets Her Escape.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I've kept company with a fellow for nearly six years. Now we are separated on account of religion. I can't understand that, while we were so close to marriage and his people knew what I was, it never bothered them until the time of our wedding. He has told several girls that he loves them, then turns them down. He has done the same thing to another girl, who is from out of town. Had her meet his people and then explained his troubles to her about us, promising to marry this girl in six months' time. I really don't think much of him when he spends his time in hotels and all that sort. The good-looking girls don't fall for his sweet line, so now he started to go with another for about three months. She knows all about my case, yet she takes the chance. She goes with a well-educated man and receives gifts from him, and that's more than the other could afford. Is he fickle or doesn't he know his own mind? What do you think of this girl? Will this last very long? Would like you to give me your advice about the whole thing. The boy is 23 years old. I would like you to print this, hoping to get the answer very soon.

A FRIEND.

Of course, you know that you are still convinced that you care for this will o' the wisp, instead of realizing that you have had a merciful escape from a future far from happy. The man is wishywashy. The type that must have some woman "interested." The sort that has only women friends. The kind who does whatever his family tells him to do simply because he has never shown the ability to think for himself, and so has been assisted by his relatives or any interested bystander.

What do you girls see in these pale lilies? Is it their sweet helplessness? If so let me assure you that that will seem less ravishing when the rent is due. If this man were to return to you tomorrow and offer marriage, you would take him. And it would mean certain misery. You could not advance one single good reason for preferring him to all other men. You secretly despise him, yet you would marry him, and produce a back yard full of children to perpetuate his negativeness and pettiness.

Why not pick a man's man? Note the men that other men pick for friends. These men make real husbands. They do not hang on a phone murmuring idiocies into the long-suffering instrument, nor do they occupy the family sofa nightly for years. They are not tree-sitters nor courtship marathoners. They are men. And the women they marry stay married. Compare this wash-out with any real man—and stop mooning over what he does or what he does not. He is out of your life. Be thankful and find a real man.

Your Name
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Nelson" is common throughout Great Britain, and it has various equivalent forms in Germany and especially in the Scandinavian countries. As an English name it sometimes means "the son of Neil," the name "Neil" in this case being one of the many pet forms of the feminine personal name "Helen." "Helen" is of Greek origin, and means "sunlight." However, in the great majority of cases "Nelson" means "the son of Nell." "Nell" (also spelled "Neale," "Nell," "Neel" and "Neal") is frequently derived from the Celtic "Niall" meaning "the champion" and "the leader." This personal name was borrowed by the Scandinavians who changed its form to "Njall" and "Njal." However, it is evident that in the Scandinavian countries and in Germany the many variations of this name have frequently been given as shortened forms of "Nicholas" and "Cornelius." "Nicholas" is ultimately of Greek origin, and may be translated "victory of the people." "Cornelius" is a famous Latin name meaning "as hard as horn" or "horn-colored." Moreover, in Germany "Neil" is sometimes a shortened form of the quite different name "Nagel." In England and in various other countries of Europe the French name "Nigel" has often been adopted as a supposed translation of "Neal." However, "Nigel" has a wholly different origin, its source being the Latin "Nigellus" meaning "the little black man."

The family name "Partridge" can be traced back to two quite different sources. It has been found that in most cases it was originally a nickname taken from the bird. However, there is evedence to show that in many cases this name is derived from the Teutonic personal name "Patrick," which means "glorious ruler." An English document of the year 1273 mentions a Walter Purtrich and a Gilbert Partrich.

Watch this column ever day, your name will appear here.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

Answers to Inquiries

PLEASE tell me whether you think it is necessary to protect seedlings from the strong rays of the sun when first set out. I know germinating seeds must be shaded.

JULIA G. P.

Yes, seedlings ought to be shaded for several days after they have been set out in the garden. Inverted berry baskets are good for this or, where you have a great many young plants, you may find a cheesecloth screen more practical.

Please tell me if I can successfully transplant the common white saxifrage while in blossom.

MADGE V. P.

Yes.

Please tell me how to rid my garden of cut worms. JOHN F. W.

The only way to get rid of these most dreaded crawlers is to use a poison bait. You can make one by mixing Paris green with molasses and bran, but you have to spread this about quite frequently as the rain is sure to dilute it. There is a practical proprietary preparation on the market which has lasting qualities and which I think is much better than any home-made mixture. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you the name of this preparation.

I have just had planted on my lawn three lovely lilac bushes. Now I notice shoots coming up from the ground about their roots. Should these be removed?

MRS. WILLIAM G. T.

Undesired shoots starting from the roots of the lilac bushes should be cut off below the ground line. Merely lopping them off above the surface is not sufficient.

When should tomatoes be staked?

MRS. CHARLES W.

Supports for tomatoes ought to be installed by the time the plants are big enough to show a tendency to sprawl. For tying them up use strips of strong, soft cloth. Wire or twine must not be used as it is apt to injure the soft stems of the plants.

Please tell me whether it is wise to prune a honeysuckle once a month. A neighbor tells me it is.

MISS NACY T. R.

Yes. A honeysuckle is a lush grower and must be kept within bounds.

When is the best time to gather flowers for house use. I mean, does it really make any difference when you pick them?

A NEW GARDENER.

Flowers for the house should be gathered in the early morning while they are still refreshed by the night's coolness and moisture. Plunge their stems in water immediately and set them in a dark place for a couple of hours.

I have a large pergola which may in time, when my trees grow, be taken down. Now my landscape architect suggests covering this arbor with wild grapes. Isn't this a mistake? Grapes are so common.

A NEW PROPERTY OWNER.

Grapes may be commonplace, but they are beautiful and their only drawback is that they must be kept within bounds. This is best done by ruthlessly cutting back last season's growth every spring so as to leave three or four leaders to each root; then topping the leaders and shearing off the weaker laterals. Such treatment will cause a uniform density of foliage.

Please tell me how often to cultivate and water gladiolus bulbs.

JANET R. P.

Gladiolus require plenty of water and cultivation. From the time growth begins do not let the beds dry out. Soak the ground to the depth of five inches once a week. Cultivate the soil about their roots once a week. When they are in bloom, cease deep cultivation; from then until after they have ceased to bloom continue to cultivate, but be content with merely turning over the surface soil.

I have a large shrub hydrangea. When shall I prune it?

THOMAS G. L.

This variety blooms on wood made the same season; therefore it must be pruned in the early spring.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

SCHOOL SUPPLY BIDS TO BE OPENED TODAY

Fairfax County Board Will Hold Special Meeting to Map Year's Work.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax County School Board will hold a special meeting today to pass on bids for supplying the public schools of the county with coal and wood during the next term.

It is expected that the plans for the new school buildings which are being prepared in the office of the state school architect, Raymond B. Long, in Richmond, will arrive in time for consideration at this meeting.

The list of teacher appointments for the next term will be completed and bids for bus routes arranged. The board will also decide whether or not to confirm the sale of several school buildings which have been sold during the last week at public auction.

Several delegations are expected to appear before today's meeting in the interest of the local schools. A delegation of the citizens of the Dranesville community plans to attend and protest the closing of the two-room school at Dranesville and transporting the pupils in the primary grades to the schools at Floris and Herndon.

A committee from the school and civic league and the Parent-Teacher Association of McLean will attend to ask the school board to improve the Franklin-Sherman School, at McLean, as much as the funds allotted to Providence district will permit. The committee met with School Trustee Herbert Williams during the last week and inspected the building.

In the opinion of both the trustee and the committee the school building is badly in need of repairs. The committee plans to ask the board to repair the floors and plaster, install a new metal ceiling on the first floor and to clean and repaint the walls and woodwork during the summer vacation.

A delegation from the Colvin Run neighborhood will appear before the board in connection with the sale of the abandoned Colvin Run Schoolhouse, which was sold last week to Emery Wheeler at public auction. It is understood that the Colvin Run Community League had made subsequent arrangements with Wheeler whereby a group of local citizens would acquire the building, to be maintained as a community hall. It is stated that members of the league have agreed to stand the immediate expense of purchasing the building and to meet interest and sinking-fund charges. As the school board has reserved the right to reject any and all bids, no sale is final until confirmed by the board and the Circuit Court of Fairfax County.

The stockholders of the Washington, Great Falls & Dranesville Highway Co. will hold a meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the office of Douglas S. Backall, in Washington, to confer with a committee from the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce which was appointed recently to investigate the possibility of eliminating the toll gate on the road between Langley and Great Falls and the turning of the right of way of this road over to the county or to the State highway authorities.

The executive committee of the northern Virginia George Washington bicentennial committee, which is composed of representatives of Fairfax, Arlington and Prince William counties and Alexandria City will hold a meeting this evening at the home of Representative Howard W. Smith, in Alexandria.

The young people's division of the Fairfax County Council of Religious Education will hold a meeting this evening in the Presbyterian Church at Herndon.

The election of officers for the ensuing term will take place this evening at a meeting of the McLean Council, Order of Fraternal Americans in McLean.

The Farmers and Mechanics Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, will hold its annual election of officers at its meeting this evening in the Andrew Chapel Schoolhouse. The committee on the flag and erection of a flagpole at the school has been requested to present its report at tonight's meeting.

The congregation of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Comforter, at Vienna, has selected its vestrymen and church officers for the ensuing term as follows: Arthur J. Smith, Clarence J. Tallman, C. W. B. Smith, Charles E. Babcock, Bernie G. Hiedenreich, James B. Wood, Robert W. Wood, Herbert Williams, J. W. Bennett and Thomas R. Moreland. Charles E. Babcock was selected as senior warden; Robert W. Wood as junior warden; C. W. B. Smith, registrar, and C. E. Babcock as treasurer.

The Little Aid Society of the Crossman Methodist Church at Falls Church will hold a meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Paxton. The monthly benefit bridge party will be held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph Allison in West Falls Church.

The Women's Guild of the Episcopal Church at Chantilly and the Women's Auxiliary of the St. Timothy's Episcopal Church of Herndon, will hold a joint meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Rogers, near Floris. The Church of the Holy Comforter at Richmond has arranged for the installation of lights in the Chantilly Church.

The Epworth League of the Southern Methodist Church at Chesterbrook will hold a meeting this evening at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Beall.

Rodney W. Harrison, of Lyon Village, in Arlington County, was arrested by Capt. Haywood Durrer, of the Fairfax County road police, on the Washington-Richmond highway, near Pohick Church, on a charge of driving a car while under the influence of ardent spirits. Harrison was taken before Justice of the Peace Harry Shepherd, at Accotink, and following a preliminary hearing was held for the action of the grand jury at the September term of the Fairfax County circuit court. Bond was set at $500.

H. Simmons, of Seventeenth street near S northwest, Washington, was arrested by Fairfax County Policeman Arthur W. Mills, on the Washington-Richmond highway, near Accotink, on a charge of violating the State prohibition law. A preliminary hearing was held before Justice Shepherd, at Accotink, who held Simmons for the action of the grand jury on a charge of driving while drunk and the transportation and possession of ardent spirits. A half-gallon of alleged liquor was found in the car.

Vandals broke into the Annandale schoolhouse late Sunday night, wrecking the interior of the building. Entrance was gained by forcing a rear window. Paint and ink were thrown over the floor and walls and paper and books scattered through the auditorium. The doors of the class rooms were forced open and locks broken. The vandalism was discovered yesterday morning when the janitor arrived to close the building permanently for the summer.

BAKER FOUND GUILTY OF KILLING HIS WIFE

Murder in Second Degree Is Verdict; Faces 20 Years to Life in Prison.

A jury in Criminal Court No. 1 yesterday found Albert C. Baker guilty of murder in the second degree for the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Anna May Baker, April 2. He faces a penalty of from 20 years to life.

The case was one of the quickest murder trials in the history of the courthouse. The Government's case was in within half an hour of the picking of the jury, with Robert I. Miller, counsel for Baker, agreeing to most of the technical evidence that established the case.

The only defense witness was Baker. He told of his attempts to get his wife to return to his home and care for the couple's three small children. He said that her refusal to come back and her reference to the "three brats" drove him into a frenzy, and that he did not remember clearly what happened thereafter.

Baker broke down and wept on the stand. He intimated that his one concern was the welfare of the three children, all of whom were in court, though they did not testify. Mrs. Baker was shot in the back in the Baker home at 807 O street northwest, with the children as eyewitnesses. Baker fled from the city, and surrendered two weeks later. Assitsant United States Attorney John J. Sirica prosecuted the case.

Man Breaks Arm In Fall From Auto

Driver Jailed on Charge of Operating Car While Intoxicated.

John L. Green, 55 years old, of near Frederick, Md., was the victim of an unusual accident yesterday. He was the passenger in an automobile driven by William Dixon, 38, Barnesville, Md., on the Frederick pike, near Rockville, when the door of the car opened and he fell to the ground.

He was taken to Montgomery County General Hospital, at Sandy Spring, by Headquarters Detective Roy Bodmer, of Rockville, who was passing the scene at the time. Hospital attendants found he had broken his arm in the fall.

Dixon was arrested by Detective Bodmer and placed in the Rockville Jail on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Green, who recently was released from the Soldiers' Home Hospital in Washington, was kept at the hospital.

BUILDING CODE FIXED FOR PRINCE GEORGES

New Rules Will Conform to Regulation in Force in Capital Area.

New Prince Georges County building code prepared by the Park and Planning Commission, regulating thickness of walls and types of construction for public structures, has been completed, and will go into effect the middle of next month.

The code, authorized by the recent Legislature, covers 78 typewritten pages, and is very similar, though simpler, than codes in force in the District and in Montgomery County. It was drawn after study of building regulations of various towns, and it was hoped there would be no conflict between county and town rules. It has the advantage, C. Irving Root, chief engineer of the commission, points out, that it will provide a uniform set of rules effective throughout the metropolitan area.

Provisions covering thickness of walls will insure fire protection and sturdy construction. Provisions covering public buildings, motion picture halls and similar structures divide these buildings into two classes, one with a capacity of 300 to 1,200, and one for buildings holding more than 1,200 persons. All these structures must be fire-resisting throughout. A higher type of construction will be required in commercial zones.

It is pointed out by Mr. Root that purchasers of homes will now have some guarantee of strength of buildings they buy.

The code will be enforced by a building inspector, whose pay will come from a fee of $1 per $1,000 worth of construction. Rules call for a succession of examinations as building progresses. Estimates made of the building in the county show that this inspector will make about $1,000 per year, although it had been hoped to have a full-time man. Fee of $1,000 will make it necessary to give the job as inspector to a man who will work at it only part time. Regulations will not go into effect until after they have been advertised for four weeks.

Residents of Seat Pleasant last night voted to incorporate the town by a majority of three votes, after the proposal had been refused twice. The new chief of police, Jeremiah Crowley, and two policemen watched the polls, but no disorder developed.

Vote in favor of incorporation was 129, while opponents of the measure mustered 126 ballots. Once before, in a referendum, residents of the town voted not to incorporate, and a mass meeting of citizens had also gone on record against it.

No date for the first town election has been set, but it will probably be this summer. The charter accepted by the town provides for government by a mayor and council.

A tenant house belonging to Mrs. Cora P. Mayberry was burned early yesterday near Marlboro, with a loss of about $1,000. The structure was a four-room bungalow of frame construction.

The family, which had been living in the building, could not be found after the fire, but a thorough search of ashes failed to show that any of them had been burned. Mrs. Mayberry, prominent in club work, told Marlboro firemen that the man had been expected to move away, and probably left before the fire. Cause of blaze could not be discovered.

Because of the large number of voters registered in Chillum and Bladensburg districts, new precincts will have to be added before the primaries next spring, it has been announced by the newly constituted board of election supervisors of the county. In addition, voters in several other districts will be divided into alphabetical groups to facilitate counting of votes.

The board, at its first meeting, elected J. August Miller president, other members being L. L. Gray and Boykin E. Watson. The board selected Samuel Wyvill as clerk and Frank M. Hall as attorney.

Ceremonies at dedication of the new Tuxedo Firehouse last night were marked by speeches by State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, T. Howard Duckett, S. Marvin Peach and District Forester C. F. Winslow. Other prominent persons in the county were present at the firehouse, of which the corner stone was laid last fall.

Rudisil Women's Christian Temperance Union medal, given in a Bible memory contest, has been awarded to Miss Isabel Hamilton, Hyattsville. It was presented to Miss Hamilton by Mrs. O. N. Eaton, president of the union, in a service at the Presbyterian Church.

Other contestants were Miss Charlotte Coburn, Kenneth Gilbertson, John Lynham and Sara Stoddard, while judges were O. M. Eaton, J. D. Secrest and L. H. Van Wormer. Others on the program were Mrs. E. L. Hayre, Mrs. E. A. Bursiem and the Rev. D. Hobart Evans, who delivered invocation.

Prize given to Miss Hamilton was a bronze medal for the winners of the semifinals. She met only Hyattsville residents in this contest, but will go against winners in other towns in the finals latter part of this month.

Having made a score of 3,308, members of Hyattsville's Company F of the National Guard will take part in the chief of the militia bureau's indoor rifle contest for 1931.

Score made by the Hyattsville company was registered last winter in the national rifle matches. Each member of the company will be given a bronze badge.

More than 500 women have already enrolled in annual rural women's short course, which opened yesterday at the University of Maryland. In addition to these, several hundred more are expected to attend later lectures in the five-day course.

Five women from Pince Georges County have entered the school. They are Mrs. Ada Schaub, Mrs. Melvina Owens, Mrs. Ira K. Gruver, Mrs. Henry R. Hall and Mrs. J. H. Taylor.

Two special courses of study are being given this year—home administration and child care. The former course is given by Mrs. Paul E. Howe, a child specialist well known in Washington.

Activities of the week include a reception today by the president of the university, Raymond A. Pearson, and Mrs. Pearson, and an historical pageant tomorrow.

Riverdale town council last night voted to lay all bids for the new town fire engine on the table and request new ones. They also considered the town budget for the next year, but had reached no decision at a late hour last night.

The action on purchase of a fire engine follows a controversy which has split the town and is reported to have indirectly cost Chief of Police W. E. Aldridge his post. Champions of two makes of fire apparatus have been unable to agree which shall be purchased. Aldridge, who favors another type than that favored by the chief of the fire department, was ousted last week when the council abolished his office.

The Alexandria summer school opened yesterday, with an attendance of 130 students. The summer school for pupils in the grades from the fifth to the seventh, inclusive, also opened yesterday, the attendance at the graded being smaller than last year.

The rescue squad of Fire Company No. 1 was called upon yesterday when James Cox, Negro, was taken with a fit at King and Fayette streets, and after first-aid treatment by the firemen the man was taken to the Alexandria Hospital.

Acting Police Justice John W. Brookfield yesterday morning was faced by a docket of 45 cases, 17 charged with being drunk and 3 with driving while drunk.

Six persons faced the court in the new rigid enforcement of the one-hour parking limit in King street between Fairfax and Patrick streets and were fined $2 each and the fine suspended, while two who failed to appear forfeited the $2 collateral they had posted. This is the first time arrests have been made in the one-hour parking limit set for King street.

POST'S BEACH WINS MANY NEW FRIENDS

Visitors at Woodland Colony Marvel at Progress Already Visible.

Much favorable comment was heard yesterday among those who, on Sunday, visited Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development site on South River in Maryland. A great crowd turned out to look over the site and most of the visitors left with an impression of a rapidly growing community, having every prospect of becoming one of this section's most popular resorts.

Many of those who visited Woodland Beach for the first time on Sunday were surprised to find that so much clearing had been done; that streets had been laid out, and that a number of early lot buyers had already started construction of their summer homes.

Modern Clubhouse.

Others expressed delight at the modern clubhouse on the grounds, which, by the way, is to be deeded to an association of Woodland Beach lot owners a little later on, for use by the entire community. The play devices for the children also came in for a share of the praise while the physical advantages of the place, including bathing, boating and fishing appealed to all.

Of course, one of the main points in Woodland Beach's appeal to the public, is the price of lots there. All priced alike, at $93, the purchase of one is not a strain on the budget. The fact, too, that only $9 plus a subscription to The Post is necessary for one to become a lot owner is another factor which has led to heavy sales. The remainder of the amount due may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50.

Rural Atmosphere.

The location of the Beach is another factor in its favor, for while it is situated in the midst of almost virgin territory, with woods and water and all the other bits of rural atmosphere, it still is close enough to Washington to permit overnight visits without any great waste of time. Just 32 miles away and over good roads, Woodland Beach is an ideal haven of rest and recreation for those who want to get away from the heat of city streets and apartments.

All week in the office of The Post there are on duty many salesmen ready to explain the details of the Woodland Beach offer to you. And on Sundays these same salesmen are at the Beach ready to show you around.

There are many choice spots still available at the Beach and they will be disposed of, as have all the other lots, on the basis of "first come, first served."

SHIPS AND AIRPLANES SCOUR SEA FOR 355 MISSING BODIES

bodies had been found and what identifications had been made.

Identification of the bodies that were found was proving difficult in many instances. The body of one of the directors of the Workers Cooperative Union, which organized the excursion, was identified and also those of his wife, daughter and granddaughter.

It was officially confirmed that 426 passengers had left Noirmoutier Island on the return trip. This figure, however, did not include children under 4, who paid no fare.

Fifty-nine of the recovered bodies lay tonight in windswept sheds along the shore, the arms of many of them still extended above their heads in the last gesture of terror. The flags were half-staffed over the warehouse sheds, which served as temporary morgues.

"The catastrophe of the St. Philibert has plunged between 200 and 300 families in Nantes into sudden and deep mourning," J. Tallendeau, editor of La Populaire, chief newspaper here, said today.

"Capt. Ollive, of the excursion steamer, went down with his ship. On the very morning of the catastrophe he had reached the retirement age of 52. A few weeks hence he was to enter into another service of the company. He consented to take the Nantes excursionists out Sunday only as a special favor."

Most of the recovered bodies were found at a spot near where the boat went down from 500 to 1,000 yards west-northwest of Chatelier Buoy, off St. Gildas Point at the entrance to the Loire River estuary.

All of the bodies will be brought here tomorrow and will be kept in the proud old castle of Nantes until officials of the department Loire Inferieure can arrange for a public burial.

A close check made here tonight estimates the number of bodies still missing at 355.

Divers who were aiding rescue work today estimated that 150 bodies were still floating beneath the surface of the water and they said they also believed another 100 had been trapped in the boat's cabins.

The French minister of merchant marine arrived at St. Nazaire today and immediately gave assurance that the government would take care of any needy cases among bereaved families.

Two autobuses, carrying 43 of the excursionists who refused to board the boat on the return trip last night, drove up to St. Gildas Point this afternoon and these 43 joined the group of watchers and relatives on the shore. They, too, were waiting for news of their less fortunate companions on the excursion.

Piano Van Nabbed As Rum Container

65 Cases of Alleged Corn Liquor Are Found in Heavy Truck.

"Yes, we have pianos," quoth the driver of a heavy truck which had aroused suspicions of Pvt. Richard McCarthy, of the Tenth Precinct, yesterday.

But he had no pianos, as McCarthy's hunch bore out. Instead, 65 cases of alleged corn whisky were neatly stowed in confines of the closed van. Two hundred and forty gallons was the sum total of the load.

The driver and his truck were piloted to the Tenth Precinct Station, where he was booked on a charge of illegal possession and the whisky confiscated. The man gave his name as Sam Culotta, 20, of Baltimore, Md. Later he was released on $500 bond.

Former W. C. T. U. Chief Dies.

Castile, N. Y., June 15 (A.P.).—Miss Anna Gordon, Evanston, Ill., formerly president of the International Women's Christian Temperance Union, died today in a sanatorium here. She came here two weeks ago for a rest. Death was due to old age and a general breakdown. She was 78.

TESTIMONY CLOSED IN PANTAGES TRIAL

Vaudeville Magnate Is Final Witness; Denies Charges; Arguments Begun.

San Diego, Calif., June 15 (A.P.).—The trial of Alexander Pantages, wealthy showman, and three others on charges of conspiracy and contributing to the delinquency of a minor entered its final phase, arguments by counsel to the jury, late today.

The fourth week of the "girl market" trial closed with the vaudeville millionaire on the witness stand. His cross-examination was completed in ten minutes, and Jesse H. Shreve, prominent San Diego business man, called three witnesses before resting his defense.

Olive Clark Day and William Jobelmann, alleged operators of a Hollywood "girl mart," rested their cases without calling a witness. No rebuttal testimony was presented by the prosecution.

Pantages Principal Witness.

Pantages was the principal defense witness. In two hours last Friday he told his story of his trip to San Diego last October 30 from his home in Los Angeles, declaring it was for business alone, and denied the charges against him.

The State rested its case on the testimony of three principal witnesses and a dozen others called to piece together circumstantial evidence.

Lydia Nitto, youthful complaining witness, the star witness for the prosecution, related in detail the occurrences at a party at the fashionable El Cortez Hotel October 30, and said she was paid $15 by Mrs. Day for making the trip to be a partner for Pantages.

Two major points were raised by the defense, one involving the age of Miss Nitto and the other the purpose of Pantages' meeting with Shreve at the El Cortez Hotel.

Girl's Age in Doubt.

Miss Nitto testified she was 17 years old, but admitted on cross-examination that she had signed an affidavit last year in which she gave her age as 22. The State failed in an effort to introduce a purported copy of Miss Nitto's birth certificate, on file in Genoa, Italy, because the document was not properly stamped by Italian authorities.

Four defense witnesses testified the girl had told them she was 22 years old.

John P. Mills, wealthy real estate dealer and originally a defendant, testified for the State he and Shreve agreed to pay Mrs. Day $200 to bring Miss Nitto and Helen Livingston to a party here October 30.

The purpose of the party, Mills said, was to put Pantages in a "good humor" for a conference on an overdue $80,000 note held by George R. Daley, a contractor, and indorsed by Pantages, Mills and Shreve.

Storage is most vitally important. Every moment you delay you are actually inviting disaster from moths! Our rates are moderate—3% on the first $200 valuation; 1% on each additional $100 valuation.

Cleaning is almost just as important, for cleaning restores the natural oils to the pelts, softens the furs, and brings back all their original lustre. For fur coats, $7; cloth coats, $3.50.

Repairing and remodeling can be done while your furs are in our safekeeping. Skilled furriers will examine your coat, and make recommendations for prolonging their serviceability. Take advantage of our summer rates!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

LINSEED AND ECZEMA.

MEN who work in linseed meal are subject to a form of weeping eczema which is accompanied by intolerable itching. The desire to scratch is very strong. The itching is worse at night and after taking a bath. It has some resemblance to scabies, sometimes called "seven year itch," but a little study generally rules out that disorder.

For instance, "seven year itch" affects the women and children as well as the men, whereas linseed meal itch does not affect any members of the family except those who work in the mill. The preferred locations of linseed meal dermatitis are the arms and legs. It may involve the hands and face. Scabies prefers the hands and particularly the thin skin between the fingers.

In a study of this form of eczema, made by Dr. H. H. Barnes, it was found that the poison is not in the oil, nor is it in the impurities that could be sifted out of flaxseed. It appears to be something in the flaxseed itself, a something which is carried in the meal and which the skin absorbs.

The eczema gets well when the man quits work in the mill. Cleanliness and the use of mild protective ointments are of some service in curing the eruption and also in preventing it.

There is a form of eczema more like a peculiar type of hives, which is caused by exposure to chrysanthemum leaves. Dr. M. B. Goldstein reports the case of a gardener who from time to time would swell up as if he had the nettlerash. Between spells he had an eruption that was somewhat like what people call eczema. He told the doctor that he was using insect sprays containing lead arsenate and others containing nicotine.

The physician thought the lead arsenate must be the cause of the trouble and treated him for that. The man got better but it was later found that this was because he kept away from his plants. Later, the eruption took on the nettlerash character. Dr. Goldstein then fastened a piece of chrysanthemum leaf to a patch of normal skin. Speedily redness appeared and blisters followed. The conclusion was that this was a chrysanthemum eruption.

As the open season appears people will be increasingly exposed to plants, including flowers. Many of these are capable of causing eruptions.

MAY LEAVE THINGS ALONE.

A. C. J. writes: What causes a prolonged draining following an abdominal operation? I particularly refer to draining of gall bladder. The original incision has healed perfectly, but skin has broken about two inches below and discharge is usually clear as glycerin. Sometimes the fluid thickens and forms a pale, yellowish mucus. The patient suffers no pain and is able to work every day.

REPLY.

It is reasonably certain that in this case there is a biliary fistula. The discharge is bile. Such fistulas often follow operations on the gall bladder. As a rule, sergeons are not in a hurry to close them. It seems to be good judgement to leave things alone, for a time at least.

Among the causes of persisting fistulas, other than those from the gall bladder are stones, dead bone, other foreign bodies, openings into organs or cavities infections.

MAY BE FUNGUS GROWTH.

N. L. D. writes: The toe nail of my large left toe is turning yellow. It doesn't hurt, but I would like to know what the cause is.

REPLY.

It is thought that infection with some mild fungus causes most of such cases.

ADVERTISING LAUDED IN PROSPERITY DRIVE

Federation, Opening Session in New York, Hears Plans to Help Business.

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—The responsibility and opportunity facing advertising to help restore the confidence of the people in the country's future and unleash the reservoir of funds now lying idle were emphasized today by speakers before the Advertising Federation of America.

The economic situation—its causes, effects and solution—and the relation of advertising to it—held the spotlight of interest at the opening session, as advertising men and women whose work touches the business fabric of the Nation, heard prominent figures in public and business life analyze the situation.

The speakers at the luncheon which opened the four-day convention and the general session that followed included Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mayor James J. Walker, Grover C. Whalen, general manager of Wanamakers and former police commissioner of New York City; Kenneth Collins, vice president of R. H. Macy & Co.; Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin; Charles E. Murphy, president of the Advertising Club of New York, and Gilbert T. Hodges, president of the federation, and a member of the executive board of the New York Sun, also spoke.

Warn Against Wage Cutting.

Confidence was expressed in the return of prosperity as inevitable, warnings were sounded against striking at purchasing power by widespread wage cutting and views were heard as to some of the causes of depressed business conditions and some measures were advocated for restoring the country to robust economic health.

The purchasing power dammed up in banks because of fear of the future was visualized as both an indication of failure on the part of advertising and its opportunity.

Sounding the keynote of the convention, Gilbert T. Hodges, president of the federation which is meeting in his home city for the first time since it was established 27 years ago, said that in the return to prosperity lies advertising's greatest opportunity.

"Advertising must release our people from the fetters of fear and from the apprehension that jobs are in danger," said Mr. Hodges, who is a member of the executive board of the New York Sun. "By so doing it will turn loose the enormous buying power of the American people, which is now paralyzed."

Country In Splendid Condition.

He declared the country is in a splendid condition to make a rebound. Debts have been paid—inventories are depleted—old cars and old clothes are wearing out—savings deposits are at their peak—all indications, he said, of a tremendous buying power that waits only to be unleashed and guided in the right direction.

The condition described by the president was referred to by Kenneth Collins, executive vice president and publicity director of R. H. Macy & Co., who asserted that "during the last twenty months advertising has been given its greatest challenge and has failed."

It has failed, he said, not because advertising has not the power to accomplish what it should have, but because it has been misdirected. The rapid growth in savings deposits indicates that the people have put into reservoir that portion of purchasing activity which means the difference between good times and bad.

Touring Mayors to Start For United States Today

Paris, June 15 (A.P.).—America's touring mayors start home tomorrow, gratified by the conviction that their visit to France has been fruitful in promoting better Franco-American relations.

They are deeply grateful that they have been able to see far more of French life, notably in the provinces, than the usual American visitor. They are delighted at finding the view point of the French generally not far from their own current problems, and they marvel at many things, particularly the restoration of the war-torn sections of northern France.

RADIO GROUP FIGHTS TO RETAIN LICENSES

Disruption of Entertainment, Marine Communications Foreseen in Plea.

(Associated Press.)

The disruption of American radio entertainment and marine and international communication was predicted before the Radio Commission yesterday if the 1,409 licenses of Radio Corporation of America subsidiaries are canceled.

This testimony was presented by company representatives as the commission began hearings to determine whether a recent court decision holding the Radio Corporation of America guilty of violating the antitrust statutes in the tube clause of its contracts made it mandatory upon the commission to refuse to renew licenses held by that company's subsidiaries.

Attorneys for the Radio Corporation of America contended the provisions of the radio act making such action mandatory was unconstitutional. They held, too, that judgment in the tube contract case, returned by the United States Court of Appeals in Delaware, was not final.

Would Halt Experiments.

Edward Shumaker, president of the Radio Corporation of America Victor Co., Inc., said revocation of his company's license would put a stop to television experimentation which had been conducted by the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric, the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. and the R. C. A. Victor Co.

M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., testified that besides affecting many of the other 613 broadcasting stations now in operation, revocation of licenses would force his company to discontinue seven stations, WJZ and WEAF in New York, WTAM in Cleveland, WRC in Washington, WENR-WBCN in Chicago, KOA in Denver, and KGO in San Francisco.

He estimated his company's fixed assets at $2,371,000 and said these would "immeasurably" depreciate in value if the licenses were denied.

William A. Winterbottom, president of R. C. A. Communications, Inc., predicted the United States would lose radio wave length assignments to other countries if his company's licenses were not renewed.

Many Seek Wave Lengths.

Many countries, he testified, have asked the international radio telegraph bureau at Berne, Switzerland, for frequency assignments.

T. M. Stevens, general superintendent of the Radiomarine Corporation of America, said cancellation of his company's licenses would compel operators of about 1,200 American steamships to ask permission to operate the radios they now have. Many of them, now leasing equipment, would have to buy it from his corporation, he said, since the law permits licenses to owners only.

and abroad in an effort to lift the mystery surrounding certain phases of the victim's past.

The Boston American said one of its representatives had been told a wealthy man made a large cash settlement with the Faithfull family five years ago. The informant was described as Charles F. Rowley, an attorney, who, the newspaper said, declared the girl's stepfather, Stanley E. Faithfull, called on him the day before Starr vanished.

Rowley declined to discuss the amount of the supposed settlement or name the man. He would not say he was a Bostonian. The paper quoted him as saying: "If Faithfull said it was $20,000 or any other sum I'll leave it at that. I'd rather the girl's family told the amount."

The American added that the man's counsel always maintained the innocence of his client.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ACCORDING to late advices that are presumed to be reasonably authentic, David Belasco's estate is unofficially estimated to be worth $1,000,000. It consists of several hundred thousand dollars in bonds, the Belasco Theater in New York (on which there remains an indebtedness of some $300,000), the late producer's valuable collections of antiques (that are at present being appraised), a half interest in the leasehold of the Shubert-Belasco Theater in this city, about $25,000 in cash and a great number of play manuscripts and dramatic rights. Belasco's outstanding debts are reputed to be negligible.

Executors of the estate are reported to be in some doubt as to the likelihood, under present conditions of industrial and economic stress, of procuring the full value of the Belasco Theater in Manhattan, which is put, in round figures, at $900,000. The house is for sale; but if unsold at this time, will be leased.

The Belasco organization as an active theatrical producing concern came to an end recently with the closing of "Tonight or Never," a play which had its premiere in the Capital. The company disbanded with the falling of the last curtain. Helen Gahagan, the star of the play, plans to leave soon for a European vacation trip. It will be remembered that she was recalled from studies for an operatic career to assume the leading role in "Tonight or Never" at the old master's insistent personal behest.

It is looked upon as in the nature of a calamity that there will be no further stage productions under the Belasco name. One of the great names of the American theater has thus definitely passed.

It just goes to show how restricted a writing fellow's field can be, at that. It seems that the International Brotherhood of Magicians, the second oldest magicians' organization in the country, concluded a three-day conclave in Columbus, Ohio, last week.

Some 500 magicians, with their wives and assistants, representing nearly every State in the Union, as well as many foreign countries, were in attendance. Some of the best-known stage names present were Nicola Marquis, Jack Wynne, Rajah Rabold, Doc Nixon, Henry Gordien, John Mulholland, E. J. Moore, Inez Blackstone, Saal, Great Zeldo, Francill, Eckam, Cecil, S. S. Henry, Richard Davis, T. Nelson Downs, Ovette, William Russell, El Barto, The Hathaways and George Pughe.

Now how many of them have you seen? Well, that makes us a tie—unless you have seen one of them!

You may be interested to know that "A Modern Virgin," the Elmer Harris comedy drama that closed the regular season at the Belasco Theater here in May, will not be presented in London in September, as originally planned. Mr. Harris violently disagrees with certain of the deletions made by the lord chamberlain, censor of the London stage, holding that he can not view in the same light the portions of the play condemned by the lord chamberlain as being "unfit for London audiences."

This is a repetition of the impasse that was reached in the case of that earlier Harris play, "Young Sinners." And if Miss Margaret Sullavan was to have been taken across to enact the title role, the lord chamberlain has deprived London of a vivacious and devastating performance.

Take it for what it is worth—and that may be something or nothing—the rumor is floating about in usually well-informed circles that Nancy Carroll, the film star, who is seeking a divorce from her husband, Jack Kirkland, is going to marry Bolton Mallory, editor of Life, as soon as she secures her decree.

Of course, if all she wants is to see Life——

In case you hadn't heard, the Friars have gone and elected George M. Cohan their Abbott again, and have made George Jessel, Dean. The Yankee Doodle author-actor-composer-producer headed both the regular and opposition tickets, so how could he miss?

Into office with the two named go Emmett R. Callahan, prior; Harry Hershfield, cartoonist-raconteur, secretary; William Degon Weinberger, treasurer. Newly elected governors are Jay C. Flippen, at the Palace last week; Martin L. Forkins, I. H. Herk, president of the Mutual Burlesque Association, operating the Gayety Theater in this city; Joe Laurie, jr., recently at the Earle; Walter J. Moore and Ben Pierpont.

Lewis Milestone, director of "The Front Page," currently rolling the customers in the aisles at the Palace, has re-signed with Howard Hughes to direct two more pictures. Instead of flat salary, Milestone will work on a percentage basis. Milestone is a smart boy, but Hughes hasn't made any mistakes, either.

A handbill being distributed by Leonard Hall, former local dramatic critic, announces his establishment in New York of The Busy Bee General Piece-Writing Emporium. The outlook for this new undertaking ought to be fairly bright, since the throwaway goes on to recite a few of the firm's successes, as follows, "Quo Vadis," "Ex-Wife," "Dombey and Son," "The Big Parade," "Three Weeks," "The Green Pastures" and "Sadie Sparks From the Battery."

What, no "Ten Nights?"

Yeah, it's the humidity!

YEARS OF GRACE

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

There is a family discussion as to the future career of Jack Bridges, who wants to be an engineer but who has gone to work in Stephen's bank in order to support his wife and children. Cicily is the one who decides against Jack's going back to college to finish his engineering course and who insists on their building a house in Lakewood where she can live comfortably with the children. Isabel's daughter, Bell, has gone to England with her husband, Albert, who has entered Oxford and will study for the diplomatic corps.

CICILY, JENNY AND STEVE.

CHAPTER V.

JANE stood by the piano in the Lakewood living room, looking fixedly at the flowers that the children had sent her. Fifty Killarney roses in a great glass bowl. Time was when Jane had regarded a woman of 50 as standing with one foot in the grave. Even now she was glad that Isabel was coming out for tea. Isabel was 55. Jane felt that it would be a comfort to look at her. It had been a comfort that morning to look at Stephen, who was 58. But men were different. To men years brought distinction. To women they brought only gray hairs and crow's feet, thick waistlines and double chins.

Jane turned from the roses to glance at her reflection in the gilt-framed mirror that hung over her colonial mantelpiece. Jane's waistline was nothing to be ashamed of. She had no crow's feet. When she remembered to hold her head high, her chin, if slightly—well—mature, was certainly not double. It could not be denied, however, that her hair was very gray. Jane hated that. What had Jimmy once said? "A woman is young as long as she looks beguiling with mussy hair."

Isabel Well Groomed, Too.

Jane heard the doorbell. That would be Isabel. She turned from the roses as her sister entered. Isabel was well groomed, too, Jane noticed with a sigh.

"Happy birthday!" said Isabel as she kissed her.

Jane acknowledged the ironic salute.

"You won't mind any other, you know," smiled Isabel, "until the sixtieth."

"I don't mind this one," said Jane stoutly.

"Tell that to the marines!" laughed Isabel. "I'll never forget Muriel's! Wasn't she down?"

"She certainly was," smiled Jane, "in spite of the celebration."

Muriel's fiftieth birthday had occurred last month. She had celebrated it by taking off her mourning for Bert. He had been dead two years.

As she spoke she heard the doorbell. "That's probably Cicily," she said. "She was going to bring over the children."

In a moment, however, Muriel's voice was heard in the hall.

"Is Mrs. Carver at home?" She appeared in the doorway, holding a little package in her hands. Muriel hadn't gone off much, reflected Jane. She was looking very charming that afternoon, in a new grey spring suit and a little red hat that matched the color of her carmined lips. Her blue eyes were twinkling, as of old.

Feeling Low? She Asks.

"How's the birthday girl?" she cried. "Hello, Isabel!" Advancing to the hearthrug she kissed Jane warmly. "Feeling rather low, old speed?"

"Not at all," said Jane falsely. "I like to be fifty."

"I believe you," said Muriel. "It's a lovely age. 'The last of life, for which the first was made!' How poets do lie! Never mind, darling, you'll feel better tomorrow. One gets used to everything!" She sank into an armchair and smiled up at Jane. "Here's a present for you!"

Jane opened the little package. It contained a gold vanity case.

"Why, Muriel!" she cried. "How—how magnificient!"

"Use that lipstick," said Muriel firmly. "Better and brighter lipsticks are the answer, Jane. No tea, darling! Such as it is, I'm trying to keep my figure! Do you see what I see, Jane? Is Isabel actually eating chocolate cake?"

"I certainly am," said Isabel, a bit tartly.

"You're looking very pretty today, Muriel," said Isabel suddenly. Her tone was not that of idle compliment. Rather of acute appraisal. She had been watching Muriel intently since her triumphal entrance.

Going to Marry Ed Brown.

Muriel glanced quickly at her. Jane heard her catch her breath in a little excited gasp.

"Girls," she said dramatically, "I'm going to marry Ed Brown on the first of June!"

"M-Muriel!" stammered Jane. She rose to her feet. She did not dare to look at Isabel.

"I'm—terrible happy," said Muriel faintly. She had stopped laughing now. There were actually tears in her great blue eyes. Her carmined lips were trembling. The sudden display of emotion had curiously shattered the hard enamel of her brilliant, fading beauty. Jane took her in her arms.

"Muriel," she said, "I think it's lovely."

"I know I'm ridiculous," said Muriel, withdrawing from her arms and fumbling for a handkerchief in her little grey bag. "But it's terribly cheering to be really ridiculous again. I—I was never very happy with Bert, you know. Ed really loves me. He—he's like a boy about me——" Meeting Isabel's appraising eye she stopped abashed. "I know you're thinking there's no fool like an old fool, Isabel!"

"I'm not!" protested Isabel. "I'm not at all. I'm sure you'll be very happy——" Her voice trailed off a trifle lamely.

"We're going around the world on our honeymoon," said Muriel. "We won't be back for a year."

"Have you written Albert?" asked Isabel.

"I cabled him Saturday," said Muriel. The familiar glint of shameless curiosity glittered in Isabel's eye. "He was very much pleased," said Muriel with dignity.

"Of course," said Jane hastily. "Why wouldn't he be?"

"Will he come back for the wedding?" asked Isabel suddenly. "Will he bring Belle?"

"They're both coming," said Muriel, smiling. "And bringing the children."

"You should have them for flower girls," said Isabel wickedly.

A sudden shuffle, a sound of suppressed laughter, broke in upon their colloquy from the hall. Jane looked up quickly. She had not heard the doorbell ring. A tiny red-sweatered figure stood, tottering, in the doorway.

Cicily and the Twins Appear.

"Happy birfday, Granma," it cried, and staggering across the room fell tottering across Jane's knees. It was Robin Redbreast, her youngest grandchild.

"Magnificent!" cried Cicily's voice. The twins appeared in the doorway. Tripping on rugs, slipping on the hardwood floor, they dashed across the living room and cast themselves on Jane's neck.

"Happy birthday, Grandma!" they repeated.

Cicily stood on the threshold. She looked extremely pretty in a rose-colored sport suit and immensely amused at her offspring's dramatic entrance.

"Hello, Mumsy!" she cried. "Happy birthday again! Hello, Aunt Isabel! I thought you'd be here. How do you do, Aunt Muriel?"

"Don't tell her," whispered Muriel. "Don't tell her until I've gone." She rose as she spoke. Untangling herself from the arms of grandchildren, Jane walked with her to the door.

She kissed Muriel tenderly and returned to the living room. Isabel had wasted no time. Cicily, standing on the hearthrug, was facing her mother-in-law in shocked, derisive incredulity.

Cicily Doesn't Believe It.

"Oh, I don't believe it!" she was saying.

"It's true!" cried Isabel. "It's perfectly true!"

"You're kidding me," said Cicily.

"I'm not!" cried Isabel. "Ask your mother!"

"It's true," said Jane soberly.

"Aunt Muriel—is going to marry—Ed Brown?"

Jane nodded solemnly.

"My Gawd!" said Cicily profanely. Then, "How absurd!"

"Why is it absurd?" inquired Jane a trifle sharply. She sat down again at the tea table and removed Robin Redbreast's fingers from the sugar-bowl.

"It's so undignified," said Cicily promptly. "If Aunt Muriel wanted to marry again, why didn't she do it years ago?"

"My dear," said Jane gently, "her husband was living."

But Cicily was still intrigued with the problems of her Aunt Muriel.

"I should think she would have fallen in love with some one else long since," she said.

Jane's eyes met Isabel's. She hoped her sister was going to restrain herself. The hope was vain, however.

"She's been falling in love with some one else every six months for the last 30 years," said Isabel shortly.

"Why didn't she walk out on Uncle Bert, then?" asked Cicily lightly. "Why didn't she get a divorce?"

Lesters Very Conventional.

Jane glanced uneasily at the twins. Eight-year-old children were very understanding. Cicily never seemed to care what she said in their hearing.

"The Lesters are a very conventional family," she said gravely. "I'm sure your Aunt Muriel never thought of divorce. Not even before Uncle Bert's stroke."

"Why not?" asked Cicily again.

"She had Albert to consider," said Isabel.

"Albert?" cried Cicily. Her voice was greatly astonished. "What had Albert to do with it?"

"It would have broken up his home," said Isabel a trifle sententiously.

"Oh, I don't know," said Cicily. "He might have drawn a very good stepfather."

"Men who love married women," said Isabel with asperity, "don't make very good stepfathers."

"I don't believe in promiscuity," said Cicily firmly.

"Cicily!" cried Isabel sharply. "What words you use. At your age your mother and I wouldn't have——"

"I can't see that it makes much difference what you call things, Aunt Isabel," said Cicily cheerfully, "You and Mother certainly didn't believe in it and I don't either. It isn't practical and it's terribly complicated. I believe in monogamy."

"Progressive Monogamy."

"You reassure me, darling," murmured Jane, with a smile.

"I believe," continued Cicily stoutly, "that when a married woman falls in love, she ought to march straight to the divorce court and make everything regular."

"Oh," said Jane, still with the smile, "progressive monogamy."

"Exactly," said Cicily. Then added wisely, "No woman is ever really happy trying to live with two men at once. And no woman is ever really happy without her marriage lines."

"No woman is eventually happy," said Jane rather solemnly, "if she doesn't play the game with the cards that were dealt her."

"Why?" said Cicily promptly. "Not all games are like that. I think life's very like poker. You look over your hand and keep what you like, and what you don't, you discard. Throw away your Jack, you know, and hope for a king!"

Cicily was smiling a little over her play on words. It was an innocent little joke, of course, but Jane was very thankful that Isabel had not noticed it.

"And if you draw a deuce?" she said soberly.

Keep Your Poker Face.

"Have faith in the future," said Cicily lightly, "and keep your poker face. There's always a new deal."

"You talk," said Jane severely, "as if a woman had nine lives like a cat."

"She could have," said Cicily, "if she had vision and courage."

"Vision!" cried Jane. "What takes vision is to recognize the imperial qualities in the cards in your hand! What takes courage is to win the pot with a deuce spot!"

"I call that bluffing," said Cicily cheerfully. "You fool the world, but you don't fool yourself. You may win the pot but it's not worth the winning. What's fun is a game with a handful of face cards!"

For the last few minutes Isabel had not been listening to her argumentative daughter-in-law. Her next remark betrayed the fact that her thoughts had been wandering.

"Belle's coming back for the wedding," she said.

"Really?" cried Cicily. Her face lit up at the thought. "Oh, I'll love to see Belle again! Is she bringing the children?"

Isabel nodded cheerfully.

"What fun!" cried Cicily. "What fun for all of us!"

It would be fun for all of them, Jane reflected, as she stood at the front door with Isabel an hour later and watched Cicily, attended by her cavalcade of children, disappear around the bushes at the entrance of the drive.

Talk Is Wild; Life Is Tame.

"Cicily's a good mother," said Isabel approvingly.

"She adores the children," said Jane. "You know, Isabel," she added slowly, "modern young people don't mean all they say."

"I don't listen much to what Cicily says," said Isabel. "But what I catch sounds very wild."

"Their talk is wild," said Jane. "But their lives are just as tame as ours were."

"Except for the drink," said Isabel.

"The drink, of course," said Jane. "But Cicily never takes too much."

"I've seen her pretty gay at the Castillo," said Isabel. Then added honestly, "But Jack was, too."

"They all get pretty gay," said Jane, "but the nice ones don't get really tight. Not very tight, that is."

"You don't have to get very tight to be pretty loose!" said Isabel. She beckoned for her car as she spoke. It was waiting by the service entrance. "But I think you're right. They don't mean a thing by it."

The motor drove slowly up to the front door. Isabel climbed into it.

"Good-by, birthday child!" she cried, as it started into motion. She was waving cheerfully through the open window. "I can't wait to tell Robin about Muriel."

You know how fruit juices will ruin ordinary refrigerator finishes? Not even the acid of lemon juice can stain the Porcelain-on-steel interior of Frigidaire!

Ask the salesman to prove that the Frigidaire Porcelain interior is acid and stain-resisting—watch him rub half a lemon over the white surface—watch him squeeze the biting juice over the gleaming porcelain—and note that the acid-bath leaves no trace whatever of tell-tale stain!

KEEP YOUR FINE-CAR STANDARDS . . .
REDUCE YOUR MOTORING COSTS . . .
DRIVE THE OAKLAND EIGHT

an outstanding General Motors value . . .

Before you invest in anything, you naturally want to examine it and test the value. If that's true of a house or a new coat, how much more essential it is in a motor car which must perform to your satisfaction!

Many people who feel just that way have recently tested the new Oakland. We have asked them to judge it regardless of the moderate price—to be as critical as though price were no consideration. Their comments will interest you . . .

"I wanted a powerful, fast, quiet car," said one man. "So I called on Oakland to accelerate in traffic—climb steep grades from a slow start—prove itself on open highways. Never knew a car to do more brilliant work with less effort. I also demanded easy, quiet gear-shifting. Well, say, I don't believe even a beginner could make any disturbance with this Syncro-Mesh mechanism!"

Another motorist said: "I was pretty hard-boiled on riding ease and comfort. I drove the Oakland over back roads and railroad tracks. It felt like an expensive car!" (Four hydraulic shock absorbers, and rubber cushioning at 41 points in the chassis.) "When I drive the car in the rain or on a warm day, I find it surprisingly comfortable." (Oakland's fine Fisher body is insulated against heat, cold, dampness and noise.)

A woman driver said: "I don't know much about engines and gears, but I think you can judge a car pretty well by its appearance—especially inside. So when I found the seats were upholstered in real mohair that meant a lot!" (Smart whipcord in other closed models—fine leathers in the open cars.) "Then I examined the finish just as I would in a new home. I'm sure I never expected to buy such a fine-looking automobile as Oakland for any such price."

What are your standards—your tests of car value? Have you found a car that meets them at a moderate price? That is the point we make about Oakland—not that it surpasses expensive automobiles, but that it offers so much fine-car quality at low cost.

STOCK PRICES LOSE IN GROUP ACTIVITIES

Market Suffers From Lack of Public Support; Steel Down 1 Point.

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—Interest in stocks waned today, and the market, instead of advancing on a small turnover as had been the recent tendency, eased slowly after a fair start in the first hour.

Group movements were most noticeable in the rails, which were down 1 to 3 points. Steels paid no attention to the announcement that one independent was raising prices. Baking stocks made a good showing and a few motors occasionally took heart, but the list generally closed with small losses in a volume of 1,300,000 shares.

Prompt action by the German government to alleviate a difficult financial situation by increasing the discount rate and continuing to withdraw gold from earmark was reflected in better prices on the Berlin boerse. The mark steadied.

Public Support Lacking.

Stocks appeared to be suffering from a lack of public participation, and from the conviction of some professional traders that with such news as last week's railroad developments out of the way there was little of a constructive nature in immediate prospect.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel both lost slightly more than a point net. International Telephone's negotiations for the Kreuger & Toll holdings in the Swedish Telephone Co. had been discounted by last week's rise and the stock met profit-taking. Westinghouse was heavy all day and offerings of that issue seemed to weigh down the other industrials. American Telephone hopped up a couple of points, but closed unchanged. New York Central, Atchison, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific were down 2 to 3 net. The Nickel Plates rallied.

The turnover of nearly $2,000,000,000 in connection with the Government financing, quarterly income tax payments, and disbursements of corporate dividends and interest found the money markets steady. Large sums were offered at the official call loan renewal rate of 1½ per cent and occasionally a lender was willing to take less.

Wheat Prices Sag.

Wheat sagged slightly under the influence of more substantial arrivals of the new crop from the southwest. The loss was less than half a cent a bushel. Corn was ⅜ to ¾ net lower. Reflecting favorable rains in Kansas and large country offerings. Cotton, temporarily depressed by a bearish view of the May cloth statistics, rallied later and closed virtually unchanged.

Some second-grade bonds weakened and there was enough selling scattered through other domestic groups to make the trend rather irregular.

The German mark was off about half a point, but there was less talk of a gold shipment to New York. Other leading European currencies firmed. The Canadian dollar, however, remained at a discount. The New York Federal Reserve Bank announced a decrease of $41,680,000 in gold held under earmark for foreign account, presumably Germany. The drop in this item over the last ten days exceeds $65,000,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 15 (A.P.).—Despite rallies on account of increased drought in spring crop territory, wheat prices averaged lower today, responsive to news of big yields of winter wheat. Harvest operations Southwest were reported to be making rapid progress, with Texas and Oklahoma returns showing ½ to 1 bushel an acre more than the figures suggested by recent Government estimates. Fort Worth, Tex., messages said twenty cars of new wheat had arrived there today and that all of them graded high No. 1 hard.

Wheat closed unsteady, ¾@¾c lower, corn varying from ⅜c decline to ½c advance; oats, ⅛@⅜c off and provisions, at 2 cents setback to 5 cents gain.

It was difficult to hold wheat market bulges, even though they were mostly of but fractional extent. Bears made much of the fact that receipts of new wheat were increasing both at Oklahoma and Texas points, and that Kansas City also reported newly harvested wheat arriving there. Export demand, too, was again disappointing, and unexpected setbacks in Liverpool quotations gave the market here a black eye to start with.

Notwithstanding that pressure to sell in connection with the movement of 1931 domestic winter wheat was not expected to develop heavy volume for another fortnight, and perhaps not until about July 10, buyers were reluctant. It was explained that the market of late had made only laggard responses to bullish crop advices. Today's Washington reports that drought in spring wheat States had become worse than last year exercised only a transient bullish influence. Complaints of too much rain in Kansas and other winter wheat States were likewise of only temporary effect as an aid to higher prices. A decrease of 1,453,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply was virtually ignored.

Corn and oats were relatively firm owing to uneasiness over possible dearth of elevator storage room for corn in July.

Provisions were easy as a result of downturns in hogs.

Closing indemnities—Wheat: July, 57@57⅛; September, 58⅜@58⅝; December, 60⅝@60⅞. Corn: July, 56⅜; September, 51⅞@52; December, 45½. 46⅛.

RAIL BONDS REACT IN IRREGULAR SALES

German Issues Gain Favor in Dull Market; Day's Turnover Is Small.

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—Reactionary tendencies in the rail group and advances by German issues and many Latin-Americans gave the bond market an irregular appearance today. Trading, however, was relatively dull, for sales fell under $10,000,000, par value.

More confidence in the German situation, stimulated by the increase in the discount rate, was reflected in gains of over a point by the government 5½s and 7s and more extensive rallies by some of the industrial and utility issues. The bank group was mixed. United Steel Works 6½s were particularly strong.

Heaviness in the domestic rails was confined largely to second-grade bonds. St. Paul 5s, Erie 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s and St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s were soft, while the New York Central A½s, Texas & Pacific 5s, Rock Island 4½s and Boston & Maine 5s sagged a point or so. Kansas City Southern refunding 5s advanced.

Industrials and utilities were mixed. Bethlehem Steel 5s, Lorillard 7s, Union Oil of California 5s, with warrants, and Western Union 5s rallied at least a point, but there was considerable easiness in American Natural Gas 6½s, Otis Steel 6s and American Water Works 6s. The American Telephone group was firm.

Amusement issues featured the convertibles, General Theaters 6s and Warner Bros. 6s rallying several points. United States Government obligations were steady.

NATS WIN TENTH STRAIGHT, BEATING BROWNS, 4-3

Marberry Halts Attack After St. Louis Ties Lead; Rally in 8th Beats Gray

Cronin Scores on Fly by Bluege With Bases Full.

Brown Solved in 7th; His Single in Fifth Drives 2 Home.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

SCORING a run in the eighth after the Browns had knotted the count with a three-run rally in the preceding frame, the Nationals yesterday rang up) their tenth straight victory and equaled their longest streak of last season, while bringing their record for the present home stay to the meaty figures of: Won, 17; lost, 3. The final score was 4 to 3, with about 6,000, including about 70 Marine officers and men on hand to pay honor to Jim Levey, St. Louis shortstop. Yes, the Mackmen won, too.

It was Sam Gray who broke the Nats' next longest streak of the season, in St. Louis last month, stopping them at six, who was on the hill yesterday, and there were several moments in the seventh round when it looked like he would repeat the trick. However, the Nats staved off defeat and won the game in the eighth when Bluege's long fly scored Cronin.

Lloyd Brown started on the hill for the home folks, and he did well until the so-called "lucky" frame. Entering the seventh, he was enjoying a three-run lead, but he suddenly found the going rough, and Fred Marberry rushed to his relief, entering the game with the score tied, one out and men on first and third. It was a ticklish situation, especially as Marberry immediately filled the bases by walking Gray.

Manush's Throw Cuts Off Run.

Then the big relief pitcher got down to work. He held Levey to a fly to short left. The Browns evidently did not have much respect for Manush's arm, for McNeely tried to score after the catch and he was thrown out by several feet, the left fielder's peg being well-nigh perfect. After pulling out of this hole, Marberry had no further troubles, continuing to pitch hitless ball until the end, well deserving the credit for the victory.

Although Gray granted ten hits, several of these were scratchy and he twirled a much better game than this Washington hit-total would indicate. He pulled out of a hole in the first, granted but one clean hit among the four charged against him in the Nats' three-run stand in the fifth, and faltered just long enough to lose the decision in the eighth.

While the Nationals benefited from some breaks, so did the Browns. Cronin made an error in their only scoring frame with a double play in sight and one down, else the Nats might have been credited with a shutout.

Brown Scores Two With Single

All of the scoring was done in four frames. The Nats broke the ice in the fifth. Kuhel opened with a walk and intended sacrifices by both Bluege and Spencer went as hits, filling the bases. Brown helped himself by scoring two with a bat-handle looper to left and later Sam Rice scored the other run with the only solid whack of the inning.

Brown had held the aliens to but four hits, scattered over as many sessions, until the blow-off came in the seventh. With one dead, he walked Schulte and Kress rolled sharply to Cronin. It was a made-to-

STAR ROOKIE FACES NATS TODAY

Hebert, Conqueror of Macks, to Oppose Carl Fischer.

WASHINGTON fans will be given an opportunity of seeing the league's most talked-of rookie flinger at Griffith Stadium this afternoon when "Preacher" Wallace Hebert, the young southpaw who beat the Athletics last week in a seven-hit contest, toes the slab for the Browns in the third game of the current set.

This feat was especially surprising in view of the fact that Hebert, obtained from Springfield, Mo., of the Western Association, was making his starting debut and previously this season, his first in the big time, had pitched only three innings in relief roles.

Carl Fischer, also of southpaw persuasion, will fling for the Nats and will be seeking his eighth victory of the season.

Before yesterday's game Gen. Randolph P. Berkeley, representing the officers at the Quantico Marine post, presented Jim Levey, St. Louis shortstop, who was a three-sport star while a sergeant at the post, with a handsome traveling bag. About 200 of Levey's former mates, accompanied by their band, marched on the field before play started and added considerable zip to the cheering during the game.

Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones worked too soon after his 11-inning effort against the Tigers and pulled up with

HUNTERS WIN BEST BALL TOURNEY

Houghton Shows Way to M. A. Pros in Sweepstakes.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, June 15.—J. Monroe Hunter, sr., and his son, J. Monroe Hunter, jr., won the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association amateur-professional best ball tournament today at the Maryland Country Club with a score of 65, six strokes under par.

It marked the fourth straight association tourney in which the elder Hunter played a winning role.

George Diffenbaugh, assistant pro at Indian Spring, and J. W. Harvey finished in second place with a 66. This pair was out in 31.

Two teams were tied with third honors, each posting cards showing 67 strokes. They were Al Houghton and John Shorey, of the Manor Club, and Carroll T. MacMaster and Dave Crook, of Rolling road. The former team went out in 33 and returned in 34.

A. Molloy and John Owens, from Columbia, had a score of 35-37-72. Seventeen teams engaged in the competition.

With 34 each way, Houghton took leading honors in the pro sweepstakes. The Washingtonian had four birdies in a row, being under par at the eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh holes and missing another only an inch at the twelfth.

Duffenbaugh, who had a 34—37, and MacMaster, with 36—35, were knotted for runner-up position. Next came the senior Hunter with 33—39.

Mrs. Killilea, Baseball Club Official, Dies

Milwaukee, Wis., June 15 (A.P.).—Mrs. Florence Killilea Boley, 29, vice president of the Milwaukee Brewers Baseball Club, died today at the Milwaukee General Hospital after an illness of two weeks. Blood infection was followed by pneumonia.

She was perhaps the only woman who ever directed the destinies of a baseball club of the importance of the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Milwaukee club came into her hands February 16, 1929, when her father, Henry F. Killilea, died.

Directors of the club made her president and she assumed direction of the team. She followed the players into spring training camp and on road trips during the season.

Dickey Outfoots Ruth At 100 Yards for Bet

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—Customers at Yankee Stadium were treated to an extra added attraction before today's game when Bill Dickey, long-legged Yankee catcher, and Babe Ruth engaged in a 100-yard foot race for a side bet.

Dickey proved his supremacy, beating the Bambino to the tape by 5 feet.

Ben Chapman, speed merchant of the Yanks, offered to take on both Dickey and Ruth in a relay event, and the race may be run tomorrow, Ruth and Dickey each sprinting 50 yards while Chapman does 100.

Champions Win, 4-1, Pounding Hudlin for 3 Runs in Sixth.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics today celebrated the raising of their 1930 world championship pennant by beating the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 1.

Rube Walberg allowed only five hits, won his tenth game of the year against two losses. Willis Hudlin was knocked out of the box when the champions scored three runs in the sixth inning and wiped out the Indians' previous lead of 1 to 0.

Pete Donohue, former Cincinnati and New York Giant pitcher, made his first American League appearance as relief to Hudlin. He was hit for a home run by Todt in the eighth inning.

Calory-Watching Ends For Crews, Shielded From Ravages of Nut Sundaes

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Special to The Washington Post.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 15.—There are about 200 college athletes, most of them young and most of them of the long, rangy pattern, quartered in the boarding houses of Poughkeepsie this evening or in private crew camps of their own on the yonder shore of the Hudson River, waiting for the big boat race which annually decides the American College rowing championship. Possibly it decides the world championship, too.

The American crews do not row against the English crews but then, neither do the American major league baseball teams meet the champions of Chislehurst or Upper Tooting, England, and yet their showdown games in the fall always are referred to as the world series.

Columbia and Navy Have Own Camps.

The Columbia and Navy crews have their own camps, isolated places along the bank in the lee of the palisades where they remain holed up for two or three weeks before the day, very close to nature and eating only such calories, carbohydrates, vitamins and whatnot as their camp dieticians prepare for them.

The other crews each take over a boarding house in the town and do the best they can on boarding house food. Up to the present time the calories and dietary whatnots have achieved no apparent advantage over the traditional liver and onions and corned beef and cabbage of the boarding houses. Cornell, a boarding house fed team won the race last year and Syracuse and Masachusetts Tech were second and third, respectively.

The boarding house boys have the run of the town during their leisure hours and therefore are subject to the sinister temptations of the banana flop and the cherry nut royal surprise with whipped cream offered for sale in the ice cream soda dives. Years ago it was customary to give the oarsmen English ale with their meals, but the banana flip and cherry nut royal surprise have always been regarded as deadly dissipations for athletes in training. It is one reason why some of the crews have training quarters.

The majority of the athletes are from 17 to 22 years old, but this sea-

Primo Stops Redmond In First

Carnera Clubs Irishman to Floor as 20,000 Watch.

Celt, Outclassed, Honestly Beaten; Fans Cheer Italian.

By DIXON STEWART.

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., June 15 (U.P.).—Pat Redmond, inrtoduced as the "pride and joy of all Ireland," proved as poor as fight critics had predicted and lasted only 2 minutes and 24 seconds of a scheduled ten-round bout with Primo Carnera here tonight.

With opposition of absolutely no ability, Primo showed to good advantage and delighted the crowd of 20,000 spectators who turned out for the "frolic of freaks."

Primo outweighed his opponent, 275¼ pounds to 246, and outclassed the big Irishman by an even wider margin.

The bout added little to Primo's prestige, although it did show that he actualyl carries a knockout punch and has unusual speed for a man of his pounds. There was no suspicion of a "dive," with Redmond taking a severe beating during the less than a round of fighting.

Primo had every advantage over his rival, and although the Irishman appeared to be trying, he lacked the ability to make any kind of a showing.

Irishman Floored At Start.

Redmond failed to land a single solid blow during the brief duration of the bout. He espent most of his time backig away from Primo's rushes, diving into clinches and resting on the floor.

Pat went down first from a left and appeared badly hurt, but he got up and dove into a clinch. Primo was strong enough to shake him off and then chased him about the ring.

For a moment it appeared that Pat might last out the round, but he made the mistake of allowing Primo to get in close again and the mammoth Italian clubbed him senseless.

Redmond fell flat on his back, rolled over on his face and made no effort to rise.

He was still out when the count was completed and was dragged to his corner.

Carnera Given Ovation.

Carnera apparently made a good impression on the crowd of 20,000 spectators which braved cloudy skies and intermittent showers to see the bout, and he was given a great ovation when he left the ring.

The semifinal, put on after the main go, lasted only 46 seconds, with Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, knocking out his fellow townsman, Jack Gagnon.

The opening bout was fuly as bad as every one expected the main bout to be, with Ted Sandwina, 194½, outwrestling Tom Kirby, 191½, over the eight-round route. Neither fighter suffered any appreciable damage.

"Red" Corriden Resigns As Indianapolis Pilot

Indianapolis, June 15 (A.P.).—John (Red) Corriden today resigned as manager of the Indianapolis American Association Baseball Club. Emett McCann, first baseman, was appointed as his successfor for the remainder of the season.

No explanation was made of the shift in managers. The Indianapolis club has been trailing at the bottom of the league for several weeks.

The new manager formerly played with the Philadelphia Athletics, Washington and the Cincinnati Reds.

Corriden came to the Indianapolis club four years ago from Minneapolis, where he was coaching the Millers.

Tigers Beat Yankees In 2d of Series, 8 to 5

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—Piling up an early lead, the Detroit Tigers romped off with the second game of the series with the New York Yankees today, winning 8 to 5.

Charley Ruffing was pounded hard in the two innings he was on the mound and the Tigers added three more runs at Weaver's expense in the ninth. In between, Sherid held the Tigers to three hits in six innings. Earl Whitehill, after holding one run lead up to the ninth, gave way to Uhle. Lou Gehrig hit his eleventh home run of the season while Johnson and Chapman also connected for four bases.

8 Crews Wait Title Race Today

Cornell Rules Choice to Retain Crown at Poughkeepsie.

Choppiness of Water Seen Aid; 3 Others Undefeated.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 15 (A.P.).—Old Man River kicked up such a fuss today, on the eve of the intercollegiate championship regatta, that naval headquarters along the banks of the Hudson prepared for another rough-water battle for rowing supremacy, with Cornell's heavyweights favored to retain the varsity honors they won on stormy seas a year ago.

The Hudson has been so unruly for the past two years that five crews have gone beneath the waves before reaching the finish of the 4-mile pull down the river from Krum Elbow. Columbia in 1929 and Cornell in 1930, equipped for a rough passage, rode the whitecaps to sensational victories.

These two may fight it out for varsity glory late tomorrow afternoon, but the entire fleet of nine crews in the big race will be prepared for fair weather or foul, with outrigger "aprons," specially built gunwales and other facilities calculated to keep the slim racing craft from shipping too much water.

Fair Skies Forecast For Regatta.

There will be every emergency measure except the addition of an extra man to bail out the boats, and as "Ky" Ebright, the California coach, remarked this afternoon, "We have even thought of trying that one."

The warm and sultry winds that swept up the river today, cutting short final workouts, may switch to more favorable quarter by tomorrow, in the weather man's opnion, with fair skies likely for the regatta throng of 50,000 or more spectators. If so, the crowds likely will witness one of the most spectacular races for college rowing championships in years.

Although the champion Cornell crew, seasoned veterans in all kinds of going, have been picked by the experts to repeat, the prospects pointed to at least a four-crew varsity struggle, under favorable conditions.

"The crew that beats Cornell will win," chorused the coaches, meanwhile extoiling the power and class of the Ithacans, but the camp followers of the undefeated eights of Washington, Columbia and Syracuse made no secret of their optimism.

California, Wisconsin, Conceded Chances.

While these four varsities, on the face of their fine records, figured to wage the "first division" fight mostly by themselves, California's strong boatload was conceded an excellent chance to break through and upset the dope. Mike Murphy's Wisconsin varsity, untried this year by competition, was the outstanding "dark horse," considered by some a potential contender despite its inexperience.

Of the remaining three entries, Navy and Massachusetts Tech, which finished a fine third last year, apparently have improved since coming to the Hudson sufficiently to revive the hopes of their backers, but Pennsylvania seemed doomed to the second division.

The relative positions of the crews complicated the preregatta speculation. Columbia's boatload occupies the No. 2, or "rabbit's foot," lane, where Cornell rode to triumph a year ago.

On the extreme outside this time are Cornell and Syracuse, the up-State rivals who finished 1-2 in 1930. Theoretically, the outside crews are at a disadvantage in rough weather, but the Red and Orange shells are equipped for any sort of going. Moreover, it is remembered that Columbia, in the roughest kind of water on the outside in 1929 swept through the

Sherdel Hurls Braves To 9-3 Win Over Cubs

Chicago, June 15 (A.P.).—The Cubs were unable to hit Willie Sherdel's slow ball with any consistency today, so Boston made it two in a row over Chicago by winning, 9-3. The Braves blasted Bob Smith out of the game in the fifth inning, and then nicked Blake and Teachout for more runs. Sherdel was hit eight times, but only Cuyler, with a home run and two doubles, did any damage.

Manager Hornsby was out of the lineup, for he has been in such a slump of late that he decided it would be best to bench himself temporarily. Blair, however, went hitless and made an error that accounted for two Boston runs while Blake was pitching.

Two walks, doubles by Randy Moore and Maguire, and Neun's triple scored four runs in the third, and Berger's home run with Dreesen on base in the next inning cinched the game for McKechnie's club.

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

A DISPATCH from Chicago yesterday, announcing that Manager Hornsby, of the Cubs, had decided to bench himself temporarily for the good of the team, serves to remind this column that player-managers, so popular six or seven years ago, have fallen from grace with a thud heard 'round the baseball world.

The year 1931 finds Hornsby the only manager of the species incumbent, discounting the status of Bucky Harris, of the Tigers, who has not played ten games since he assumed managerial duties at Detroit at the start of the 1929 season, although he has retained himself on the players' list.

Going down the line of the managers, I find that every club with the exception of the Cubs is directed from the bench by some graduate of the big league playing fields with the exception of the Yankees, whose manager, Joe McCarthy, never rose above the American Association as a performer.

Harris Was Popular

Player-managers reached their high-water mark in 1928 when exactly half of the sixteen big league clubs were directed by men who also bore a share of the burden on the playing fields—five in the American League and three in the National. What further inroads the player manager might have made except for the presence of such fixtures as Connie Mack with the Athletics, McGraw with the Giants and Wilbert Robinson with the Robins is significantly debatable.

The popularity of the player-manager may be said to date from the season of 1924 when Bucky Harris was the boy pilot of the Nats who led the team to Washington's first American League pennant. In that season, there were three other player-managers in the American League, Speaker at Cleveland, Cobb at Detroit, and Sisler at St. Louis. Bancroft, with the Braves, was the only player-manager in the National League.

The next season, which followed Harris' pennant and world series triumphs, found eight playing managers in the big leagues, with Eddie Collins having succeeded Kid Gleason at the head of the White Sox; Hornsby having relieved Rickey of the Cardinals in midseason, and Maranville heading the Cubs.

Scandal Depleted Ranks

The season of 1926 found the ranks of play-managers depleted by one, with the passing of Maranville from the Cubs, due as much to his untoward escapades on and off the field as to any managerial shortcomings. The next year, 1927, found their ranks reduced to four. That was the season following the Cobb-Speaker-Dutch Leonard scandal when on orders from higher up, Cobb and Speaker relinquished their berths and found places with other teams. Sisler was deposed at St. Louis, although O'Farrell, a player, succeeded Hornsby with the Cardinals.

The 1928 season started off with only Ray Schalf at Chicago and Bucky Harris at Washington as the only player managers in the major, but before midseason, Hornsby succeeded Jack Slattery at the helm of the Braves.

The next two years were barren of player-managers, with Donie Bush having succeeded Schalk at Chicago and Harris having quit the Washington Clu bto take up managerial duties at Detroit with the decision to refrain from play in deference to the superior ability of Charley Gehringer, his second baseman.

Depend on Success

Withal, the ppularity of player-managers with the owners has been

Chisox Errors in 11th Help Red Sox Win, 3-2

Boston, June 15 (A.P.).—The Red Sox came through in the eleventh today to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 3 to 2, and took a firm hold on fifth place.

Vic Frazier held Boston to four hits while big, young Bob Kline went the distance for the Red Sox, yielding seven hits. Errors by Jeffries and Cissell in the eleventh together with a base on balls to Pickering and a scratch hit by Otis Miller pushed across the winning tally with two out.

TWENTY GRAND THREATENS GALLANT FOX'S EARNINGS RECORD

Dwyer Stakes Colt's Next Contest

Derby Winner Named for All Important 3-Year-Old Races.

Seeks $70,000 Classic; Held Out of American Derby.

NEW YORK, June 15 (A.P.).—Well on his way to pass Gallant Fox as the leading money winner of the American turf, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand's next appearance under colors will be in the renewal of the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct, July 4.

James Rowe, trainer of the 3-year-old champion, decided today not to ship the great son of St. Germans and Bonus West for the American Derby at Washington Park next Saturday. He will start in the Dwyer, however, and then go to Chicago to fulfill his engagement in the $75,000 classic at Arlington Park later in the month.

The Dwyer is decided over the mile-and-one-half route—the same distance at which Twenty Grand made a show of Jamestown and Sun Meadow in the Belmont Stakes. In the Aqueduct classic Twenty Grand again will be called upon to meet the best of the East and West—including Mate, his conqueror in the Preakness, and Sweep All, runner-up in the Kentucky Derby.

Named for All Rich Stakes of Year.

Twenty Grand has been named for all of the important 3-year-old stakes and in addition, the Saratoga Cup and the Jockey Club Gold Cup. Victories in the classic, which will net more than $70,000, the Dwyer, the Travers at Saratoga, the Lawrence Realization at Belmont Park in September and the two races for older horses would send Twenty Grand's earnings well beyond Gallant Fox's record of $328,165. The Whitney runner already has won $164,075.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WASHINGTON PARK, Chicago, June 15.—Word has been definitely received that Mrs. Payne Whitney's potential 3-year-old champion, Twenty Grand, will not be shipped to the Homewood course for his engagement in the American Derby this Saturday. At the present writing, some twenty outstanding 3-year-olds have been pointed for the $50,000 prize. Many of the eligibles are on the grounds, and nine will receive their final prep for the important fixture tomorrow afternoon.

The Trial, an allowance affair, for 3-year-olds, to be contested over the mile and an eighth, will serve as a conditioning race for the Derby. This event, which features the program, will test the mettle of the nine entrants and should produce a keen struggle.

The Dixiana's fleet colt, SWEEP ALL, which has shown exceptional form since his brilliant second to Twenty Grand in the Kentucky Derby, will be extended to the limit against the opponents. Although the son of Nettie Hastings is favored to show the way, he will have to be at his best over the gruelling 9 furlongs distance. The much improved SPANISH PLAY, from the Kenbelkamp and Morris establishment, has attained his best form and figures to force the pace. PITTSBURGHER has displayed staying qualities and is capable of gaining the major award should the top ones falter.

In the fourth event, which will be contested under allowance conditions, a group of nine sprinters were received in this 6-furlong dash. TANNERY, E. F. Prichard's clever 4-year-old colt, has the speed of this contingent and should romp to an easy victory. His chief opposition should be furnished by MAYA, a fast-stepping filly in the C. E. Davison string. The show card is reserved for R. W. Collins' DON LEON.

FIRST RACE—The first dash for maiden 2-year-old colts and geldings, should result in a victory for ESSENTIAL, at the 5½-furlong distance. This promising youngster from the C. W. Moore string just failed to enter the winners' circle at this track and in this company should graduate. DIS DAT has shown improvement recently and is the one to beat. MASTER M'GEE showed a nice effort in his debut and should get into the money.

SECOND RACE—Another limit list of twenty will face the barrier in the 6 furlongs of the second event, which is fashioned for 3-year-old fillies and mares. PORT HARLEM, owned by Mrs. F. A. Carreaud, will favor the fast track and under ideal conditions is rated the best in this large field. J. C. Ellis' consistent filly, ELLICE, has a nice turn of speed, and should furnish stern opposition. PHANTASIME, winner of her last start, appears best of the others.

THIRD RACE—Juvenile fillies will display their speed in the 5½-furlong dash of the third heat. ANITA ORMONT has shown steady improvement recently and should annex the purse. PORTER'S DREAM, highly regarded miss in the E. B. McLean string, has been freshened up and should go well here. CHU CHU would appreciate a heavy track, but nevertheless figures to serve the show.

SIXTH RACE—In the mile and an eighth of the sixth event, a large field of 3-year-old routers will contest the issue. SAN PRESTO faltered over a slow track last start and should redeem himself over the fast strip. ALLEGRETTO is unrellable but on his best efforts should prove troublesome.

SEVENTH RACE—The concluding number brings together a limit of the older horses in training to decide the purse over the mile and three-sixteenths route. CLASSY raced well at Aurora and also turned in a fair effort in his last start at this track. The W. L. Johnson color bearer should show the way to his nineteen opponents. HARAMZADA weakened in his previous effort but should improve off that trial to finish in the runner-up position. DUNMORE should hold the others safe for the show end of the purse.

WALKER AND MARTINEZ CHOICES

Play Kingsbury and Raver for Doubles Crown Today.

THE doubles championship of the Women's District Tennis League will be decided this afternoon at 5 o'clock on the courts of Dumbarton Country Club, the laurel to be given to the winner of the finals match between the teams of Mrs. Ruth Martinez and Frances Walker and Dorothy Kingsbury and Cecyle Raver.

Contestants in the finals of the singles Sunday, Mrs. Martinez and Miss Walker, loom as odds-on favorites to capture the doubles today from the steady hitting team of Miss Kingsbury and Miss Raver. Both Mrs. Martinez and Miss Walker, particularly the latter, are proficient at net play, and this is expected to prove the undoing of the back-court pair.

Ryan and Jansen Defeated.

The Martinez-Walker team gained the title round yesterday by taking an easy 6—0 6—2 match from Mary Ryan and Carolyn Jansen. The seeded No. 1 pair won as they pleased, concentrating on Miss Ryan and directing the brunt of their attack against her. Miss Jansen, whenever she was given a chance to hit the ball, either shot the pellet for a placement or missed by wide margins.

Betty Cochran and Margaret Graham served as the stepping stone to the final round used by the team of Kingsbury-Raver. Kingsbury and Raver took the match by the margin of 7—5, 6—2, making the most of the unorthodox "one up and one back" system of play used by the losers.

League Games Planned For Martinsburg Field

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 15.—Joe Cambria, owner of the Hagerstown Club of the Middle Atlantic League, made an overture today to local baseball leaders, which will likely result in his club playing all of its weekday games during the second half of the season in this city.

Cambria talked to Lewis H. Thompson, who headed the Mountaineers when they were in the Blue Ridge League, and said he believed it would be beneficial to call his club the Hagerstown-Martinsburg entry, playing all games in Martinsburg except those on Sunday.

The Middle Atlantic owner, prior to the start of the season, had planned a joint entry but changed his mind. He is expected to make some definite announcement in a day or so.

Orange Boosters Bow To Alberene, 7 to 4

Special to The Washington Post.

Gordonsville, Va., June 15.—The Orange County Boosters, a team made up of players from all over Orange County, many of them college students, lost to Alberene here today by a score of 7 to 4. This was the first game the local nine has lost since June of last year.

The game was on edge until the sixth inning, the score standnig 4 to 3 in favor of the Boosters. At that time the first batter up for Alberene was hit by a pitched ball. This was followed by a hit and an error, the latter allowiong the first batter to score. The next man at bat hit a fly to the catcher, and the next singled, scoring two runners Alberene's final run came in the ninth inning.

$27,000 for The Porter Tops Belmont Farm Sale

86 Horses Bring $218,000 With Historic 600-Acre Plantation Bought for $95,000; Notables Among Buyers.

LEESBURG, Va., June 15 (U.P.).—One of the proudest stables of race horses in the country and their home, historic Belmont Farm, were sold at auction today for approximately $313,000 to meet liens and deeds of trust.

The Porter, prize of his stable and winner of $73,866, sire of the winners of 321 other races and $547,429 up to 1931, was bought by Mrs. John Hay "Jock" Whitney for $27,000.

The 1,100-acre farm, on the Alexandria turnpike, and including a 100-year-old mansion and other buildings making it one of the finest estates of northern Virginia, was sold for $95,000 —just $20,000 over the unpaid principal indebtedness of $75,000 against it. It was said to be worth $300,000. It went to Arthur G. Mittelle, of Washington, D. C.

The 86 race horses brought an aggregate of $218,000, and it is understood this will go to retire deeds of trust of $32,000 and other liens. It was reported after the sale of horses that part of the proceeds would be used to retire the deed of trust against the farm, but the sale as advertised by trustees went on.

Hundreds of horsemen, including Belmonts, Duponts and Whitneys, gathered here for the sale, which took all the horses except old Colin, 21-year-old stud, never beaten in a race.

The second highest price was paid for Brocatelle, a breeding mare, which went to the Brockmead Stables for $22,000.

Prince of Wales, a prize-winner, went to D. C. Sands for $10,000. Neddie went to W. S. Kilmer for $8,500.

Mrs. Whitney, in addition to The Porter, bought Bosphorus and Chestnut Colt for $5,000 each.

Bar le Duc was sold to L. G. Keiffer for $2,500.

Time Maker, rated high by track experts, brought $3,000 from David M. Rust.

The mansion home on Belmont Farm was a fine old colonial brick mansion of 24 rooms. The land includes 600 acres of the Virginia blue grass, which makes this a famous horse-breeding section, and the rest is timber and cleared farm lands.

Hyattsville High Nine Gains State Championship Finals

THE Hyattsville High School Baseball Team yesterday won the Western Shore championship in the State series when it squeezed out a 4-3 victory over Hagerstown High at Clifton Park, Baltimore. The victory put the Hyattsville nine in the State final against the Eastern Shore finalist. The teams will meet Thursday or Friday at a place to be announced for the State championship.

Pitching and hitting of Francis Peffer was the big features of yesterday's game, as it has been in the other three games which Hyattsville has won in the State competition. Peffer held Hagerstown to four hits, fanned seventeen and gave up not a single pass. He connected for two triples and a single and got a sacrifice fly in four times at bat, driving in two runs and scoring another. He was the lone player of either team to get more than one hit.

Hagerstown rallied briskly in the ninth, after two were out, with Hyattsville in the van, 4 to 1. However, after the Washington County boys had scored two runs on a single and two doubles and had the tying run on second base, Peffer bore down to fan the last batter.

Mentezer, Hagerstown pitcher, also did well, giving up only seven hits, striking out seventeen and walking two.

Prior to the Hagerstown game Hyattsville, after winning the Prince Georges County title, had down Towson High, Baltimore County winner; Annapolis High, Anne Arundel County champion, and Lackey High, of Indianhead, Charles County victor. Hagerstown, after winning Washington County honors, cleaned up all opposition in the western end of the State before engaging Hyattsville.

Insco's Racing Days Ended by Injuries

Chicago, June 15 (A.P.).—The racing career of Insco is over. The three-year old colt of Griffin Watkins, all set to start in the American Derby at Washington Park Saturday, broke down in a race last Friday. An examination revealed two fractured ankle bones, which will keep him from racing again.

MRS. HILL'S 86 WINS MEDAL AT ROCK CREEK

38-Card Sets Course A Record

Dorothy Hunter Tops Women's Field at Woodmont.

Manor Club Tourney Opens Today With 490 Entries.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

PLAY in the Rock Creek Park women's championship began yesterday. Mrs. Mae Hill led the qualifying round with a fine score of 38—48—86, her 38 on the course "A" nine establishing a woman's record. She was one stroke better than Miss Virginia Williams, who last Sunday was a winning partner in a mixed Scotch foursome on the Congressional course, where her father is a member, and who has figured conspicuously in all of the tournaments held under the auspices of the Women's District Golf Association.

Miss Williams might have led the field but for trouble on the fourth and the fifteenth holes, where she scored disastrous 7s. Mrs. Hill had only one 7 on her card, when she was compelled to play out of a trap on the eighteenth, the ninth on course "B."

Manor Club Tourney Opens Today.

The last golf club invitation tournament of the spring season opens this morning at the Manor Club, with the first pair teeing off at 6:45 o'clock and with a constant procession of players until 4 o'clock this afternoon. The course was crowded yesterday afternoon with contestants playing their practice rounds. While few scores were reported, M. F. McCarthy, Beaver Dam, negotiated the round in 73 but the feature of the afternoon was the hole-in-one secured by Milton Krafts, unattached, who secured his ace on the second hole of the woods nine.

Nothwithstanding the fact that there were 490 entries when the list closed last Sunday afternoon, the golf committee generously agreed yesterday to add materially to the list. The most important additions were Frank K. Roesch, of the Washington Club and the District amateur champion, and Thomas Wooten, one of the leading players of Atlantic City. Other names added were: W. E. Price, unattached; L. F. Edlen, unattached; D. M. McPherson, Manor; J. H. Gallagher, unattached; A. T. O'Connor, unattached; W. F. March, Army-Navy; T. T. Smith, Washington; C. H. Drurer, Beaver Dam; E. T. Rice, Washington; Harold Rice, Washington; L. C. Beyly, unattached; C. W. Cowell, unattached; R. T. Harrell, Washington; T. F. Stone, Beaver Dam; J. F. O'Brien, unattached; J. E. Maddox, Congressional; Russell N. Low, Bannockburn; J. T. Taylor, Manor; J. T. McRae, Columbia; J. L. Trotter, unattached; J. Gibbs, Indian Spring, and M. F. McCarthy, Beaver Dam.

The list of players today aggregates over 280 names and the balance of the field, now numbering over 500, will qualify tomorrow. It was decided yesterday that contestants would play the woods nine under summer rules, allowing preferred lies.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

TOBACCO was first introduced into England by Sir John Hawkins in 1565. At this date Sir Walter Raleigh was but 13 years old. In 1586 Ralph Lane, the first governor of Virginia, and Sir Francis Drake brought to England tobacco and smoking implements which they handed to Raleigh. Raleigh adopted the smoking habit, and it is to him that the British are indebted for popularizing tobacco smoking.

Raleigh never spread his cloak in the mud to save his queen's feet from the mire. According to Chamber's Encyclopaedia this is most likely completely apocryphal, but well befits the romantic temper of the times when the Virgin Queen was worshiped and wooed by the fine gentlemen of her court.

VIGIL ENDED BY COLLEGE CREWS

son, said Pete McManus, the Poughkeepsie farmer, who rows for Cornell, appears to have lost his title of the oldest man to a Russian artistocrat rowing in the Washington freshman shell. Pete McManus is rowing his last year at the age of 31, but Vsevolod Postnikoff, of the Washington Prosh, is supposed to be 32 right now, with three years remaining in which to represent his alma mater. Mr. Postnikoff is said to have been a cadet in a Russian naval academy preparing to be an officer when the revolution broke out. Most of his class were killed in the fighting and Cadet Postnikoff is said to have escaped with a few other survivors by stealing a warship, which would have been only petty larceny.

The details of this personal history may not be exactly correct, but at any rate his name is Vsevolod Postnikoff.

Coaches Make Mystery Of Time Trials.

The coaches of the crews always make a profound mystery of the time their athletes make in their trials on the water, which, probably is just as well because the figures would only confuse the situation anyway. Up to now, on past performances, the Cornell crew is supposed to be the best and Navy second, but it seems unnecessary to try to make predictions, because the answer will be available in a few hours.

The nine crews in the varsity race will represent Cornell, Navy, Syracuse, Penn, Columbia, Massachusetts Tech, Washington, California and Wisconsin.

Up to now Wisconsin is regarded as the dark horse, but only because the boys have not yet had a race. Washington has beaten California and also a crew from Marietta College in a practice race rowed on the Ohio River a few days ago. Washington probably wasn't trying very hard at Marietta because the coach of Marietta is an old Washington alumnus who is trying to develop a first-class crew there, and naturally the Washington crew wished to see an old Washington fellow do pretty well, though not too well.

Estimation of Crowd Is Useless.

The seats on the observation train, which sell for $5 apiece, are reported to be nearly all gone; but that is a vague way of measuring the probable attendance, because it is always easy to hitch on a few more flatcars. However, the Poughkeepsie crowd never can be estimated by any more accurate term than a lot of people or a great, big crowd of people, as, thousands of them watch the rowing from the palisades or the river bank and thousands more sit in wicker furniture under the awnings on the decks of yachts sipping refreshments. It is impossible to canvass the yachts for the attendance figures; and, anyway, taking a large view of the situation, will posterity really care if the figures are a few thousand more or less than accurate?

The rowing will consist of three races, the freshman event at 2 miles, the junior of varsity at 3, and the varsity event at 4 miles, and the program will run on most of Tuesday afternoon, with the long intermissions between races and the difficulty of getting the boats up to the line and getting them away.

G. A. R.'s Love to Toll Of Prerace Quiet.

The evening is very quiet in Poughkeepsie, and if these were the old days that the athletic G. A. R.'s love to tell about, the quiet night can be regarded as portentous of some disquiet fellow on Tuesday evening. But there is very little real rousing disquiet either before or after the boat races nowadays, and even if there were it probably would be no more than a faint whispering echo of the historic disquiet of 1895.

In 1895 Columbia won the races the first time it was rowed in these waters, and that evening in the bar of the Nelson House some of the Columbia undergrads or old grads, or both, celebrated by shooting off skyrockets horizontally. Probably there were old grads who did this, as undergraduates, even as far back as 1895, were not as hilarious over athletic victories as old grads.

At any rate, the skyrockets fizzed and boomed along the bar and ricocheted off the walls and between the legs of the patrons, and the fire department was requested to come and extinguish not only the fireworks but the enthusiasm of the Columbia party. So always after that until prohibition came, when the Nelson House closed its bar forever, in favor of the bars of the new speakeasies, the Nelson House bar always was closed on boat-race night.

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—Glenna Collett, United States woman golf champion, today said she had no idea of retiring from competitive golf on her marriage June 24 to Edwin H. Vare, jr., of Philadelphia.

"Why should I?" she asked when told that there were rumors she would announce her retirement. "I don't know of any reason why a married woman shouldn't play. A lot of them do."

She said she had no definite plans as to what tournaments she would enter, but that certainly was not to be taken as an indication she intended to retire.

Houston, Tex., June 15 (A.P.).—Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, big right-handed pitcher of the Houston Buffs, was married this afternoon to Miss Patricia Nash, of Houston, by the Rev. Harry G. Knowles, pastor of the First Christian Church, Houston.

The status of the marriage plans of the able but eccentric pitcher, who was with the St. Louis Cardinals in spring training, has been in doubt. Recently Dean announced he would be married on the diamond between innings of a game, but his fiancee subsequently said the wedding would be postponed until the end of the baseball season.

The appointment of Leahy completes the Georgetown football coaching staff for the season of 1931, the other members besides Head Coach Mills being John Colrick, end coach, and Frank Kerjis, freshman mentor. Leahy will report with the candidates for the team at the preseason training camp on September 3.

Woodmere, N. Y., June 15 (A.P.).—Army's polo team eliminated Oklahoma University, 12 to 6, in a first-round match of the intercollegiate handicap tournament here today.

Army launched an effective attack, led by Lieut. Rogers, in the middle part of the game to gain a lead the Oklahomans could not overcome. The Western invaders had to give three goals on handicap to the winners, but these were not needed, and on the flat—that is, without handicaps—the score would have favored Army, 9 to 6.

in direct conformation with their success, except in the case of Hornsby at St. Louis. Harris fell from grace in Washington when he failed to produce a winner or a serious contender in his last three seasons. Sisler, Bancroft, Maranville, Schalk, Collins and O'Farrell brought unsatisfactory results from a pennant standpoint.

The swing away from player-managers was gradual, but virtually complete. At the crest of Harris' success, arguments that the managerial duties affected a pilot's play were convincingly drowned out. With the decline of the player-manager they have been advanced again in the cause of bench pilots. The warp and woof of the argument, which I have heard somewhere before, seems to be that nothing succeeds like success.

waves to victory. It is an axiom among the coaches that "a good crew will come through under any conditions."

East Swept Races Last Year.

Consequently, the positions probably will have little effect on the outcome.

The East swept the river a year ago, with Cornell and Syracuse setting the pace, and highly confident tonight of repeating tomorrow, despite the challenge of the Far West in each of the three events. Washington's freshmen and California's "jayvees" were the only Western contenders in the two races preliminary to the varsity naval engagement. The freshmen contest was the first on the program, scheduled at 3 p. m., Eastern standard time, with the junior varsity and varsity races listed to follow at one-hour intervals.

Ruth Brown Annexes Title In Playground Singles Final

Mildred Hook Loses, 10-8 and 6-3, on Rosedale Court.

RUTH BROWN yesterday attained the title of District girls' playground singles champion when she defeated Mildred Hook, 10—8, 6—3, in the final round of the tournament on the courts at Rosedale Playground. City-wide in extent the final round brought together two "native daughters" in that both girls are representative of Rosedale Playground.

Miss Hook led off as if she were going to make short work of her opponent, when she ran into a lead of 3—0 by exhibiting superior steadiness in all departments of the game. Miss Brown evened up the score for the nonce, but was forced to bow once more as Miss Hook led, 5—4, and had the set all but in her grasp before Miss Brown drew level once more and went on to take the set.

The second set saw Miss Brown stroking the ball in good style to lead at all times. She was far the more consistent player and was minimizing her errors well.

A preponderance of double faults marked the match.

Ft. Washington Bouts Postponed Due to Rain

About 500 cash customers were settled in the arena and more were en route when a sudden rainstorm broke over Fort Washington last night, causing postponement of the Arthur Huttick-Jack Denning heavyweight feature and the attendant preliminaries until next Monday night.

Both Huttick and Denning were on the scene. The crowd for the most part waited more than an hour in the downpour to hear the official verdict of postponement. Huttick was reported to have been signed for 20 per cent of the gross receipts with Denning contracted on a guarantee of $250.

Huttick will meet Abe Adell Thursday night in Madison Square Garden in a six-round bout. But for this fact, he stated, he would have remained over to fight Denning tonight. Denning, all-Navy heavyweight champion, returned to Norfolk.

Fight Body Approves Laurel Opening Date

The selection of July 1 as the opening date of the Midcity Boxing Arena, near Laurel, Md., has been approved by the Maryland Boxing Commission in a letter to Midcity Club officials, it was announced yesterday.

General Manager Angy Gerrin, who is now in New York in search of heavyweights, yesterday reported progress, saying that he would go from the metropolis to Boston, there to consult other prominent figures in the limelight of the squared circle.

Progress is also reported from the club's new arena, where work is being supervised by "Frenchy" De Beve, former lightweight champion of France.

AL BROWN DISQUALIFIED.

London, June 15 (A.P.).—Al Brown, Panama Negro who holds recognition in some quarters as bantamweight champion, was disqualified in the eighth round of his fifteen-round bout with Johnny Cuthbert, English featherweight, here tonight. Brown was disqualified for hitting low.

Mrs. Hill Is Medalist In Transmississippi

St. Louis, June 15 (A.P.).—Mrs. O. S. Hill, of the Meadow Lake Country Club, Kansas City, who took up golf eight years ago as a means of regaining her health, set the pace in the qualifying round of the fifth annual women's transmississippi tournament on the St. Louis Country Club course with a subpar medal score of 76 today.

Winning the medalist honor in the first test of her effort to regain the title she has held twice before, Mrs. Hill shot one under women's par, but used one more stroke than Glenna Collett did in setting the course record at 75 in the national women's tournament here in 1925.

Mrs. Hill, a semifinalist in the last two national tournaments and winner of numerous other events in the last six years, did not defend her transmississippi title in 1930.

Bankers Tennis League To Open Play Today

The fifth annual play for the championship of the Bankers Tennis League will get under way tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock on the courts at Potomac Park, with six banks represented in the play for the league trophy, won last year by Merchants.

Tomorrow's pairings bring together Federal American and District National, Commercial and Columbia, and Riggs and Washington Loan & Trust. While the latter two matches have no appreciable favorites, it is expected that Federal-American will triumph over District National, since in its ranks are the players who last year carried Merchants to the league title.

As usual, two singles and one doubles match will make up the program.

LEGION GOLF TOURNEY.

Entries for the American Legion Handicap Golf tournament, to be held at Beaver Dam June 29, should be forwarded to American Legion headquarters, Shoreham Building. The entrance fee is $1.50 and will be accepted up until 10 a. m., June 29.

Coast Loop to Enter Junior World Series

New York, June 15 (A.P.).—Directors of the International Baseball League today acted favorably on a proposal to bring the Pacific Coast League into the Junior World Series, now played between the winners of the International League and American Association campaigns.

According to the plan advanced, the winner of the series between the association and International winners would go the Coast following that series to play the winners in the far Western league.

To clear the way for such a series the agreement between the association and the International League was reduced from a ten-year term to a seven-year term and the gate left open for the Pacific League to participate.

Cards Give Douthit, Cash, for Roettger

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 15 (A.P.).—Wally Roettger, outfielder, obtained last winter by the Cincinnati Reds from the New York Giants, today was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Taylor Douthit, also an outfielder. The deal was announced by Sidney Weil, Red's president, who said the Cardinals also were given some cash, but did not disclose the amount.

Roettger led the National League in batting for several days earlier this season. His present average is .351. He has made 65 hits so far this year, including 11 doubles, 4 triples and 1 home run, and was the second heaviest slugger on the Cincinnati roster.

In going to St. Louis, Roettger will be returning to the club from which he went to the Giants.

Dr. Little Tells Phi Beta Kappa New Curriculum System Is Needed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 15.—"Academic death or suicide, if it must come, will be in the forefront of battle for new things and not from dry rot, which is contagious and very unpleasant to one's neighbors," said Dr. Clarence C. Little, former president of the University of Michigan and now director of the Jackson Memorial Laboratory, Bar Harbor, Me., tonight at the annual meeting of Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Virginia, after 7 alumni and 35 students had been initiated into the society. American educational institutions, said the speaker, should be allowed to develop a few internal secretions and a heart.

This was alumni day and a business meeting of the Alumni Association was followed by a luncheon to the graduates, at which Dr. George H. Denny, president of the University of Alabama and alumnus of the class of '97, welcomed members of the class of 1931 into the alumni body. The alumni ball was held tonight in Memorial Gymnasium.

364 Receive Degrees Today.

Class exercises will be held tomorrow morning, when a memorial to Dr. Edwin A. Alderman will be presented as the class gift. Graduation exercises take place at 5 o'clock in the McIntire Amphitheater. After degrees have been conferred upon 364 men and women, an address will be made by Representative John W. Fishburne.

"The undergraduate curriculum of the American college is shaped by the faculty," said Dr. Little tonight. "The faculty desires to be left alone as much as possible because absence of teaching makes for freedom for research and this in turn produces academic recognition and promotion.

"Since men who are exceptional intellectually frequently are also exceptional emotionally, they are often happier when they let one another alone. Knowledge of this fact has produced a magnificent isolation of departments. Since to recite information already possessed requires less mental effort than does the acquisition and digestion of new facts, it follows that much teaching consists of dogmatic recital of written information.

Suggests New System.

"Since some sort of examination must be given, it follows that the easiest and, therefore, the commonest type is to ask for the return of facts which the professor has, during his course, lent to the student. Since the most harmless and least troublesome type of measurement of scholarship is by careful averaging to three or four insignificant decimal points of a large number of equally insignificant grades, that is the usual method employed for the grading of academic honors. Occasionally it does no harm to begin in one's imagination with a clean slate and try to plan an undergraduate curriculum based on new environmental conditions.

"What are some of the characteristics of such a curriculum? It should be planned for the students as they are, not as the faculty would find it convenient to have them. This means unselfishness on the part of the faculty, true love of contact with youth, recognition of what a student actually is at his various ages (physiologically, emotionally, psychologically and socially), recognition of variation in students as something to be welcomed and used and not to be bemoaned, masked and ignored; recognition of the need of giving students opportunity for many different kinds of intellectual contacts, but expecting them to exercise a wise choice."

Fuller Heads Alumni.

Frank L. Fuller, Durham, N. C., was reelected president of the alumni association and John B. Jenkins, Norfolk, vice president. Board members chosen were Forest Hyde, New York City; Bernard P. Chamberlain, Charlottesville; Charles Churchman, Staunton, and Richard E. Shands, Washington.

Announcement was made that Scott Field, Virginia's new football stadium, would be dedicated with the Virginia Military Institute game October 15.

This change was made in order not to conflict with the Yorktown celebration the Saturday following. Plans were outlined for a big reunion of Virginia alumni of all classes at the dedication. Dr. James Morrison, of Lynchburg, captain of '97 eleven, has issued a call for all former players to attend. Gov. Pollard and staff will be present.

Two More Indicted In Murder of Davis

Lifer Changes Story and Implicates Eppard and Sleigh.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 15.—Russell Eppard and Charles Sleigh were indicted by a Rockingham County grand jury late today on charges of complicity in the fatal shooting of their neighbor, Robert Davis, father of nine children at Furnace, in northeast Rockingham, last April.

Rufus Lam, deserter from the United States Coast Artillery, was given a life term on a first-degree murder charge at the May term of circuit court. He admitted shooting Davis, but said he killed the man to protect the honor of his 16-year-old sister. At his trial Lam denied that Eppard and Sleigh were with them at the time he shot Davis, but testified he left the pair outside the Davis yard. Lam said he first told Eppard and Sleigh of the shooting and they went with him to the neighborhood store, where he surrendered to officers.

Lam testified before the grand jury today to implicate Sleigh and Eppard. Sleigh testified in Lam's behalf at the trial, but Eppard was arrested in the courthouse lobby the first day of the hearing. He had been summoned as a defense witness. The pair probably will be arraigned before Judge H. W. Bertram today.

DOUW WILL OPPOSE ANNAPOLIS MAYOR

Wins Democratic Primary by Large Vote Over Claude; 700 Ballots Cast.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 15.—Backed by the regular Democratic "organization" forces, Col. John DeF. Douw swept to an easy victory for the nomination for mayor of Annapolis in the primary held today. Dr. Gordon H. Claude, running independently, was his unsuccessful opponent, and his defeat was a complete rout. Col. Douw polled seven votes to every one for Dr. Claude.

The primary failed to attract more than passing interest and the poll was extremely light, less than 700 votes being cast. The comparative vote was: Douw, 613; Claude, 87. The fact that there were no contests for city counsellor or the eight aldermanic berths was largely responsible for the lax interest.

Democratic and Republican leaders had previously prepared their slates of candidates and the only semblance of a contest was that which had its denouement today. With the ring backing Douw, his nomination was regarded as a foregone conclusion, and an effort was made to induce Dr. Claude to withdraw from the race and thereby save the city over $600 primary expenses, but he remained adamant.

The municipal election will be held July 13, and Col. Douw will be opposed by Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt (Republican), who rode into office two years ago by a lone vote majority. Mr. Quenstedt was opposed in that election by Charles E. Chance, head of a large marine railway and shipbuilding plant here. A warm contest is in prospect between Douw and Quenstedt. The Democratic candidate is a retired business man and Mr. Quenstedt is a government clerk at the Naval Academy, has extensive fraternal connections and has just been elected commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Department of Maryland.

The defeat of Dr. Claude today was complete in all four wards. He was defeated in his home ward, the first, 143 to 12, whereas Mr. Douw carried his home section, the third, overwhelmingly, 218 to 12. In the second the vote was: Douw, 242; Claude, 24. In the fourth ward, known as the black belt, and where but few white voters are registered, only 10 votes were polled. Of these, Douw got 6.

CRIPPLE CONVICTED IN WIDOW'S SLAYING

Capital Cake Salesman Gets 18-Year Prison Term for Shooting Woman.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 15.—Adjudged guilty of murder in the second degree in the fatal shooting April 16 of Mrs. Edith Stevens Harrison Wayson, a gold star widow, Henry E. Kelm, 35, one-legged Washington cake salesman, was sentenced in the criminal court by Judge Joseph N. Ulman today to eighteen years in the Maryland Penitentiary, the maximum penalty under the degree of guilt.

Kelm, after first denying the charges and causing the impaneling of a jury to hear the case, entered a plea of guilty generally. During the course of testimony to determine the degree of guilt, the defendant said he had not intended to kill Mrs. Wayson.

Took Poison Tablets.

He went to the Wayson home, he said, "to say goodby and to die out there and give her the trouble" such action would cause. Just previous to the shooting Kelm took several poison tablets, his life being saved later when he was forced to take antidotes.

Kelm and Mrs. Wayson had been friends for several years, during part of which time the former lived at the latter's home. The friendship was terminated several weeks previous to the shooting.

In Baltimore on a visit, Kelm said he went to the Chestmont avenue home, talked to Mrs. Wayson and took the poison. He said the shooting occurred when he was attacked by Charles Kenney, who was summoned from the second floor of the house.

Kelm's Wife in Court.

Mrs. Wayson's daughter by a first marriage, Miss Esther Harrison, testified that Mr. Kenney, who, the defense claimed, was a close friend of the slain woman, was not in the house at the time of the shooting, but came in just afterward.

Kelm's wife, who obtained an absolute divorce from him shortly after the murder, was in court throughout the hearing and sat with the defendant at the trial table. The divorce proceedings were instituted before the shooting.

J. Bernard Wells, deputy State's attorney, and Charles C. Dipaula, assistant State's attorney, sought a first-degree verdict in the case. Kelm was represented by Herman Moser.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE ALIBI.

WHEN a good excuse was wanted
by a golfer in the past
For his failings in a role for which he clearly wasn't cast,
He was forced to feel and fumble for an alibi to fit,
And it consequently varied in accordance with his wit;
Heretofore he blamed his backswing or his grip or "follow through"
For the many fundamental things he never seemed to do,
But it's now another story when his back is to the wall—
All the blame is placed quite fiercely on the new and lighter ball!

Through the long and lazy summers that have passed beyond recall
He has never lacked excuses when he couldn't smack the ball;
Versatile was he and fluent as he sought to place the blame
For the fifty million troubles in his own peculiar game;
There were times, indeed, and many,
when he seemed to be in doubt,
As he tried to tell his buddies what his game was all about,
But today he has one answer always ready and on call—
"Why, a feller's simply helpless with that new and lighter ball"

In the old days he was plainly at a loss to make it clear
When his game from any angle was pathetic, drab and drear;
He would venture the suggestion that his rhythm wasn't right,
That his timing was imperfect and his golf sense rather slight;
He would guess he might be pressing,
he would think of many flaws—
It was plain each time he foozled that he didn't know the cause,
But this season for excuses he no longer has to stall—
Everything he does that's awful is because of that new ball.

BACK in '28 the notion that he often had in mind
When he staggered through the fairway, leaving faith and hope behind,
Was that possibly the driver wasn't quite the proper weight,
That his brassie was defective and his irons out of date;
Wooden shafts he thought unwieldy and he changed to ones of steel
And he thought a certain mashie took away that golfing "feel,"
But I've played with him this season and he has no doubt at all That the cause of all his dubbing is the new and lighter ball.

All through '29 I heard him blame his change from wood to steel,
For the fact that on the golf links he was just an awful "heel;"
There were moments when he fancied that he didn't follow through,
And I've often heard him squawking,
"I forgot to pivot," too;
"Looking up is what I'm doing," was his frequent cry of woe,
Or, "I think that in my timing I am just a little slow;"
But he doesn't have to fumble for an alibi today—
It's the new and lighter golf ball that is making him that way

All last season (1930) when a fearful slice he had,
His excuse was that his back swing was unorthodox and bad;
When he dubbed one in the fairway on a most important shot
He would frown and say he didn't keep his eye upon the spot;
He would even blame the weather, and I've heard him blame the course
When a ten upon the short hole gave him heartache and remorse.
But this season there's ONE reason for his faults from Z to A—
"It's that (oath deleted) golf ball that a feller has to play!"

My lady used to wear a bun
Of raven hair, a lovely one
Of such a quaint and dainty shape,
That nestled in her neck's white nape
To give her poise and dignity
And—individuality!
Alas, that beauty should be robbed—
She's gone and had her tresses bobbed!
However, here I must admit,
It gives her quite a bit of "it."

And lost his power with his hair,
This lady I can't help adore
Has all the power she had before!

MANASSAS AIRPORT TO BE BEGUN SOON

Citizens Buy 94 Acres for Emergency Landing Field; 2 Runways Planned.

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., June 15.—Work on the emergency landing field, made possible by the purchase of 94 acres of suitable land for an airport by a group of Prince William County citizens, will get under way within a few days, according to announcement by Mayor Harry F. Davis, of Manassas.

The field has been turned over to the Corporation of Manassas under a 5-year lease, and the authorities have entered into a contract with the State Highway Commission to condition the property according to plans and specifications, which the State follows, to conform to Government provisions. The airport will be rated as a class B field, and will have two runways, each 250 feet wide and 1,800 feet long, a center circle, a wind cone and telephone service. The State will expend up to $2,000 in conditioning the field, and A. H. Pettigrew, of the State Highway Department, will shortly make a topographical survey of the field, and with the plans in hand work will begin at once.

The site is ideally located for an airport and is about 2 miles outside of Manassas on State Route 709, between the town and Stone House, on the Lee highway.

POISON CASE WAITS REPORT BY CHEMIST

Coroner Delays Action for Stomach Analysis After Death of Woman.

Issuance of a certificate in death of Mrs. Mildred Hall Namey, who died Sunday from effects of a large quantity of a sleep-inducing drug, is being deferred by Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt until analysis of contents of the woman's stomach by a Government chemist and this information, with other data, is presented to a coroner's jury sworn in yesterday over the body.

Letters said to have been written by the woman to police officials complaining against alleged actions of several members of the Washington police force are in possession of the coroner and will be shown to the jury.

Inspector Albert J. Headley yesterday said he understood the woman had for several years entertained a violent attachment for an officer mentioned in the letters. When this policeman failed to respond to her advances, he said, the woman brought serious charges against him which were found false at a hearing before the Police Trial Board.

Early last night no relative had come to claim the body of the woman nor had any communication been received by police with regard to funeral arrangements.

It was said by police that Mrs. Namey had been confined to Gallinger Hospital at one time for mental observation and that on another occasion she had attempted to slash her wrists with suicidal intent.

The woman was found unconscious Saturday morning in her room at the Ambassador Hotel where she had registered as Mrs. Mildred Hall. Her effects established that Namey was her surname and that Hall was her maiden name. Whereabouts of her husband or status of her domestic affairs could not be ascertained.

Hail Plays Havoc With Fruit Crops

Charlottesville Area Hit by Loss of Thousands; Lightning Strikes.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 15.—A terrific hail storm lasting 15 minutes, second to visit Albemarle within a month, struck the southern end of the county last night, causing thousands of dollars damage to apple and peach orchards. The Batesville, North Garden and Covesville sections suffered most.

Havoc was played among orchards in the Batesville area. Loss at the main orchards at Miller School, which usually produces 5,000 barrels of Albemarle pippins and winesaps, is estimated by Superintendent Lapsley at 90 per cent of the crop. Similar damage was reported at the Crown Orchard Co., just across the mountain, and at the Curd Orchards.

During the storm the plant of the Wayland Machinery Co., located one mile north of Covesville, was fired by a bolt of lightning and completely destroyed, entailing a loss estimated at nearly $15,000. The company, headed by E. M. Wayland, of Heards, manufactured apple crates and graders and packing machines. The plant consisted of two frame buildings and gave employment to two score men. Two horses on James Norvell's farm were killed by lightning.

Jury Refuses to Indict Lad Who Shot to Save Mother.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 15.—Fourteen-year-old Randolph Shifflett, who killed his father, George E. Shifflett, 52, to save the life of his mother, was upheld in his act today by the Rockingham grand jury, which refused to indict him on a count of manslaughter. The elder Shifflett, who had been drinking, was beating his wife on the floor of their Island Ford home in East Rockingham April 26. As he threatened to shoot the woman, Randolph dashed to the kitchen, grabbed a 12-gauge shotgun and blew off the top of his father's head.

Officers found a revolver on the body and Mrs. Shifflett said she believed the act of Randolph saved her life. After the shooting, the boy telephoned a deputy sheriff. The boy was never arrested, being left in the custody of his mother. Shifflett, for many years a stonemason on the Norfolk & Western Railroad, was a well-to-do farmer who bore the reputation of getting mean when he drank. One of his five children is a Kansas City physician, Dr. Lee Shifflett.
